ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller sent the Legislature a record-high $2,041,000,000 budget today that calls for the greatest round of tax increases in New York's history.

More than 400,000 people in the low-wage brackets would have to pay state income taxes for the first time to support the mammoth spending plan.

Altogether, the Republican governor advocated new or increased taxes totaling 277 million dollars —on incomes, cigarettes, motor fuel, race-track betting, estates, cigars and pipe tobacco.

Would Use Payroll Plan

He proposed to put the tate income tax on a payroll withholding basis, beginning April 1, and to raise the tax by 150 million dollars—a boost of about 25 per cent for most taxpayers.

So that taxpayers would not have to pay two years' taxes at the same time, he recommended cancelling the 1958 income tax, which normally would fall due April 15.

Rockefeller called this a 500-million 'saving" for the people.

Looks Like It Will Pass

The outlook was that the GOP-controlled Legislature would accept his plan despite Democratic taunts that it was a "soak-the-poor" program.

In an attempt to "sell" his first budget, the new governor decided to break precedent and deliver the budget message in person at a special joint session of the Senate and Assembly. He sent the usual printed copies first.

Rockefeller also planned a statewide television broadcast tonight to explain his program to the taxpayers. It was set for 6:15 p. m.

State in Poor Shape

Rockefeller said in his message that his decision to raise taxes was "distasteful" but inevitable because the state had fallen into "a critical fiscal situation."

Although he said his problem was inherited, he did not try to put the blame directly on his Democratic predecessor, Averell Harriman, whose last budget set a record at $1,800,000,000.

Rockefeller said the problem was that state spending—much of it mandated by law—had soared dizzily while income lagged. The state has been dipping into reserve funds and floating bonds to meet the Constitutional requirement for a balanced budget.

Recommendations

Although Rockefeller tugged on the spending reins, he did recommend:

1. Continuing the extra state aid for schools granted last year on a one-year basis, at a cost of $61,800,000.
2. Raising state employes' salaries on a plan yet to be worked out, at a cost of $19,100,000.
3. Increasing state a to New York City by $15,000,000.
4. Adding about 250 men to the state police force, requiring $1,500,000 more.
5. Giving the parole division more personnel to handle a mounting workload, $111,000.
6. Giving the State Commission Against Discrimination $95,000 more for research and additional personnel and to administer the 1958 law prohibiting bias in hiring workers over 40.
7. Expanding the State Law Department's Civil Rights Bureau, at a cost of $50,000.

Tax Proposals

These were Rockefeller's major tax proposals:

The weekly withholding is about one-third higher than it will be next year, since the full tax will be collected over a nine-month period.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller proposed today an income-tax increase of 150 million dollars this year for New York taxpayers.

He wants them to pay it this way:

1 — Forget about filing returns April 15 for the 500 million dollars in income taxes that would be due for 1958. Those taxes would be cancelled.

2 — Begin paying 1959 taxes, which include the increase, April 1 through a withholding plan, the way they now pay federal income taxes.

The Republican governor's tax plan was unveiled in his first annual budget message, which he presented to the Legislature today.

New Laws Needed

New laws are needed to implement the plan. It is expected that the GOP-controlled Legislature will give Rockefeller what he wants.

The budget calls for a total of 650 million dollars in income taxes. This would finance nearly one-third of the proposed 1959-60 budget, which is a record $2,041,000,000.

Present taxpayers would pay most of the increases of 150 million.

But they would be helped by:

More than 400,000 additional taxpayers who would be added to the rolls as a result of changes in exemptions.

Delinquents who would be forced, under the withholding plan, to pay taxes they had evaded in the past.

Sees New Jobs

The new jobs and bigger incomes the Rockefeller administration hopes will result from its campaign to improve the state's economy.

The tax changes, the most extensive in the history of the state's income tax, would have this effect on the average taxpayer:

In his first paycheck in April, he would find another deduction listed among the several already made.

Next January, the deduction would drop slightly. The 1959 tax would be for Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. Deductions would be from April 1 to Dec. 31. Payments would be higher than normal to make up for the first three months.

If the payroll deductions amount to more than the tax, the state will send a refund, just as the federal government does.

In January, deductions would be on a 12-month basis.

Early in 1960, the taxpayer would fill out a return as he has in the past.

Exemptions Different

His exemptions would be different — $600 for himself and each dependent. They now are $1,000 for single person. $2,500 for a mar-

Ex-Convict, Girl Held In Officers Shooting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HACKENSACK, N. J. (AP) — Swift work by police in two states resulted Sunday in the arrest of an ex-convict and his model girl friend wanted in the shooting of two Englewood policemen.

The girl, Sieglinde Klapprott, 18, was arrested at her home in nearby Ridgefield Park. The statuesque blonde, who police said is daughter of a former leader of the German-American Bund, told authorities where to find her boy friend.

Arrested in Motel

Within an hour, eight New York State troopers burst into a motel room in Deposit, N. Y., and arrested 22-year-old Joseph Lynch.

Lynch was taken to Kirkwood, N. Y., where he was arraigned on a fugitive from justice charge. He waived extradition and was committed to Broome County Jail in Binghamton, N. Y.

'Case Is Solved'

Soon after the arrests were made, Bergen County prosecutor Guy W. Calissi announced:

"The case is solved."

Calissi left Sunday night for Binghamton to pick up Lynch. The former Bordentown reformatory inmate was to be brought here today after questioning by Queens, N. Y., police, who want to ask him about some small crimes there. Lynch once lived in Queens.

Miss Klapprott, her eyes red from crying, was taken before Englewood Magistrate Henry J. Bendheim and arraigned as a material witness and on a charge of concealing a crime. The calendar girl was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Youth Is Held

Another youth, David Warner, 21, of Teaneck, was also arraigned on a charge of concealing a crime and held in $1,000 bail.

Calissi said the gun used to shoot the two officers Thursday night belonged to Warner. He said Warner had lent it to Lynch and

Governor Would Change Office, Commerce Dept.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller plans to overhaul the State Commerce Department—and his own office, too.

In his budget message today, Rockefeller asked the Legislature to appropriate money for the department and the executive chamber in lump sums, rather than the usual item-by-item method.

Would Be More Flexible

He said this would allow more flexibility in using the money.

Rockefeller asked for $3,200,000 for the department, $128,071 more than the agency received last year. The extra money is for more personnel, he said.

For his own office, he requested $1,180,000. This is $47,399 less than former Gov. Averell Harriman received for the executive chamber his last year in office.

Rockefeller said the Commerce

To Start Selecting Jury For Ashby Trial Tuesday

The first trial arising out of the Ulster County kickback probe which is nearing the end of its first year, is scheduled to open Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the court house when 150 jurors will attend as the prospective panel members to hear the evidence in the Edwin W. Ashby perjury trial.

From the panel of 150 jurors will be selected the trial jury of twelve, with two alternates, which will sit to hear the evidence.

Ashby, under suspension as Ulster County Commissioner of Jurors, is charged with having committed perjury when called before the special grand jury. It is charged he made false statements in regard to his connection with checks, drawn by the late Frank Buckley of Troy, and that on a second appearance before the grand jury he attempted to purge himself of that charge and give further testimony.

His first story was that he had been paid for "bird-dogging", giving tips where sales of snow removal equipment could be made in Ulster county. On his second appearance he allegedly said he had not received the money but had cashed the checks and returned the money to Buckley, except of a small payment which he was given.

Ashby's statement that had been "sent" to Troy at the request of Arthur H. Wicks, former senator and Ulster County Republican chairman, brought Senator Wick's name into the picture.

Wicks Arrives Here

Senator Wicks announced that he would return from Florida where he is vacationing and testify "to clear his name" if his testimony was deemed necessary. He has arrived in town

Tompkins Belief: All State Will Pay

Special Prosecutor Bernard Tompkins, designated by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz to conduct the kickbacks probe in Ulster County, said today that it is his belief that expenses of the investigation are to be borne by the state.

He was commenting on measures introduced in the legislature asking that Ulster County not be called upon to bear the expense of the investigation, that it would raise tax rates in the locale by more than 14 per cent.

The bills were introduced by Senator E. Ogden Bush of the 34th Senatorial District, including Ulster County and Ulster County Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock.

Tompkins Statement

Tompkins, a former State Senator from Qeens, said:

"I understand that Assemblyman Wilson and Senator Bush have introduced legislation in Albany to the effect that the State of New York, rather than the county, should pay the cost of the attorney general's investigation in Ulster County.

"Since the inquiry was undertaken at the direction of Governor Harriman and renewed by proclamation of Governor Rockefeller, it seems to me that such a provision is fair and proper and I will support it.

Routine, He Says

"While I appreciate that it is important that these legislators keep their constituents informed of the efforts in their behalf, the fact is that the dramatic statement of a possible increase of 14 per cent in taxes for Ulster County is completely unjustified. Such a bill, as I understand has been introduced is more or less a routine matter.

"The history of similar investigations in other counties, with which I am familiar, is that they have been paid for by the state rather than the county.

"There is no reason to believe that the taxes of the people of Ulster County will be increased by one-hundredth of one per cent because of our investigation. Instead, if we can eliminate the corrupt elements and unlawful practices, which have kept costs to the county and the towns artificially high, we will save the taxpayers of Ulster many thousands of dollars each year.

Asks for Less

"Although I want to make it clear that the taxpayers of Ulster County will not suffer because of our investigation, neither am I

How to Figure Taxes Under Rockefeller

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Here's how to figure how much your 1959 state income tax would be under the plan proposed today by Gov. Rockefeller:

Begin by writing down your estimated income for this year.

Then figure your deductions. They may be itemized. But for this purpose, try the flat deduction — take 10 per cent of your total income or take $1,000, whichever is less.

Subtract your deduction from your estimated total income.

Then figure your exemptions—$600 for each person. That means a single taxpayer is allowed $600, married couples $1,200 ($600 each) and couples with children or persons with other dependents an additional $600 for each.

Subtract your exemptions.

The remaining figure is your taxable income.

Compute your 1959 tax on that figure — using this formula:

2 per cent of the first $1,000, plus

3 per cent of the 2nd and 3rd $1,000 plus

4 per cent of the 4th and 5th $1,000, plus

5 per cent of the 6th and 7th $1,000, plus

6 per cent of the 8th and 9th $1,000, plus

7 per cent of the 10th and 11th $1,000, plus

8 per cent of the 12th and 13th $1,000 plus

9 per cent of the 14th and 15th $1,000, plus

10 per cent of all over $15,000.

There is just one more step.

After you have computed the tax by the formula above, subtract $10 from the result. The balance is the amount you would have to pay this year.

Could Run Taxpayers Here Around $387,700

Sen. Bush and Assemblyman Wilson Are Asking That State Pay Expenses

A bill designed to relieve Ulster County taxpayers of the burden of paying a possible $387,700 as the cost of the Special Ulster County Investigation, was introduced in the State legislature today by Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock and State Senator E. Ogden Bush, whose Senatorial district includes Ulster County.

Under the bill the County of Ulster would be relieved of legal obligation to pay the cost of the Special Ulster County "kickback" Investigation now being conducted by Special Investigator Bernard Tompkins, who has been named a special attorney general to conduct the probe.

Directed by Harriman

The investigation is being conducted pursuant to direction of former Governor Harriman made on March 22, 1958.

The proposed bill does not cover the expenses of the Reuter investigation, estimated to be about $100,000, which preceded the present investigation. That cost was a general state charge.

Objective of the proposed legislation is to relieve the County of Ulster of the provisions of existing law which makes the cost of the investigation a charge against the county by requirig the county to reimburse the state for the amount of such expense.

Issue Statement

In a joint statement issued today, Senator Bush and Assemblyman Wilson said:

"Under a bill which we have introduced today, the County of Ulster would, if the bill is passed and approved by the Governor, be relieved of the burden of paying the full cost of the Special Ulster County Investigation ordered by Governor Harriman on March 22, 1958.

"Under the law as it exists the full cost and expense of such investigation would be charged-back by the state against the County of Ulster. The controlling provision of law is Section 63, subdivision 2 of the Executive Law which, so far as pertinent, provides as follows:

"In all such cases (of special investigations ordered by the Governor) all expenses incurred by the Attorney-General, including the salary or other compensation of all deputies employed, shall be a county charge."

$170,000 Appropriated

"By Chapter 467 of the Laws of 1958, the sum of $150,000 was appropriated for the Special Investigation for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1958 and ending March 31, 1959. However, before the fiscal year expired the appropriation had been exhausted and to meet the deficit the legislature, by Chapter 1 of the Laws of 1959, appropriated an additional $20,000. Thus, a total of $170,000 has already been appropriated.

"In the new state budget for the fiscal year 1959-60, there is an item of $217,000 for the continuance of the investigation. If the budget, as proposed, is adopted the total appropriations to the investigation will be $387,700, and the whole sum will be charged-back to Ulster County under the provisions of the pre-

Payment Is Estimated For Locales

If the total sum of $387,700.00 is charged-back to Ulster County as required by present law, and the sum is allocated to the various political units in the County, on the basis of present equalization rates, the following would be the shares which the City of Kingston and each town in the County would have to bear for the Tompkins kickback probe, according to Senator Bush and Assemblyman Wilson:

'57 State Income Tax Payment Is Due by Feb. 16

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Regardless of Gov. Rockefeller's new tax plan, you still have to make that final quarterly payment on your 1957 state income taxes.

It is due by Feb. 16.

The State Tax Department pointed this out Sunday because officials were concerned that taxpayers might become confused by all the talk over "forgiveness."

Under Rockefeller's plan, all 1958 income taxes would be cancelled while the state switched to a payroll withholding system, beginning April 1.

Those are the taxes that would fall due April 15. Although some four million tax forms have been mailed, they may never be used.

The department also has been mailing billings for the last payment on 1957 taxes—on the returns filed last year.

About 825,000 taxpayers still owe payments totaling more than 50 million dollars.

State Plans on Spending 758 Million on Education

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York State will pour almost 758 million dollars into education in the year ahead — for items ranging from first-grade readers to big college buildings.

Thirty-seven per cent of Gov. Rockefeller's record two-billion-plus budget, unveiled today, is assigned to education. No other field comes close to this figure.

For basic education — aid to local school districts — there is a boost of 64½ million over the 1958-59 level of 570 million.

Of this amount, 30 per cent represents growth alone — the tots who troop to school for the first time in September. The increase continues the 8 per cent aid boost voted last year, as well as help to hard-pressed school districts.

The Rockefeller administration outlay for schools is an 89½-million-dollar jump from the 668 million allotted during the last year of Averell Harriman's Democratic regime.

The 64½ million assigned to local schools falls far short of educators' requests.

The Board of Regents had appealed for 86 million, spread over two budgets, since the state and school year do not coincide. The State Educational Conference Board, representing major school organizations, had asked for 140 million more.

Broken down, the education outlay allots 635 million for local schools, 28 million for education purposes on the state level, 47 million for the State University, and 48 million for building under the capital construction fund.

In his message to the Legislature, Rockefeller said that next fall 100,000 more youngsters will join the 2,784,000 now attending public schools. The figure will rise a million more by 1970, he told "Better school buildings and more

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller proposed today an income-tax increase of 150 million dollars this year for New York taxpayers.

He wants them to pay it this way:

1 — Forget about filing returns April 15 for the 500 million dollars in income taxes that would be due for 1958. Those taxes would be cancelled.

2 — Begin paying 1959 taxes, which include the increase, April 1 through a withholding plan, the way they now pay federal income taxes.

The Republican governor's tax plan was unveiled in his first annual budget message, which he presented to the Legislature today.

New Laws Needed

New laws are needed to implement the plan. It is expected that the GOP-controlled Legislature will give Rockefeller what he wants.

The budget calls for a total of 650 million dollars in income taxes. This would finance nearly one-third of the proposed 1959-60 budget, which is a record $2,041,000,000.

Present taxpayers would pay most of the increases of 150 million.

But they would be helped by:

More than 400,000 additional taxpayers who would be added to the rolls as a result of changes in exemptions.

Delinquents who would be forced, under the withholding plan, to pay taxes they had evaded in the past.

Sees New Jobs

The new jobs and bigger incomes the Rockefeller administration hopes will result from its campaign to improve the state's economy.

The tax changes, the most extensive in the history of the state's income tax, would have this effect on the average taxpayer:

In his first paycheck in April, he would find another deduction listed among the several already made.

Next January, the deduction would drop slightly. The 1959 tax would be for Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. Deductions would be from April 1 to Dec. 31. Payments would be higher than normal to make up for the first three months.

If the payroll deductions amount to more than the tax, the state will send a refund, just as the federal government does.

In January, deductions would be on a 12-month basis.

Early in 1960,. the taxpayer would fill out a return as he has in the past.

Exemptions Different

His exemptions would be different — $600 for himself and each dependent. They now are $1,000 for single person. $2,500 for a mar-

Ex-Convict, Girl Held In Officers Shooting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HACKENSACK, N. J. (AP) — Swift work by police in two states resulted Sunday in the arrest of an ex-convict and his model girl friend wanted in the shooting of two Englewood policemen.

The girl, Sieglinde Klapprott, 18, was arrested at her home in nearby Ridgefield Park. The statuesque blonde, who police said is daughter of a former leader of the German-American Bund, told authorities where to find her boy friend.

Arrested in Motel

Within an hour, eight New York State troopers burst into a motel room in Deposit, N. Y., and arrested 22-year-old Joseph Lynch.

Lynch was taken to Kirkwood, N. Y., where he was arraigned on a fugitive from justice charge. He waived extradition and was committed to Broome County Jail in Binghamton, N. Y.

'Case Is Solved'

Soon after the arrests were made, Bergen County prosecutor Guy W. Calissi announced:

"The case is solved."

Calissi left Sunday night for Binghamton to pick up Lynch. The former Bordentown reformatory inmate was to be brought here today after questioning by Queens, N. Y., police, who want to ask him about some small crimes there. Lynch once lived in Queens.

Miss Klapprott, her eyes red from crying, was taken before Englewood Magistrate Henry J. Bendheim and arraigned as a material witness and on a charge of concealing a crime. The calendar girl was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Youth Is Held

Another youth, David Warner, 21, of Teaneck, was also arraigned on a charge of concealing a crime and held in $1,000 bail.

Calissi said the gun used to shoot the two officers Thursday night belonged to Warner. He said Warner had lent it to Lynch and Governor Would Change Office, Commerce Dept.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller plans to overhaul the State Commerce Department—and his own office, too.

In his budget message today, Rockefeller asked the Legislature to appropriate money for the department and the executive chamber in lump sums, rather than the usual item-by-item method.

Would Be More Flexible

He said this would allow more flexibility in using the money.

Rockefeller asked for $3,200,000 for the department, $128,071 more than the agency received last year. The extra money is for more personnel, he said.

For his own office, he requested $1,180,000. This is $47,399 less than former Gov. Averell Harriman received for the executive chamber his last year in office.

Rockefeller said the Commerce

To Start Selecting Jury For Ashby Trial Tuesday

The first trial arising out of the Ulster County kickback probe which is nearing the end of its first year, is scheduled to open Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the court house when 150 jurors will attend as the prospective panel members to hear the evidence in the Edwin W. Ashby perjury trial.

From the panel of 150 jurors will be selected the trial jury of twelve, with two alternates, which will sit to hear the evidence.

Ashby, under suspension as Ulster County Commissioner of Jurors, is charged with having committed perjury when called before the special grand jury. It is charged he made false statements in regard to his connection with checks, drawn by the late Frank Buckley of Troy, and that on a second appearance before the grand jury he attempted to purge himself of that charge and give further testimony.

His first story was that he had been paid for "bird-dogging", giving tips where sales of snow removal equipment could be made in Ulster county. On his second appearance he allegedly said he had not received the money but had cashed the checks and returned the money to Buckley, except of a small payment which he was given.

Ashby's statement that had been "sent" to Troy at the request of Arthur H. Wicks, former senator and Ulster County Republican chairman, brought Senator Wick's name into the picture.

Wicks Arrives Here

Senator Wicks announced that he would return from Florida where he is vacationing and testify "to clear his name" if his testimony was deemed necessary. He has arrived in town

Tompkins Belief: All State Will Pay

Special Prosecutor Bernard Tompkins, designated by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz to conduct the kickbacks probe in Ulster County, said today that it is his belief that expenses of the investigation are to be borne by the state.

He was commenting on measures introduced in the legislature asking that Ulster County not be called upon to bear the expense of the investigation, that it would raise tax rates in the locale by more than 14 per cent.

The bills were introduced by Senator E. Ogden Bush of the 34th Senatorial District, including Ulster County and Ulster County Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock.

Tompkins Statement

Tompkins, a former State Senator from Queens, said:

"I understand that Assemblyman Wilson and Senator Bush have introduced legislation in Albany to the effect that the State of New York, rather than the county, should pay the cost of the attorney general's investigation in Ulster County.

"Since the inquiry was undertaken at the direction of Governor Harriman and renewed by proclamation of Governor Rockefeller, it seems to me that such a provision is fair and proper and I will support it.

Routine, He Says

"While I appreciate that it is important that these legislators keep their constituents informed of the efforts in their behalf, the fact is that the dramatic statement of a possible increase of 14 per cent in taxes for Ulster County is completely unjustified. Such a bill, as I understand has been introduced is more or less a routine matter.

"The history of similar investigations in other counties, with which I am familiar, is that they have been paid for by the state rather than the county.

"There is no reason to believe that the taxes of the people of Ulster County will be increased by one-hundredth of one per cent because of our investigation. Instead, if we can eliminate the corrupt elements and unlawful practices, which have kept costs to the county and the towns artificially high, we will save the taxpayers of Ulster many thousands of dollars each year.

Asks for Less

"Although I want to make it clear that the taxpayers of Ulster County will not suffer because of our investigation, neither am I

How to Figure Taxes Under Rockefeller

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Here's how to figure how much your 1959 state income tax would be under the plan proposed today by Gov. Rockefeller:

Begin by writing down your estimated income for this year.

Then figure your deductions. They may be itemized. But for this purpose, try the flat deduction — take 10 per cent of your total income or take $1,000, whichever is less.

Subtract your deduction from your estimated total income.

Then figure your exemptions—$600 for each person. That means a single taxpayer is allowed $600, married couples $1,200 ($600 each) and couples with children or persons with other dependents an additional $600 for each.

Subtract your exemptions.

The remaining figure is your taxable income.

Compute your 1959 tax on that figure — using this formula:

2 per cent of the first $1,000, plus

3 per cent of the 2nd and 3rd $1,000 plus

4 per cent of the 4th and 5th $1,000, plus

5 per cent of the 6th and 7th $1,000, plus

6 per cent of the 8th and 9th $1,000, plus

7 per cent of the 10th and 11th $1,000, plus

8 per cent of the 12th and 13th $1,000 plus

9 per cent of the 14th and 15th $1,000, plus

10 per cent of all over $15,000.

There is just one more step.

After you have computed the tax by the formula above, subtract $10 from the result. The balance is the amount you would have to pay this year.

Could Run Taxpayers Here Around $387,700

Sen. Bush and Assemblyman Wilson Are Asking That State Pay Expenses

A bill designed to relieve Ulster County taxpayers of the burden of paying a possible $387,700 as the cost of the Special Ulster County Investigation, was introduced in the State legislature today by Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock and State Senator E. Ogden Bush, whose Senatorial district includes Ulster County.

Under the bill the County of Ulster would be relieved of legal obligation to pay the cost of the Special Ulster County "kickback" Investigation now being conducted by Special Investigator Bernard Tompkins, who has been named a special attorney general to conduct the probe.

Directed by Harriman

The investigation is being conducted pursuant to direction of former Governor Harriman made on March 22, 1958.

The proposed bill does not cover the expenses of the Reuter investigation, estimated to be about $100,000, which preceded the present investigation. That cost was a general state charge.

Objective of the proposed legislation is to relieve the County of Ulster of the provisions of existing law which makes the cost of the investigation a charge against the county by requirig the county to reimburse the state for the amount of such expense.

Issue Statement

In a joint statement issued today, Senator Bush and Assemblyman Wilson said:

"Under a bill which we have introduced today, the County of Ulster would, if the bill is passed and approved by the Governor, be relieved of the burden of paying the full cost of the Special Ulster County Investigation ordered by Governor Harriman on March 22, 1958.

"Under the law as it exists the full cost and expense of such investigation would be charged-back by the state against the County of Ulster. The controlling provision of law is Section 63, subdivision 2 of the Executive Law which, so far as pertinent, provides as follows:

"In all such cases (of special investigations ordered by the Governor) all expenses incurred by the Attorney-General, including the salary or other compensation of all deputies employed, shall be a county charge."

$170,000 Appropriated

"By Chapter 467 of the Laws of 1958, the sum of $150,000 was appropriated for the Special Investigation for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1958 and ending March 31, 1959. However, before the fiscal year expired the appropriation had been exhausted and to meet the deficit the legislature, by Chapter 1 of the Laws of 1959, appropriated an additional $20,000. Thus, a total of $170,000 has already been appropriated.

"In the new state budget for the fiscal year 1959-60, there is an item of $217,000 for the continuance of the investigation. If the budget, as proposed, is adopted the total appropriations to the investigation will be $387,700. and the whole sum will be charged-back to Ulster County under the provisions of the pre-

Payment Is Estimated For Locales

If the total sum of $387,700.00 is charged-back to Ulster County as required by present law, and the sum is allocated to the various political units in the County, on the basis of present equalization rates, the following would be the shares which the City of Kingston and each town in the County would have to bear for the Tompkins kickback probe, according to Senator Bush and Assemblyman Wilson:

'57 State Income Tax Payment Is Due by Feb. 16

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Regardless of Gov. Rockefeller's new tax plan, you still have to make that final quarterly payment on your 1957 state income taxes.

It is due by Feb. 16.

The State Tax Department pointed this out Sunday because officials were concerned that taxpayers might become confused by all the talk over "forgiveness."

Under Rockefeller's plan, all 1958 income taxes would be cancelled while the state switched to a payroll withholding system, beginning April 1.

Those are the taxes that would fall due April 15. Although some four million tax forms have been mailed, they may never be used.

The department also has been mailing billings for the last payment on 1957 taxes—on the returns filed last year.

About 825,000 taxpayers still owe payments totaling more than 50 million dollars.

State Plans on Spending 758 Million on Education

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York State will pour almost 758 million dollars into education in the year ahead — for items ranging from first-grade readers to big college buildings.

Thirty-seven per cent of Gov. Rockefeller's record two-billion-plus budget, unveiled today, is assigned to education. No other field comes close to this figure.

For basic education — aid to local school districts — there is a boost of 64½ million over the 1958-59 level of 570 million.

Of this amount, 30 per cent represents growth alone — the tots who troop to school for the first time in September. The increase continues the 8 per cent aid boost voted last year, as well as help to hard-pressed school districts.

The Rockefeller administration outlay for schools is an 89½-million-dollar jump from the 668 million allotted during the last year of Averell Harriman's Democratic regime.

The 64½ million assigned to local schools falls far short of educators' requests.

The Board of Regents had appealed for 86 million, spread over two budgets, since the state and school year do not coincide. The State Educational Conference Board, representing major school organizations, had asked for 140 million more.

Broken down, the education outlay allots 635 million for local schools, 28 million for education purposes on the state level, 47 million for the State University, and 48 million for building under the capital construction fund.

In his message to the Legislature, Rockefeller said that next fall 100,000 more youngsters will join the 2,784,000 now attending public schools. The figure will rise a million more by 1970, he told "Better school buildings and more

Javits Would Aid Railroad Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Railroads would be able to take advantage of tax relief granted by cities, counties or states under a bill backed by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY).

Javits said Sunday the New York State Public Service Commission has recommended that Congress pass such a bill and thus help solve the financial problem of railroad passenger service.

Javits said he would introduce the bill today with Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) as a cosponsor.

"This legislation would amend the Internal Revenue Code to assure that tax relief granted by states and municipalities to railroads operating commuter services at a loss would directly benefit the railroads and not be absorbed by increased federal taxes," Javits said.

The New York Commission also has recommended that Congress enact legislation to eliminate the 10 per cent federal tax on passenger fares. Bills to eliminate the tax have been introduced.

Bill Introduced For Registration Of Private Eyes

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A bill to be introduced in the Legislature today would set up a registration system for employes of licensed private investigators.

Assemblyman Anthony P. Savarese (R-Queens) said Sunday the measure was designed to clean shady characters out of the private detective business.

Savarese is chairman of the Joint Committee on Privacy of Communications and Licensure of Private Investigators.

In some cases now, he said, licensees act as fronts for undesirable "employes."

The bill empowers the secretary of state to set standards of character and conduct for the employes, similar to those applying to licensees.

News Deliverers Vote Contracts in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Union deliverers voted today on new contracts with wholesale companies that handle newspapers in New York City and the suburbs.

Ratification of the contracts in the secret balloting was expected.

Details of two settlements affecting about 1,700 drivers and others were presented to union members at a meeting Sunday. About 800 attended.

Asher Schwartz, attorney for the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union, reported that sentiment among the men favored acceptance of the terms.

The wholesalers involved in the settlements handle deliveries for the seven major Manhattan daily newspapers; The Long Island Press and the Long Island Star Journal, both published in Queens; all foreign language newspapers and trade newspapers except Women's Wear Daily.

The settlement was basically for a $7 weekly package increase over a two-year period. This was similar to the one accepted by the union after the 19 - day strike against New York City newspapers in December. The union group that struck is not the same as the one involved in the new contracts being voted on today. The strikers were employed directly by the newspapers.

Auburn Youth's Case Goes to GJ

AUBURN, N. Y. (AP)—A Cayuga County grand jury convened today to consider the case against a teen-ager accused of killing his parents, brother and sister.

John Jayne, 16, who is charged with first - degree murder, was back in the county jail here after attending the funeral service for his family Saturday.

The husky high school sophomore was escorted to and from the jail by two troopers in plainclothes. Using an unmarked police car, while two more troopers followed in another vehicle, they took him to the rural community of New Hope, about 15 miles southeast of here.

Showed No Emotion

During the 15-minute service, which was held in a small, white funeral home, the youth showed no emotion as he sat in a front-row pew handcuffed to a trooper.

The Rev. Charles Arthur Smith, a Methodist minister, conducted the ceremony before about 50 relatives and friends of the family. The time of the funeral had been kept secret to keep away curiosity seekers.

John, who attended the service at his own request, did not go to the Kelloggsville Rural Cemetery where the family was buried.

Only one hearse was available and it had to make four round trips to the cemetery, about two miles from New Hope.

Killed by Shotgun

Willis Jayne, 66; his wife Amber, 55; their son Willard, 19, and daughter Elizabeth Anne, 13, were cut down by shotgun blasts last Wednesday at the family's farm home about four miles from New Hope.

State police have reported that John admitted the killing after brooding over what he considered unfair treatment.

The district attorney's office here has said the case would be the first to go before the grand jurors when they convened for a regular session today.

Javits Would Aid Railroad Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Railroads would be able to take advantage of tax relief granted by cities, counties or states under a bill backed by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY).

Javits said Sunday the New York State Public Service Commission has recommended that Congress pass such a bill and thus help solve the financial problem of railroad passenger service.

Javits said he would introduce the bill today with Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) as a cosponsor.

"This legislation would amend the Internal Revenue Code to assure that tax relief granted by states and municipalities to railroads operating commuter services at a loss would directly benefit the railroads and not be absorbed by increased federal taxes," Javits said.

The New York Commission also has recommended that Congress enact legislation to eliminate the 10 per cent federal tax on passenger fares. Bills to eliminate the tax have been introduced.

Bill Introduced For Registration Of Private Eyes

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A bill to be introduced in the Legislature today would set up a registration system for employes of licensed private investigators.

Assemblyman Anthony P. Savarese (R-Queens) said Sunday the measure was designed to clean shady characters out of the private detective business.

Savarese is chairman of the Joint Committee on Privacy of Communications and Licensure of Private Investigators.

In some cases now, he said, licensees act as fronts for undesirable "employes."

The bill empowers the secretary of state to set standards of character and conduct for the employes, similar to those applying to licensees.

News Deliverers Vote Contracts in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Union deliverers voted today on new contracts with wholesale companies that handle newspapers in New York City and the suburbs.

Ratification of the contracts in the secret balloting was expected.

Details of two settlements affecting about 1,700 drivers and others were presented to union members at a meeting Sunday. About 800 attended.

Asher Schwartz, attorney for the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union, reported that sentiment among the men favored acceptance of the terms.

The wholesalers involved in the settlements handle deliveries for the seven major Manhattan daily newspapers; The Long Island Press and the Long Island Star Journal, both published in Queens; all foreign language newspapers and trade newspapers except Women's Wear Daily.

The settlement was basically for a $7 weekly package increase over a two-year period. This was similar to the one accepted by the union after the 19 - day strike against New York City newspapers in December. The union group that struck is not the same as the one involved in the new contracts being voted on today. The strikers were employed directly by the newspapers.

Auburn Youth's Case Goes to GJ

AUBURN, N. Y. (AP)—A Cayuga County grand jury convened today to consider the case against a teen-ager accused of killing his parents, brother and sister.

John Jayne, 16, who is charged with first - degree murder, was back in the county jail here after attending the funeral service for his family Saturday.

The husky high school sophomore was escorted to and from the jail by two troopers in plainclothes. Using an unmarked police car, while two more troopers followed in another vehicle, they took him to the rural community of New Hope, about 15 miles southeast of here.

Showed No Emotion

During the 15-minute service, which was held in a small, white funeral home, the youth showed no emotion as he sat in a front-row pew handcuffed to a trooper.

The Rev. Charles Arthur Smith, a Methodist minister, conducted the ceremony before about 50 relatives and friends of the family. The time of the funeral had been kept secret to keep away curiosity seekers.

John, who attended the service at his own request, did not go to the Kelloggsville Rural Cemetery where the family was buried.

Only one hearse was available and it had to make four round trips to the cemetery, about two miles from New Hope.

Killed by Shotgun

Willis Jayne, 66; his wife Amber, 55; their son Willard, 19, and daughter Elizabeth Anne, 13, were cut down by shotgun blasts last Wednesday at the family's farm home about four miles from New Hope.

State police have reported that John admitted the killing after brooding over what he considered unfair treatment.

The district attorney's office here has said the case would be the first to go before the grand jurors when they convened for a regular session today.

School Absence Seen Early Stage Of Delinquency

BROOKLYN — Declaring that chronic absence from school is the embryonic stage of delinquency, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt called for a considered attack on truancy as a means of preventing youthful misconduct.

Speaking at a Citizens' Legislative Council on Juvenile Delinquency held Saturday at Brooklyn Law School, Levitt said, "Case histories of most juvenile delinquents show a record of continued absence from school as early as the first grade. I believe if we can root out the causes of truancy and instill a desire for education we can, in many instances, prevent a child from becoming a delinquent."

Levitt continued, "Unfortunately, most people do not regard willful absence from school as anything very serious. But for a future delinquent truancy is more than a mere sympton—it is also an overt act of defiance. By 'getting away' with his unlawful absence, the child is rewarded and encouraged in waywardness."

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — A two-cent-a-pack raise in the cigarette tax and a new 15 per cent tax on tobacco and cigars at the wholesale level is expected to bring 49 million dollars more a year into the state till.

The cigarette tax now is three cents a pack.

Gov. Rockefeller, in his budget message today, asked the Legislature to approve the additional levies and reported that the outlook for the year ahead was for a "moderate increase in cigarette consumption."

The state will take in about 67½-million from the cigarette tax in fiscal 1958-59. This will jump to 116½ million if the combined cigarette-tobacco levies are approved for fiscal 1959-60.

The budget message did not spell out the new tobacco tax, but Rockefeller told reporters at a budget briefing that it would be collected at the distributor level.

The cigarette-tax legislation, he said, will make clear it is intended that consumers may deduct cigarette tax costs under the federal income tax.

This was done, he said, because previously there has been some confusion over whether the tax was levied on consumers or distributors.

Survey Poisons

VANCOUVER, (AP)—A survey of accidental poisoning cases has been undertaken for the first time in British Columbia. Dr. John Dean, director of Vancouver General Hospital Poison Control Center, said: "We want to be able to warn parents of the most likely circumstances under which poisonings happen."

County Historical Society Meets to Plan '59 Activity

Planning for the new year's activities was the main topic of discussion at the meeting last week of the Ulster County Historical Society at Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Howard Lewis of Kingston, chairman, presided.

The society open to membership in all parts of the county is drafting plans for a banner year during the Year of History celebration, it was announced.

Begin in April

Beginning in April the society holds monthly meetings at its headquarters in Marbletown, a central location for the county. Interesting speakers and exhibitions of antique articles will be presented by the program committee, Mrs. Herbert Cutler of Kingston, is chairman. A tea which follows the meeting affords opportunity for members from different sections to meet each other.

The historical committee under the chairmanship of Kenneth Hasbrouck, New Paltz, welcomes persons interested in doing research and the acquisition committee, Charles G. Ellis, Kingston, chairman seeks those who have knowledge of antique furnishings and decorations. Each year a field trip is taken to points of historic interest.

In this county, historically one of the most important in the state with its more than 100 old Dutch houses still perfectly preserved, the society offers to all those interested in the fine traditions of the American past an opportunity to extend their knowledge and join in efforts to promote interest in and service to the preservation of our early background.

Committee Is Enlarged

In the past year the membership committee has been enlarged to provide representatives in different parts of the county.

Mrs. Lewis has announced her committee as follows: Miss Eleanor Easton, Kingston; Mrs. William Haggerty, New Paltz; Miss Isabel Overbagh, Saugerties; Mrs. Francis L. Steenken, Malden-on-Hudson; Mrs. M. C. Van Keuren, Ellenville; Mrs. William Warren Hurley; Mr. Myron S. Teller, Ulster County.

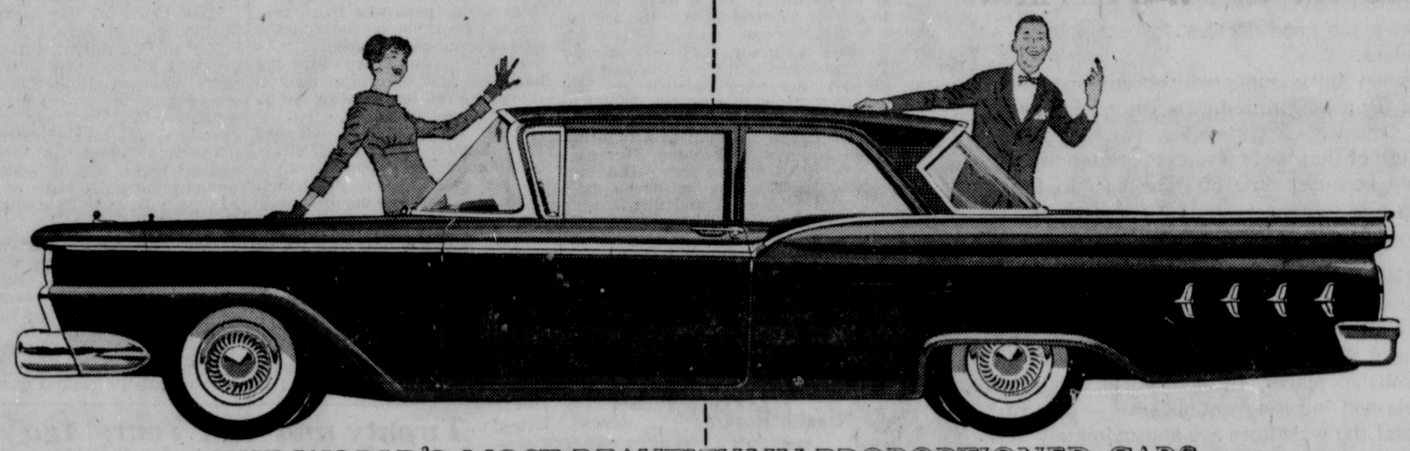

It is hoped that persons interested in joining the society will contact their local representatives.

School Absence Seen Early Stage Of Delinquency

BROOKLYN — Declaring that chronic absence from school is the embryonic stage of delinquency, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt called for a considered attack on truancy as a means of preventing youthful misconduct.

Speaking at a Citizens' Legislative Council on Juvenile Delinquency held Saturday at Brooklyn Law School, Levitt said, "Case histories of most juvenile delinquents show a record of continued absence from school as early as the first grade. I believe if we can root out the causes of truancy and instill a desire for education we can, in many instances, prevent a child from becoming a delinquent."

Levitt continued, "Unfortunately, most people do not regard willful absence from school as anything very serious. But for a future delinquent truancy is more than a mere sympton—it is also an overt act of defiance. By 'getting away' with his unlawful absence, the child is rewarded and encouraged in waywardness."

Smokes Hike Yield Seen $49 Million

A BRAIN IS A BRAIN

Not long ago a distinguished woman scientist declared that female brain power is the greatest untapped natural resource in this country. It is not hard to find evidence that supports this contention.

There is no implication, here, that women do not use their brains in those activities—homemaking, notably—to which most of them devote their lives. Running an efficient household and dealing with the manifold problems of child development require more thought, of a higher order, than many a nine-to-five job. Teaching, a field dominated by women, demands as much brain power as any other profession.

Many educators have noted, however, that women tend not to use their full mental capacity. Tradition encourages them to specialize in subjects allegedly more "feminine" than, say, mathematics and science.

Only about five and a half per cent of U. S. medical students are women. When it comes to engineering, traditionally a male occupation, women students comprise less than one per cent of the total. Although there is no reason for us to pattern our system after Russia's, it is at least worth noting that 39 per cent of Soviet engineering students and 69 per cent of medical students are women.

If women are simply not interested in medicine and science, that is one thing. But if they shy away from a field because tradition says it is not "feminine," then there is something wrong. The notion that women do not make good doctors, for example, is ridiculous.

Women have supposedly been emancipated for a long time in the United States. It is time we stopped failing to make the best use of that basic resource, brain power, simply because some of it belongs to the ladies.

WELCOME FASHIONS

It is a relief to observe that many of the new women's fashions look more or less like clothes again. Some of them do seem to have flippant details, such as capes in improbable places, balloon skirts, floating panels and inconsequential bows — but in general the waistlines are approximately at the waist, the shoulder line somewhere near the shoulder.

They are returning to a form somewhat similar to the human form, as fashions usually do after an outburst of free and irrelevant design. The design of human beings does not change much through the ages. The clothes designers who accept it and enhance it are more popular in the long run than those who ignore it or defy it, however flamboyantly.

Sometimes an underdog is merely one whose bite is worse than his bark.

A writer asserts that there are fewer great men in this era than in the past. But after awhile this will be the past—and then some men will seem great.

IT'S RISKY WORK

Customs change, even in crime. Consider the bank holdup. Back in the depression-ridden '30s this was a job for gangland professionals out for big money. Now it is largely a one-man operation with the "take" no more than a few hundred dollars. In a recent case, for instance, the culprit was a little old lady who passed a note to a teller warning him to hand over the money or have acid thrown in his face.

The American Bankers Association says that the solitary robber, who often boasts no previous criminal record, accounts for eight out of 10 bank robberies. The theory of some of those concerned with bank protection is that there is a contagion in particular crimes, which often reaches epidemic proportions, and that this type of robbery will spread and wane in a cycle.

Countermeasures suited to the character of the crime defeated bank holdups in the '30s, with banks installing better protective and alarm systems. New measures are being taken also to thwart the note-bearing bandit, and one of every three is now caught. This is high risk for little money, and the risk is sure to get higher.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS

Whenever a political party suffers a signal defeat, some group sets out to steal the organization as a mechanism of political advancement, patronage and influence. That is what is happening in New York State among the Democrats at this moment. Neither party in this vast population stands for a distinctive principle; it is all about personalities.

The defeat of the Democrats headed by Governon Harriman, in the last election, was most unusual, first, because the state is growing increasingly Democratic; secondly, because Harriman had made a petty good Governor although he is a very dull person; and thirdly, because the trend across the nation and in all adjacent states was Democratic.

The explanation for the phenomenon given by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Senator Herbert Lehman is that the defeat was a revolt against bossism and particularly against Carmine DeSapio. This is a calculated political falsehood designed to achieve an Americans for Democratic Action victory. The third members of the fighting triumvirate is Thomas K. Finletter, formerly Secretary of the Air Force under President Truman, politically ambitious but hardly known to the voters of New York.

The truth of the matter is:

1. Nelson Rockefeller proved to be a more dynamic candidate for the Governorship than Averell Harriman, who particularly on television appeared to be old and even doddering;

2. The fight against James A. Farley for U. S. Senator led by Averell Harriman and Carmine DeSapio created resentment beyond the normal partisan response to such matters. It was felt that of all the persons whose names were mentioned Farley was the most deserving, had done most for the Democratic Party and that he was most likely to win. This was no reflection on Frank Hogan, a younger man who could have another opportunity. The principal opponents of Farley were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Senator Herbert Lehman, Tom Finletter, Averell Harriman and the A.D.A. It is held, even by some of his supporters, that DeSapio erred in going along with this group, particularly now that they are blaming him for a decision which they initiated, although they desired the nomination for Finletter;

3. The organized labor union vote, which heretofore has always supported Democratic candidates for high state offices, went to Nelson Rockefeller whose association with such labor leaders as David Dubinsky has always been personally close.

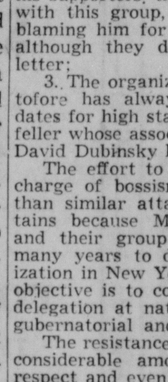

The effort to unseat Carmine DeSapio on the charge of bossism makes less of an impression than similar attacks on former Tammany chieftains because Mrs. Roosevelt, Herbert Lehman and their group have been making efforts for many years to dominate the Democratic organization in New York State, with no success. Their objective is to control the large New York State delegation at national conventions and to choose gubernatorial and Senatorial candidates.

The resistance to Mrs. Roosevelt is surprisingly considerable among Democratic politicians who respect and even admire her but who cannot follow her Leftish tendencies and her support of her sons who are not generally favored. Her persistent effort to be regarded as an elder statesman leaves the practical politician cold. He would like to pay homage to her as a great lady without wondering about what she has up her sleeve. It is known that she dislikes DeSapio because he and another Democratic county leader prevented Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., from being nominated for Governor of New York in 1954, getting the nomination for Averell Harriman. Politicians do not like to see a split in their party growing out of personal vindictiveness.

Senator Herbert Lehman is respected for his years, his character and his standing in the community. But it is generally felt that his day is done and that his influence would be greater if he were not so closely associated with the Leftish A.D.A. which is not popular among New York Democrats. Herbert Lehman's influence among the Democratic leadership is not very telling.

The matter is further complicated by the ambition of Adlai Stevenson to run for President for the third time. The Democrats are afraid of a William Jennings Bryan reaction to a two-time loser. They would prefer a fresh name. Stevenson is popular in New York among the A.D.A. and certain intellectual groups, but he never made much of an appeal to the rank and file. The attempt to get the New York delegation for Adlai Stevenson for the 1960 convention is bound to fail no matter what happens to Carmen DeSapio.

Welder's 'Sunburn' Is Example of Present-Day Health Hazards

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

We live in an expanding industrial society. Consequently, problems in this area are becoming increasingly important.

Q—My husband does a considerable amount of welding. Afterwards he has a red triangle on his neck where he buttons his collar. After repeated "burns" in this exposed area couldn't there be harmful effects?—Mrs. L. J.

A—It certainly cannot be considered good to be burned in this manner. The skin would undoubtedly be harmed over a period of time. Some effort should be made immediately to have the area examined and also to protect your husband's skin against future burning.

Q—Is diabetes contagious?—R. B.

A—No, neither by direct contact nor in any other manner.

Q—Is it true that people with low blood sugar are of the nervous type, and that this tenseness causes too much insulin in the system?—S. B.

A—This is a good question, but virtually impossible to answer on the basis of present knowledge. It seems probable, however, that there are some other factors at work in most people with low blood sugar besides "nervousness" or "emotional tension."

The presence of persistently low blood sugar should call for investigation and probably treatment. The most common variety of this condition generally requires frequent feedings of high protein meals.

Q—Should there be a special diet for a person who has an enlarged liver, presumably caused by malaria?—R. S.

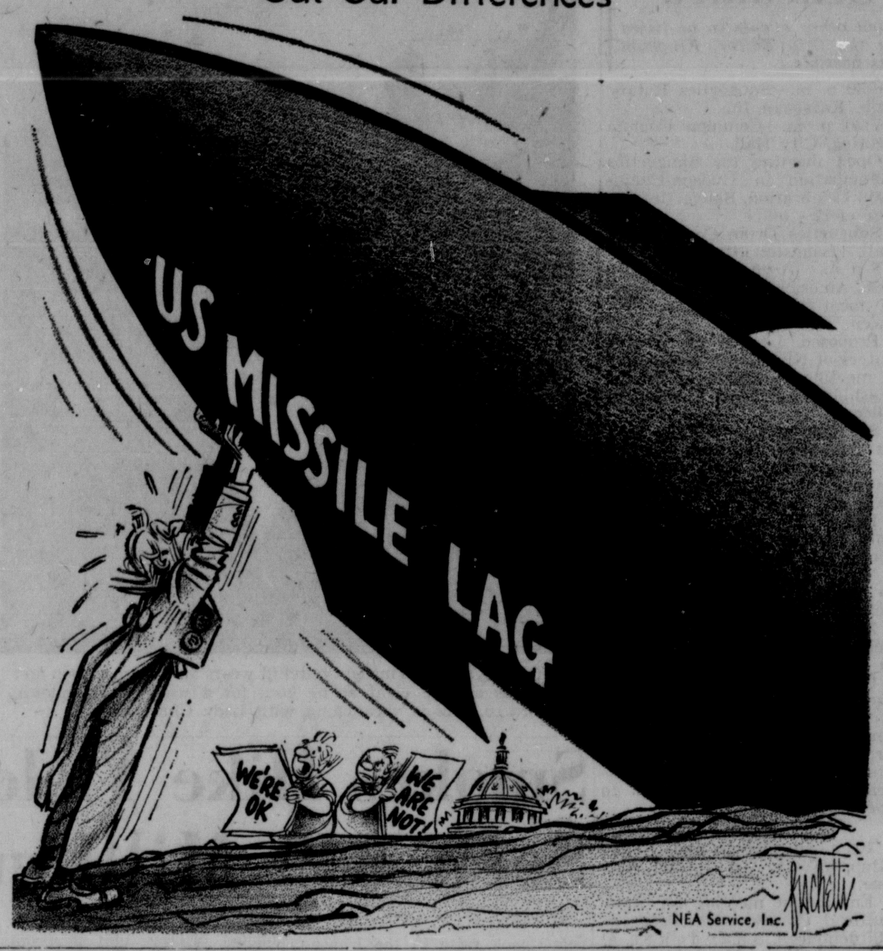

A—To answer this requires more information. It is possible that analysis of all the factors might result in advice to eat a special diet, perhaps particularly one low in fatty foods.. This, however, can only be decided after careful investigation of all the facts.

Q—What causes my hands to itch and break out in white welts whenever any unusual pressure is made on the skin, such as when opening canned goods?—Mrs. M. S.

A—This is rather unusual, but sounds like a kind of allergy to pressure. It may be somewhat similar to the condition known as skin writing, or dermatographism, in which the skin develops red or white ridges if scratched with, say, a fingernail or sharp object.

There is probably no effective treatment of this condition other than to avoid those circumstances which bring about the itching and breaking out, insofar as that is possible.

Washington News

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Eisenhower administration proposals to boost interest rates on Rural Electrification Administration loans and to tax co-operatives' savings certificates will hit some 13 million families who are co-op members, in a small way.

These measures will reduce government costs a few million dollars here and there. But claims that they will yield hundreds of millions of dollars are exaggerated.

This is a battle that small private business organizations have been waging against the co-ops for years. But the co-ops are sacred cows in the political green pastures of farm-state congressmen. So chances of change are dim.

When REA and the co-op movement were getting their first big growth in the early New Deal days, there was more reason to give them special benefits and government subsidy.

But the co-ops are now big business. And the job of electrifying the nation's farms is 95 per cent completed.

REA co-ops have extended their lines to many small cities. Their commercial power load is 10 per cent bigger than their farm load. So they compete with private power.

THE FIRST GOVERNMENT LOANS to REA co-ops carried 3 per cent interest. That was dropped to a legal limit of 2 per cent in 1945.

Until 1949, the average interest rate paid by the government on money it borrowed was under 2 per cent. From then until 1955 it was right around 2 per cent.

So there was no government subsidy or loss on REA loans.

Since 1955, however, government has had to pay higher interest rates on money it borrowed. Rates have averaged from 1 to 2½ per cent on marketable securities, from 2 to nearly 3 per cent on unmarketable securities. The current cost of long-term money is 4 per cent.

So the government takes a loss on money reloaned to REA co-ops. This explains the pressure to raise rates.

IN ADDITION TO THIS, President Eisenhower has proposed to Congress that REA loan repayments—currently about 105 million dollars a year—be put in a revolving fund to finance new loans. He further recommends that REA co-ops begin to borrow money from private sources for future expansion. This would eliminate the need for annual appropriations of government money.

REA loans for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 are estimated at 325 million dollars. So even a 1 per cent rise in interest rates charged REA borrowers would save the government 3.25 million dollars. A 2 per cent increase would save payments on 6.5 million. Interest payments on nearly three billion dollars in outstanding REA loans at 2 per cent will be over 58 million dollars in fiscal 1960.

National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn., of which ex-Congressman Clyde Ellis of Arkansas is executive secretary, is fighting these changes bitterly. One argument is that the higher interest rates would raise co-op power rates. That plus having to borrow private capital would enable private power companies to compete with and get control of co-ops.

There are now nearly 1,000 REA co-ops with over four million members and an annual business of 450 million dollars.

PRINCIPAL EFFECT of the proposed tax on co-operative saving certificates would fall on the 10,000 farmers' producing and marketing co-ops which do a 9.5-billion-dollar annual business. But other business-type co-ops would be hit.

A 1951 law intended to make all profits from co-ops taxable. But court decisions have held that co-op earnings reinvested in the enterprise are not taxable until savings certificates covering these profits are cashed in by members.

The Treasury now proposes that such certificates be made tax-free for three years only. After that they would be taxed as corporate income received by the co-op and as personal income received by its members.

A 1954 Department of Agriculture survey indicated 150 million dollars was retained by farmer co-ops for reinvestment and to pay off old certificates. Taxes on such an amount would run from 12 to 30 million dollars.

Ex-Congressman Jerry Voorhis of California, now executive secretary of the Co-operative League, says such taxes would "destroy the principal means that co-op members have found to finance their business, and in this process destroy the co-ops themselves."

Forced Integration Seen Leading to New Frictions

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—"Massive resistance"—designed to prevent by state laws any "integration" in the public schools—now has given way in Virginia. But when will "massive conformity"—the Federal alternative—be accomplished?

Nowhere as yet in the United States has "massive conformity" really been adopted, though the Supreme Court of the United States, by its 1954 decision, has laid down as the assumed "law of the land" the doctrine that every Negro student, in order to get a good education, must get the benefit of admission to classes in which there are white pupils.

"Token integration" violates the edict of the Supreme Court of the United States because it takes care of only a few Negro pupils. In North Carolina, for example—where 314,000 Negro children are enrolled in public schools—there are today fewer than fifteen Negroes attending classes with white pupils. Yet North Carolina is frequently praised in the press as the state that has handled the "integration" question successfully.

It's only a matter of time, of course, before the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which calls the turn in the courts, will logically insist that all states accept "massive conformity." All that's necessary is the filing of a few lawsuits, and the Federal judges will promptly order compliance.

New York City Cited

Even New York City is failing to obey the "law of the land." Judge Polier, in a city court preceeding the other day, held Negro parents blameless for disregarding the compulsory-education law by withdrawing their children from public schools, alleged to be inferior in quality of teaching, and keeping them at home. It so happens that, in predominantly Negro schools in New York, white teachers are difficult to get on a permanent basis because they prefer other assignments. The judge held that "de facto racial segregation exists in the junior high schools in New York City."

One Alternative Seen

Under "pupil assignment" laws, of course—such as Alabama has passed, and which the Supreme Court has held to be Constitutional "on its face"—the local school boards can use a variety of criteria and exclude any applicant, provided it isn't openly on racial grounds. It's only a question of time, however, before this, too, may be struck down by the Federal courts as a subterfuge.

Perhaps the most enlightened as well as realistic view on the future of the "integration" question so far as public schools are concerned has been expressed by the Assistant Attorney General of Florida, Ralph E. Odum. He has been pointing out for some time now that the only legal alternative to "integrated" public schools is a private-school system with tuition grants enabling the parent to turn away from public schools.

Grants Called Legal

It seems a foregone conclusion that several states will soon find themselves with an inferior public-school system due to transfer of teachers and the divided interest of communities with large numbers of children attending private schools. Tuition grants are constitutional so long as the state doesn't choose the school for the parent. This principle was adopted by Congress in the G. I. Bill of Rights, under which the veteran could pick his own educational institution and get a direct grant from the Federal government.

The continuing conflict of view among citizens on the "integration" question will not be confined to the South. As population grows and as more school facilities must be built everywhere, many residential areas which are today relatively free from friction over the "integration" problem will find the pressure for "massive conformity" a growing source of discontent.

Issue Likened to Prohibition

"Massive conformity" was tried when the manufacture, sale and transportation of alcoholic beverages was prohibited throughout the United States. This was done not by a Supreme Court decision but by the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, adopted in 1919 by two-thirds of both houses of Congress and three-fourths of the state legislatures. Gradually the attempt at "massive conformity" gave way, however, to "massive resistance" by the people. It took fourteen years for the agitation to come to a climax, but, when it did, the whole process of repeal — after Congress acted—took a little less than ten months. The states actually voted in state constitutional conventions to bring about in 1933 the ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment, which gives each state today the right to control its own liquor traffic.

What May Happen

It was not the debate over the right or wrong of drinking itself which was decisive in bringing about repeal, but the collateral effects of the controversy such as bootlegging, gangsterism, increase in dope traffic and vice. So with respect to school "integration"—as already revealed in the big cities of the North, including voteless Washington—juvenile delinquency, the increase in illegitimate births among school-age girls and the emergence of emotional issues having little to do with the merits of education or "equality" of status of individuals may finally decide the controversy in the next decade. It could bring a wave of feeling that "local option"—the right of each state to handle its own educational problems — is again the answer to a question of sociology as raised by the Supreme Court.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

On the night of Nov. 5, 1958, Ben Hecht broadcast on Channel 7, WABC-TV, New York, a shocking expression of hatred for the entire German people which he justified in part, although not altogether, by a recital of a horror which he said he had observed with his own eyes in Berlin at some vague time in 1919 or 1920. Hecht said among other statements, "I saw 2,000 men, women and kids brought out, handcuffed together in groups of four. The 2,000 were prisoners. . . . They hadn't been tried, but on this night they were all killed. They were executed by four machine guns that went after them as they walked up and down the prison yard."

Since then, I have received from a reliable professional research librarian and journalist text from articles which Hecht filed to his paper of that time, the Chicago Daily News, which reduces the figure of 2,000 to 200, contains no reference to "kids," and reduces the number of women to four. However, the story in the News does not claim that Hecht saw any of these 200 persons actually put to death.

In the TV broadcast, Hecht said that about one o'clock in the morning he climbed a tree outside the yard of Moabit Prison and with an opera glass "was able to overlook the yard." He said, I stayed there two or three hours and while I was there I saw 2,000 men, women and kids" and so forth as above.

The news article under Ben's name says nothing about a tree or an opera glass, but it does report that he asked "a lad whom I recognized as one of the men in charge of the guard at the Adlon Hotel 'what has happened?'" And that the young man whispered, "220 men — all men and all Germans. We stood them up and we made them pass in front of the machine guns. Did you hear the howling? They fell like dominoes, two by two."

In the article, Ben intimated that these persons were Communists although that early in the Communist world revolution the term "Communist" was not agreed upon as the general label for such revolutionists. Accordingly, in describing the efforts of the improvised patriotic government to put down the Russian terror within Germany, Hecht said "the government is still fighting the mob army of spartacans, workers, marines and Red guards."

He said the prisoners who entered the prison yard between files of government soldiers and who presumably were put to death, "had been captured by the soldiers in their clean-up of the working men's sectors of the city." It is historic fact that the Spartacans, as Hecht called them, more generally known to history as Spartacists, were members of the treasonous Communist movement. The leaders were Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht, historic Communist revolutionists. Both were killed in revolutionary action in Berlin, possibly under the Ley de Fuega whereby prisoners are told to run and then are shot in flight. The term "workers" was a familiar Communist label of those days, as in the "workers and soldiers' councils" of Petrograd.

The "marines" referred to probably were taken in the revolution at Kiel were marines of the German navy were the prime movers of the insurrection. Just why the marines, an elite corps of the navy, proved so useful to the Russian revolution history has offered no positive reason. The term "Red guards" as used here by Hecht surely requires no explanation. They were Reds who were shooting loyal German citizens and soldiers and the Ebert government was shooting back.

Having checked Ben's stories in the Chicago Daily News — he said they ran in 90 other papers —I phoned him here in New York on Jan. 2, this year.

Ben then admitted that he had not seen anyone shot in Moabit Yard and said that although he did climb a tree half a block away with a field glass, not an opera glass, he saw nothing but some flashes as of rifle fire. It was a very dark night. In the story he seems to be close by the yard and the scene begins sunny in full daylight. In this phone conversation on Jan. 2, Ben said "they were all Commies — all captured in the phony Alexanderplatz battle." He also said the year was 1918, but he must be wrong because Germany's armies were still fighting until Nov. 11, 1918. He may have meant 1919.

"If I said I saw 2,000 killed I was not telling the truth," Ben said. "A month later a guy named Hugo Haase, a Socialist to the left of the Democratic-Socialist government, made the statement before the parliament of the Weimar government giving 2,000 names. That figure came from the count of Hugo Hasse."

In that broadcast of last Nov. 5, Hecht said, "I have a hatred for Germans with their fat necks and no ankles and a cold spot in their heart that only murder can warm. . . . As long as I live I'm going to have a lime kiln in my head for the Germans. The Germans that night were happy to exercise their two favorite talents. One, docility and, two, mass murder. Good night."

A BRAIN IS A BRAIN

Not long ago a distinguished woman scientist declared that female brain power is the greatest untapped natural resource in this country. It is not hard to find evidence that supports this contention.

There is no implication, here, that women do not use their brains in those activities—homemaking, notably — to which most of them devote their lives. Running an efficient household and dealing with the manifold problems of child development require more thought, of a higher order, than many a nine-to-five job. Teaching, a field dominated by women, demands as much brain power as any other profession.

Many educators have noted, however, that women tend not to use their full mental capacity. Tradition encourages them to specialize in subjects allegedly more "feminine" than, say, mathematics and science.

Only about five and a half per cent of U. S. medical students are women. When it comes to engineering, traditionally a male occupation, women students comprise less than one per cent of the total. Although there is no reason for us to pattern our system after Russia's, it is at least worth noting that 39 per cent of Soviet engineering students and 69 per cent of medical students are women.

If women are simply not interested in medicine and science, that is one thing. But if they shy away from a field because tradition says it is not "feminine," then there is something wrong. The notion that women do not make good doctors, for example, is ridiculous.

Women have supposedly been emancipated for a long time in the United States. It is time we stopped failing to make the best use of that basic resource, brain power, simply because some of it belongs to the ladies.

WELCOME FASHIONS

It is a relief to observe that many of the new women's fashions look more or less like clothes again. Some of them do seem to have flippant details, such as capes in improbable places, balloon skirts, floating panels and inconsequential bows — but in general the waistlines are approximately at the waist, the shoulder line somewhere near the shoulder.

They are returning to a form somewhat similar to the human form, as fashions usually do after an outburst of free and irrelevant design. The design of human beings does not change much through the ages. The clothes designers who accept it and enhance it are more popular in the long run than those who ignore it or defy it, however flamboyantly.

Sometimes an underdog is merely one whose bite is worse than his bark.

A writer asserts that there are fewer great men in this era than in the past. But after awhile this will be the past—and then some men will seem great.

IT'S RISKY WORK

Customs change, even in crime. Consider the bank holdup. Back in the depression-ridden '30s this was a job for gangland professionals out for big money. Now it is largely a one-man operation with the "take" no more than a few hundred dollars. In a recent case, for instance, the culprit was a little old lady who passed a note to a teller warning him to hand over the money or have acid thrown in his face.

The American Bankers Association says that the solitary robber, who often boasts no previous criminal record, accounts for eight out of 10 bank robberies. The theory of some of those concerned with bank protection is that there is a contagion in particular crimes, which often reaches epidemic proportions, and that this type of robbery will spread and wane in a cycle.

Countermeasures suited to the character of the crime defeated bank holdups in the '30s, with banks installing better protective and alarm systems. New measures are being taken also to thwart the note-bearing bandit, and one of every three is now caught. This is high risk for little money, and the risk is sure to get higher.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS

Whenever a political party suffers a signal defeat, some group sets out to steal the organization as a mechanism of political advancement, patronage and influence. That is what is happening in New York State among the Democrats at this moment. Neither party in this vast population stands for a distinctive principle; it is all about personalities.

The defeat of the Democrats headed by Governon Harriman, in the last election, was most unusual, first, because the state is growing increasingly Democratic; secondly, because Harriman had made a petty good Governor although he is a very dull person; and thirdly because the trend across the nation and in all adjacent states was Democratic.

The explanation for the phenomenon given by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Senator Herbert Lehman is that the defeat was a revolt against bossism and particularly against Carmine DeSapio. This is a calculated political falsehood designed to achieve an Americans for Democratic Action victory. The third members of the fighting triumvirate is Thomas K. Finletter, formerly Secretary of the Air Force under President Truman, politically ambitious but hardly known to the voters of New York.

The truth of the matter is:

1. Nelson Rockefeller proved to be a more dynamic candidate for the Governorship than Averell Harriman, who particularly on television appeared to be old and even doddering;

2. The fight against James A. Farley for U. S. Senator led by Averell Harriman and Carmine DeSapio created resentment beyond the normal partisan response to such matters. It was felt that of all the persons whose names were mentioned Farley was the most deserving, had done most for the Democratic Party and that he was most likely to win. This was no reflection on Frank Hogan, a younger man who could have another opportunity. The principal opponents of Farley were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Senator Herbert Lehman, Tom Finletter, Averell Harriman and the A.D.A. It is held, even by some of his supporters, that DeSapio erred in going along with this group, particularly now that they are blaming him for a decision which they initiated, although they desired the nomination for Finletter;

3. The organized labor union vote, which heretofore has always supported Democratic candidates for high state offices, went to Nelson Rockefeller whose association with such labor leaders as David Dubinsky has always been personally close.

The effort to unseat Carmine DeSapio on the charge of bossism makes less of an impression than similar attacks on former Tammany chieftains because Mrs. Roosevelt, Herbert Lehman and their group have been making efforts for many years to dominate the Democratic organization in New York State, with no success. Their objective is to control the large New York State delegation at national conventions and to choose gubernatorial and Senatorial candidates.

The resistance to Mrs. Roosevelt is surprisingly considerable among Democratic politicians who respect and even admire her but who cannot follow her Leftish tendencies and her support of her sons who are not generally favored. Her persistent effort to be regarded as an elder statesman leaves the practical politician cold. He would like to pay homage to her as a great lady without wondering about what she has up her sleeve. It is known that she dislikes DeSapio because he and another Democratic county leader prevented Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., from being nominated for Governor of New York in 1954, getting the nomination for Averell Harriman. Politicians do not like to see a split in their party growing out of personal vindictiveness.

Senator Herbert Lehman is respected for his years, his character and his standing in the community. But it is generally felt that his day is done and that his influence would be greater if he were not so closely associated with the Leftish A.D.A. which is not popular among New York Democrats. Herbert Lehman's influence among the Democratic leadership is not very telling.

The matter is further complicated by the ambition of Adlai Stevenson to run for President for the third time. The Democrats are afraid of a William Jennings Bryan reaction to a two-time loser. They would prefer a fresh name. Stevenson is popular in New York among the A.D.A. and certain intellectual groups, but he never made much of an appeal to the rank and file. The attempt to get the New York delegation for Adlai Stevenson for the 1960 convention is bound to fail no matter what happens to Carmen DeSapio.

"Hold It Awhile Sam, While We Iron Out Our Differences"

Washington News

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Eisenhower administration proposals to boost interest rates on Rural Electrification Administration loans and to tax co-operatives' savings certificates will hit some 13 million families who are co-op members, in a small way.

These measures will reduce government costs a few million dollars here and there. But claims that they will yield hundreds of millions of dollars are exaggerated.

This is a battle that small private business organizations have been waging against the co-ops for years. But the co-ops are sacred cows in the political green pastures of farm-state congressmen. So chances of change are dim.

When REA and the co-op movement were getting their first big growth in the early New Deal days, there was more reason to give them special benefits and government subsidy.

But the co-ops are now big business. And the job of electrifying the nation's farms is 95 per cent completed.

REA co-ops have extended their lines to many small cities. Their commercial power load is 10 per cent bigger than their farm load. So they compete with private power.

THE FIRST GOVERNMENT LOANS to REA co-ops carried 3 per cent interest. That was dropped to a legal limit of 2 per cent in 1945.

Until 1949, the average interest rate paid by the government on money it borrowed was under 2 per cent. From then until 1955 it was right around 2 per cent.

So there was no government subsidy or loss on REA loans.

Since 1955, however, government has had to pay higher interest rates on money it borrowed. Rates have averaged from 1 to 2½ per cent on marketable securities, from 2 to nearly 3 per cent on unmarketable securities. The current cost of long-term money is 4 per cent.

Welder's 'Sunburn' Is Example of Present-Day Health Hazards

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

We live in an expanding industrial society. Consequently, problems in this area are becoming increasingly important.

Q—My husband does a considerable amount of welding. Afterwards he has a red triangle on his neck where he buttons his collar. After repeated "burns" in this exposed area couldn't there be harmful effects?—Mrs. L. J.

A—It certainly cannot be considered good to be burned in this manner. The skin would undoubtedly be harmed over a period of time. Some effort should be made immediately to have the area examined and also to protect your husband's skin against future burning.

Q—Is diabetes contagious?—R. B.

A—No, neither by direct contact nor in any other manner.

Q—Is it true that people with low blood sugar are of the nervous type, and that this tenseness causes too much insulin in the system?—S. B.

A—This is a good question, but virtually impossible to answer on the basis of present knowledge. It seems probable, however, that there are some other factors at work in most people with low blood sugar besides "nervousness" or "emotional tension."

The presence of persistently low blood sugar should call for investigation and probably treatment. The most common variety of this condition generally requires frequent feedings of high protein meals.

Q—Should there be a special diet for a person who has an enlarged liver, presumably caused by malaria?—R. S.

A—To answer this requires more information. It is possible that analysis of all the factors might result in advice to eat a special diet, perhaps particularly one low in fatty foods.. This, however, can only be decided after careful investigation of all the facts.

Q—What causes my hands to itch and break out in white welts whenever any unusual pressure is made on the skin, such as when opening canned goods?—Mrs. M. S.

A—This is rather unusual, but sounds like a kind of allergy to pressure. It may be somewhat similar to the condition known as skin writing, or dermatographism, in which the skin develops red or white ridges if scratched with, say, a fingernail or sharp object.

There is probably no effective treatment of this condition other than to avoid those circumstances which bring about the itching and breaking out, insofar as that is possible.

Grants Called Legal

It seems a foregone conclusion that several states will soon find themselves with an inferior public-school system due to transfer of teachers and the divided interest of communities with large numbers of children attending private schools. Tuition grants are constitutional so long as the state doesn't choose the school for the parent. This principle was adopted by Congress in the G. I. Bill of Rights, under which the veteran could pick his own educational institution and get a direct grant from the Federal government.

The continuing conflict of view among citizens on the "integration" question will not be confined to the South. As population grows and as more school facilities must be built everywhere, many residential areas which are today relatively free from friction over the "integration" problem will find the pressure for "massive conformity" a growing source of discontent.

Issue Likened to Prohibition

"Massive conformity" was tried when the manufacture, sale and transportation of alcoholic beverages was prohibited throughout the United States. This was done not by a Supreme Court decision but by the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, adopted in 1919 by two-thirds of both houses of Congress and three-fourths of the state legislatures. Gradually the attempt at "massive conformity" gave way, however, to "massive resistance" by the people. It took fourteen years for the agitation to come to a climax, but, when it did, the whole process of repeal — after Congress acted—took a little less than ten months. The states actually voted in state constitutional conventions to bring about in 1933 the ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment, which gives each state today the right to control its own liquor traffic.

What May Happen

It was not the debate over the right or wrong of drinking itself which was decisive in bringing about repeal, but the collateral effects of the controversy such as bootlegging, gangsterism, increase in dope traffic and vice. So with respect to school "integration"—as already revealed in the big cities of the North, including voteless Washington—juvenile delinquency, the increase in illegitimate births among school-age girls and the emergence of emotional issues having little to do with the merits of education or "equality" of status of individuals may finally decide the controversy in the next decade. It could bring a wave of feeling that "local option"—the right of each state to handle its own educational problems — is again the answer to a question of sociology as raised by the Supreme Court.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

On the night of Nov. 5, 1958, Ben Hecht broadcast on Channel 7, WABC-TV, New York, a shocking expression of hatred for the entire German people which he justified in part, although not altogether, by a recital of a horror which he said he had observed with his own eyes in Berlin at some vague time in 1919 or 1920. Hecht said among other statements, "I saw 2,000 men, women and kids brought out, handcuffed together in groups of four. The 2,000 were prisoners. . . . They hadn't been tried, but on this night they were all killed. They were executed by four machine guns that went after them as they walked up and down the prison yard."

Since then, I have received from a reliable professional research librarian and journalist text from articles which Hecht filed to his paper of that time, the Chicago Daily News, which reduces the figure of 2,000 to 200, contains no reference to "kids," and reduces the number of women to four. However, the story in the News does not claim that Hecht saw any of these 200 persons actually put to death.

In the TV broadcast, Hecht said that about one o'clock in the morning he climbed a tree outside the yard of Moabit Prison and with an opera glass "was able to overlook the yard." He said, I stayed there two or three hours and while I was there I saw 2,000 men, women and kids" and so forth as above.

The news article under Ben's name says nothing about a tree or an opera glass, but it does report that he asked "a lad whom I recognized as one of the men in charge of the guard at the Adlon Hotel 'what has happened?'" And that the young man whispered, "220 men — all men and all Germans. We stood them up and we made them pass in front of the machine guns. Did you hear the howling? They fell like dominoes, two by two."

In the article, Ben intimated that these persons were Communists although that early in the Communist world revolution the term "Communist" was not agreed upon as the general label for such revolutionists. Accordingly, in describing the efforts of the improvised patriotic government to put down the Russian terror within Germany, Hecht said "the government is still fighting the mob army of spartacans, workers, marines and Red guards."

He said the prisoners who entered the prison yard between files of government soldiers and who presumably were put to death, "had been captured by the soldiers in their clean-up of the working men's sectors of the city." It is historic fact that the Spartacans, as Hecht called them, more generally known to history as Spartacists, were members of the treasonous Communist movement. The leaders were Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht, historic Communist revolutionists. Both were killed in revolutionary action in Berlin, possibly under the Ley de Fuega whereby prisoners are told to run and then are shot in flight. The term "workers" was a familiar Communist label of those days, as in the "workers and soldiers' councils" of Petrograd.

The "marines" referred to probably were taken in the revolution at Kiel were marines of the German navy were the prime movers of the insurrection. Just why the marines, an elite corps of the navy, proved so useful to the Russian revolution history has offered no positive reason. The term "Red guards" as used here by Hecht surely requires no explanation. They were Reds who were shooting loyal German citizens and soldiers and the Ebert government was shooting back.

Having checked Ben's stories in the Chicago Daily News — he said they ran in 90 other papers —I phoned him here in New York on Jan. 2, this year.

Ben then admitted that he had not seen anyone shot in Moabit Yard and said that although he did climb a tree half a block away with a field glass, not an opera glass, he saw nothing but some flashes as of rifle fire. It was a very dark night. In the story he seems to be close by the yard and the scene begins sunny in full daylight. In this phone conversation on Jan. 2, Ben said "they were all Commies — all captured in the phony Alexanderplatz battle." He also said the year was 1918, but he must be wrong because Germany's armies were still fighting until Nov. 11, 1918. He may have meant 1919.

"If I said I saw 2,000 killed I was not telling the truth," Ben said. "A month later a guy named Hugo Haase, a Socialist to the left of the Democratic-Socialist government, made the statement before the parliament of the Weimar government giving 2,000 names. That figure came from the count of Hugo Hasse."

In that broadcast of last Nov. 5, Hecht said, "I have a hatred for Germans with their fat necks and no ankles and a cold spot in their heart that only murder can warm. . . . As long as I live I'm going to have a lime kiln in my head for the Germans. The Germans that night were happy to exercise their two favorite talents. One, docility and, two, mass murder. Good night."

Highlights Of Rocky's 1st Budget

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Following are highlights from Gov. Rockefeller's first annual budget, which he submitted to the Legislature today:

Spending: "In the budget that I am submitting, total expenditures for 1959-60 are estimated at $2,041,000,000 this is $240,000,000 more than in 1958-59."

Income — "With. . .an estimated revenue yield of $1,617,000,000 from our established revenue structure. . .I have concluded that the best plan for meeting the budget gap is $277,000,000 in tax increases; $100,000,000 in bond funds $47,000,000 in capitol construction fund reserves."

Some Savings, Too

Income Tax — "The withholding principle now used under the federal personal income tax. . . should be extended to resident taxpayers (for 1959 income)."

1958 Taxes — "I recommend that 10 per cent of the 1958 state personal income tax be completely forgiven. This will save the taxpayers of the state more than $500,000,000."

Income Tax exemptions — "It is proposed that a uniform exemption of $600 for each member of the family be established. . .While (this) reduces the present combined amount for a husband and a wife, it increases the amount for each dependent from $400 to $600 and thus provides an element of tax relief to large families."

State aid to local communities— "For the first time, local assistance exceeds $1,000,000,000.

Education — "In 1942, the state paid $120,000,000 to localities for education, Next year, it will pay $635,000,000 — more than five times as much."

More for Welfare

Welfare — ". . .state aid for welfare will increase by $7,400,000 to $160,500,000. These increases are due, in the largest part, to the increasing number of dependent children and higher medical costs, particularly for elderly people."

New York City — "New York City's leadership in business and commerce and its position as an educational and cultural center are of vital consequence to the people of the entire state. . .an additional $15,000,000 has been set aside (for New York)."

State Police — "One major new appropriation that I am recommending is $1,500,000 for expansion of the state police. . . this sum will provide for the initial expenses of expanding the State Police by 250 men."

Mental Hygiene — ". . .despite encouraging development of recent years, Mental Hygiene appropriations must be continued at a high level. (New) techniques and drugs are expensive. . ."

State Employes — "Provision is made for $19,100,000 for necessary salary adjustments for state employes. . ."

SHOT HEARD ROUND THE WORLD

At Lexington, in 1775, "the embattled farmers stood and fired a shot heard round the world."

In 1958, at nearby Boston, the embattled farmers fired another round. It was the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the largest farm organization, representing 1,600,000 farm families.

MR. HUTTON

Those who think the old American spirit of Lexington and Concord "has gone over the hill," would have been cheered by the speeches and resolutions of this notable convention of working farmers.

They were in rebellion against the whole trend of misgovernment for lo, these many years. They called for a balanced budget, reduced Federal spending, severe curbs on labor monopolies, and the elimination of Federal controls on agricultural products at the earliest possible date.

The President of the Federation, Charles Shuman, is "convinced that without price fiixing since the war ended, all agriculture would be better off."

A New Hampshire delegate said, "Every time you send 10 $'s to Washington, you get 50c back, after passing through 21 different offices, in each of which there are 33 bureaucrats, all of them not doing anything."

The President of a State Bureau brought down the house with, "There is a surplus of jackasses in this country and nine of them are on the Supreme Court."

Rough talk—but easily understood.

Something is cooking in the farm kitchens.

Closing the Gap Fast

Soviet Union Is World's Second Economic Power

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is the story of how a giant grew up.

Gone is the cool Western feeling of superiority. In its place: uneasiness, worry, self-criticism. Ten years have brought the Soviet Union self-confidence and achievement.

Ten years ago, compared with the United States, the Soviet Union was away back in the economic woods. Hope was being expressed here that Soviet citizens, fed up with tyranny and poor living, would kick up their heels.

There is little of that any more. There is no evidence to support it.

Amazing Progress

Today the Soviet Union is indisputably the world's second economic power and is closing the gap. It has shown such amazing scientific and industrial progress no one here is trying to laugh off the danger.

Instead Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's boast about closing the gap, and Soviet accomplishments, have forced debate on whether this government is doing all it can to keep the gap open.

This country decries socialism. But, ironically, too much Soviet progress could force the American government into even greater participation in the American economy.

The greater the participation, the greater the degree of socialism.

Ten years ago the United States outclassed the Soviet Union militarily. Not now. Hardly anyone anymore predicts victory for either side in war. The guessing now is that both sides might be obliterated.

Ten years ago at this time the Soviets did not have an atom bomb. The United States still had a monopoly. It was not until September 1949 that the Soviets had their first atomic explosion.

Then the United States went on to develop the hydrogen bomb. The Soviets soon caught up with that, too. Now both sides have a plentiful supply of both kinds of bombs.

Gigantic Strides

In 10 years the Soviets have made gigantic strides with jet planes, submarines and missiles. A decade ago the idea of an intercontinental missile was only a gleam in a scientist's eye.

It was a shattering blow to American complacency when in the fall of 1957 the Soviets sent up their Sputniks. They showed their continued lead and superiority in this field with their moonshot in 1958.

There is no better evidence of American concern than the searching investigation begun last week by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee into the state of American missile development as compared with the Soviet Union.

The Eisenhower administration take the position that the missile gap has been exaggerated. The President himself said last week he sees no reason for a "hang dog attitude of humiliation."

The fact that word "humiliation" occurred to him—in relation to the Soviet Union — is a sign of the times.

The Democratic leadership in Congress accuses the administration of concealing information about the missile gap and putting economy ahead of national security.

While the debate goes on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles paid an indirect tribute to the Soviets' growing power by deciding to fly to Europe for consultations with the British, French and West Germans.

The Soviet determination to get the Allies out of West Berlin has jolted the West into intense uneasiness. Dulles' trip, it seems, is an effort to mend fences, to give assurances, to calm nerves.

Youngest regular coin still in use in the U. S. is the nickel, which was authorized by Congress in 1866.

Pupils of Hurley School Hear Talks On Area History

The children of Hurley School heard two addresses this past week on area history to prepare them for participation in an essay contest to be conducted in the schools of the Greater Kingston Consolidated District by the Mayors Committee for the Hudson-Champlain Festival.

James Burggraf, amateur archaeologist working with Dr. William A. Richie, state archaeologist, is excavating on the site of an Indian village on Route 209, Hurley. He spoke to the children on the Indian life in the Esopus valley last Tuesday.

Second Talk Heard

Thursday afternoon the children of Hurley School heard the second in a series of talks by Miss Agnes Scott Smith, history teacher at Kingston High School.

Beginning with the coming of the Dutch to Hurley in 1662, she described how they appropriated the beautiful fields along the creek where the Indians had grown corn. So high-handed was the treatment of the Indians by the Dutch, that the mild and unaggressive Indians around the region of Hurley were goaded into raiding the settlement in 1663, burning the log houses, killing three men and carrying away 23 women and children to their fortification down in the Wallkill Valley across the Shawangunk Mountains.

While searching for the captives, Louis DuBois and other Hurley freemen came into the Valley near where New Paltz now stands. They found it rich and beautiful and the next year, after rescuing their wives and children, about a third of the Hurley settlement moved and settled New Paltz.

English Came in 1664

The English came in 1664, and in 1669 the little town which had been designated by the commonplace Dutch title Nieu Dorp, was graced with the name Hurley, honoring Governor Lovelace whose family holdings in England were at Hurley-on-Thames. Although the English took over the town, most of the inhabitants were Dutch. The residents kept their Dutch customs, and Dutch was spoken in the village for many years. The first English school teacher came after the Civil War.

For the first hundred years or so of the town's existence homes were mostly log cabins. Then as the town prospered and those no longer served, the stone houses which stand today were constructed. Miss Smith told the children that Hurley must have been a talented and inventive blacksmith, for much of the iron hardware on the old houses is unusual, and the round iron knocker which also served as the lock found on many of the houses, is unique and found only in Hurley. Heavy blinds with tiny peak holes through which to watch for Indians were standard equipment and are still seen on the earlier of the old stone houses. Superstition thrived in the village up to the early 20th century. In the early days some families felt such a strong fear of witches that they built witch catchers, rods with sharp iron spikes, in their chimneys.

Miss Smith described a fall day in 1777 when the quiet of the afternoon was disturbed by the first wagon-loads of refugees from Kingston, fleeing terrified before the British and certain they were being followed. Hurley might have panicked, too, but nerves were steadied when about dusk a fife and drum corps and about 50 cavalrymen rode in from Marbletown.

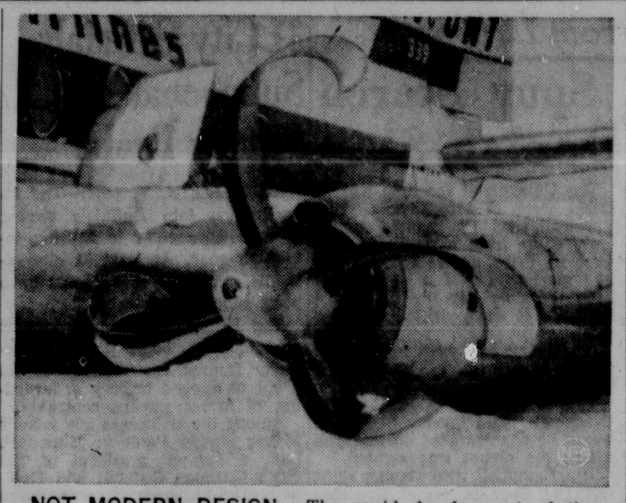

Miss Smith told in detail, the reception here in 1782, the story which will be reenacted on February 22 this year under the auspices of the Hurley Lions Club. It seems that some of the boys, restless during the long speech of welcome, wandered over to corn fields across the street from the tavern. There they indulged in a fall pastime of cutting little horns from the dried stalks of pumpkin vines that lay there. When the speech was over and Washington entered the tavern for what must have been a much-needed warming by the fire after an hour's stand on horseback in the drizzling rain, the boys settled themselves on the stone wall across the street and began to play on their horns.

General Was Pleased

The story goes that Washington was pleased with their efforts and, ordering a large glass of brandy from the proprietor, invited the boys in, giving each a sip of brandy from his glass.

Miss Smith concluded her talk with several old Dutch finger rhymes often used with children to the present day.

So high-handed was the treatment of the Indians by the Dutch, that the mild and unaggressive Indians around the region of Hurley were goaded into raiding the settlement in 1663, burning the log houses, killing three men and carrying away 23 women and children to their fortification down in the Wallkill Valley across the Shawangunk Mountains.

While searching for the captives, Louis DuBois and other Hurley freemen came into the Valley near where New Paltz now stands. They found it rich and beautiful and the next year, after rescuing their wives and children, about a third of the Hurley settlement moved and settled New Paltz.

English Came in 1664

The English came in 1664, and in 1669 the little town which had been designated by the commonplace Dutch title Nieu Dorp, was graced with the name Hurley, honoring Governor Lovelace whose family holdings in England were at Hurley-on-Thames. Although the English took over the town, most of the inhabitants were Dutch. The residents kept their Dutch customs, and Dutch was spoken in the village for many years. The first English school teacher came after the Civil War.

For the first hundred years or so of the town's existence homes were mostly log cabins. Then as the town prospered and those no longer served, the stone houses which stand today were constructed. Miss Smith told the children that Hurley must have been a talented and inventive blacksmith, for much of the iron hardware on the old houses is unusual, and the round iron knocker which also served as the lock found on many of the houses, is unique and found only in Hurley. Heavy blinds with tiny peak holes through which to watch for Indians were standard equipment and are still seen on the earlier of the old stone houses. Superstition thrived in the village up to the early 20th century. In the early days some families felt such a strong fear of witches that they built witch catchers, rods with sharp iron spikes, in their chimneys.

Miss Smith described a fall day in 1777 when the quiet of the afternoon was disturbed by the first wagon-loads of refugees from Kingston, fleeing terrified before the British and certain they were being followed. Hurley might have panicked, too, but nerves were steadied when about dusk a fife and drum corps and about 50 cavalrymen rode in from Marbletown.

Miss Smith told in detail, the reception here in 1782, the story which will be reenacted on February 22 this year under the auspices of the Hurley Lions Club. It seems that some of the boys, restless during the long speech of welcome, wandered over to corn fields across the street from the tavern. There they indulged in a fall pastime of cutting little horns from the dried stalks of pumpkin vines that lay there. When the speech was over and Washington entered the tavern for what must have been a much-needed warming by the fire after an hour's stand on horseback in the drizzling rain, the boys settled themselves on the stone wall across the street and began to play on their horns.

General Was Pleased

The story goes that Washington was pleased with their efforts and, ordering a large glass of brandy from the proprietor, invited the boys in, giving each a sip of brandy from his glass.

Miss Smith concluded her talk with several old Dutch finger rhymes often used with children to the present day.

$10,000 in Cash Found in Buffalo Lot by 3 Boys

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—What every boy dreams of—finding hidden treasure—has come true for three youngsters who found $10,000 in cash in a vacant lot.

Now all they have to do is wait and see whether anyone can prove it belongs to them. Under state law, police may hold the money 30 days.

However, police in suburban Cheektowaga, where the boys found the money, said they might keep it 90 days just to be on the safe side. Thirty or ninety, it seemed forever to the boys.

They were hunting for rabbits Saturday when 11-year-old Jimmy Weiglein stumbled on a large paper bag. He called over the other two, Otis Montgomery, 13, and Roy Anderson, 14. All live in Cheektowaga.

The cash was in bills from $1 to $100, plus $87.75 in coins. Police counted $9,514.75 and estimated that other torn bills might be worth another $500.

The bag also contained three wrist watches, three rings and two small keys.

Police speculated that the money had been stolen, but they said they have no clues to where it came from. It would be difficult for anyone else to prove ownership, they said.

Meanwhile, the boys split the $9,514 equally and Jimmy got the torn bills because he was the first to see the paper bag in the bushes.

Jimmy said he would like to buy a trampoline with part of his money. Then he added, "I want to give my baby brother $1,000 when he grows up. I'm very proud of my baby brother.

His brother, born eight days ago, arrived home Saturday just before Jimmy burst in with the news of the treasure.

250 More State Troopers Requested

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A 1½-million-dollar appropriation to boost State Police strength by 250 men was proposed by Gov. Rockefeller today.

In his budget message to the Legislature, Rockefeller said he recommended the outlay "in the interests of greater safety on our highways and to strengthen the fight against organized crime."

The State Police budget for 1958-59 was $10,600,000 and provided for slightly more than 1,500 troopers. Rockefeller proposed a total appropriation of $12,100,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Additional personnel would be assigned both to highway patrol and to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, Rockefeller said.

Believed Coming From Lifeboat

Radio Signals Spur Search For Missing Danish Ship

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — Faint radio signals spurred the search today for the Danish ship Hans Hedtoft, missing with 95 persons since it hit an iceberg Friday in heavy seas off Greenland.

The weak signals were believed to be from a lifeboat of the 2,785-ton Hedtoft. There had been no trace of the ship or survivors since she hit the ice.

The signals were heard by two Danish radio stations on the Greenland coast and the Danish motorship Umanak, which had swung off its Greenland-Denmark run Sunday to join the search.

The first signals were heard about 5 p.m. Sunday and then again between 10 and 11 p.m.

The Umanak's radioman said the signals were sent by an untrained operator and were very weak and irregularly spaced.

The Umanak at the time was 60 miles west of Greenland's Cape Farewell, and the signals apparently came from a position southwest of there. Greenland expegts in Copenhagen said it would have been possible for the Hedtoft's lifeboats to have drifted that far west.

Continuing bad weather reduced the air search to one Canadian air force plane.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell said today's search would be concentrated on the area where the object was sighted.

The Campbell, two Danish ships and the German vessel Poseidon searched until late Sunday through 40-foot waves and 60-mile-an-hour winds.

She carried three light metal lifeboats capable of holding her 55 passengers and crew of 40, plus four small rubber rafts.

Johnson Is Held For Grand Jury In Knife Assault

Peter Johnson, 34, of 69 Liberty Street, who was booked last week as an alleged accessory in a reported downtown assault, waived examination today before City Judge Aaron E. Klein and was held for grand jury action.

Johnson was arrested along with Cleaster Hardin, 33, of 221 East Strand, who was held on a second degree assault charge for allegedly cutting Lester Coddington, 45, of RD 4, Box 135, Kingston, on the neck with a pocket knife at Dreamstreet Tavern, 38 Broadway.

Police said Johnson was booked for a reported attempt to conceal the knife.

Hardin waived examination last week for grand jury action.

Barrier Noise

A heavy blast heard in the city and areas of the county early Saturday afternoon was believed due to breaking of the sound barrier by a plane, but none from nearby military fields was reported in the area at the time. Police received reports from several areas of the city and some residents said walls and ceilings cracked. Stewart Field, Newburgh and Westover in Massachusetts, police said, reported no planes in the area. Checks with industrial plants revealed that no blasting had been done.

License Revoked For Leaving Scene

A driver charged with leaving the scene of an accident drew a suspended sentence plus revocation of license in city court today, and three others paid $25 in fines on traffic counts.

Others arrested over the weekend are due in court Tuesday night.

William Horton Atkins, 76, of 11 Clinton Avenue, drew the suspended sentence and loss of license. He was arrested Sunday by officers Charles McCullough and Albert Hutton. Police said a car he drove was involved in a mishap Saturday with that of Mildred Sgroi, of 91 Clifton Avenue, at Franklin and Furnace Streets.

Frank Qualtere, 32, of 340 East Chester Street, arrested several days ago on a charge of speeding, was found guilty after trial today and was fined $15. Attorney Hubert A. Richter appeared for him and John E. Gotelli for the district attorney's office.

Jesse Decker Jr., RD 1, Newburgh, charged with speeding and a stop-sign violation, failed to appear in court and a bench warrant was to be issued by City Judge Aaron E. Klein.

Sarantos E. Matthews, of 11 Main Street, and Sterling Wolven, Woodstock, were fined $5 each on red-light charges.

Due in court Tuesday night on red-light charges are Michael Stupakevich, Westfield, N. J., Peter Decker, Kerhonkson, and Bruce Bishop, Richmond Park. They were given summonses over the weekend.

Many other arrests on traffic counts since last Tuesday indicates another crowded night-court docket tomorrow.

31 City Officials Subpoenaed in Paving Probe

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The investigation into Buffalo's paving scandal apparently is shifting into high gear. At least 31 city officials, former and present, have been subpoenaed.

The Erie County grand jury is scheduled to begin taking testimony from them Tuesday in its probe of alleged bribery in awarding of street paving contracts.

Among the witnesses are former Mayor Steven Pankow; Elmer F. Lux, a former president of the city's Common Council; and Thaddeus Dulski, once a councilman and now a U. S. representative.

Pankow, Lux and Dulski are Democrats, but the list of those subpoenaed includes many Republicans, including Anthony R. Lombardo, former GOP majority leader in the council.

It appeared that anyone who held important city posts during 1954-56, the period under investigation, can expect to be summoned by the grand jury. Five businesses have also been ordered to bring in their records.

The county grand jury's probe began last September, but it was only in the past two weeks that city officials have been subpoenaed.

Two weeks ago, Raymond F. Brayer, president of one of the four paving companies that have done all the city's work in recent years, testified at length before the grand jury.

The investigation was touched off by a federal tax liability case involving Brayer. An investigator quoted Brayer as saying he used nearly $50,000 to pay off unnamed city officials for contracts. The city has spent about $3,000,000 a year on street resurfacing.

A federal grand jury is looking into the income tax and anti-trust aspects of the case. Brayer has also testified at length before this jury.

Erie County Dist. Atty. Carman Ball, a Republican, has said that the subpoenaeing of witnesses should not be used by the public to reach hasty conclusions. Many witnesses will be called for information, he said.

Dulski, a Democrat, objected to what he called the "wholesale papering," however, and said this "brings about a presumption of involvement." He warned against bringing politics into the case.

$500,000 Fire Destroys Alleys In Poughkeepsie

A half-million dollar fire of undetermined origin destroyed a 40-lane bowling alley on Route 9G just north of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, early this morning.

The huge concrete-block Hoe Bowl Country Lanes was reduced to a smouldering rubble.

Safe Salvaged

Firemen were able to salvage a small safe reportedly containing $10,000 in cash, however. There was no information available immediately on the condition of the money.

Fighting the fire, which was reported by a passing motorist at 4:50 a. m., was the Fairview Fire Department, assisted by the Roosevelt Fire Department and one engine from the City of Poughkeepsie.

The nearest fire hydrant was from 1,500 to 1,800 feet away. The engine from Poughkeepsie pumped water from the hydrant to a second engine mid-way between the hydrant and the fire. The second engine, manned by Roosevelt men, pumped the water the rest of the distance.

Chief R. Earle DeVor of the Fairview department told The Freeman that when he reached the scene "half the alleys were in the air," meaning in flame. One complete end of the building (concrete blocks with frame roof) was already involved and the heat so intense that windows in the other end of the structure were too hot to touch, the chief said.

Dwellings Saved

Chief DeVor said firemen were "lucky to save" dwellings on each side of the burning alleys. Several fires broke out on the roofs of the dwellings but were extinguished.

Chief DeVor said the origin of the fire was undetermined, although he felt confident that it had not started in the boiler room.

The heat was so intense that the concrete block walls crumbled under the impact of water.

The chief said that a number of pin machines, which are expensive, were also lost.

Intense Heat

Even if firemen had been able to arrest the fire the contents would have been a total loss because of the intensity of the heat, he said.

The building had no sprinklers. The owner, Robert Hoe Jr., of Poughkeepsie, had considered sprinklers but was unable to install them because there is no available water supply in the immediate area, it was reported to The Freeman.

Prays for Probe Success

Pastor Asks Governor For Kickback Cleanup

A local minister has set the community agog with three fervent and fiery prayers on his regular daily telephone "Prayer-a-Day" program.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, minister of the Old Dutch Church, called on the citizens of Kingston and Ulster County in ringing terms reminiscent of the ancient Biblical prophets, to support wholeheartedly and courageously the current investigation of bribery and corruption in the county.

Appeals to Rockefeller

In his third prayer, taped Sunday, he announced that he had appealed to Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller urging him to continue the current investigation "in our midst until the mess has been cleaned up." He urged the community to petition the Governor for a "thorough investigation."

Since the first prayer was taped last Wednesday the telephone (advertised in The Freeman as FE 1-1303) has been ringing constantly. Calls have been pouring in—not only from the city but from various parts of the county as well.

Urges Support

In his first prayer Dominie Oudemool, who has been at the local church for more than 20 years, called attention to "hundreds of thousands of dollars" of the taxpayers' "hard-earned" money which has gone into the pockets of grafters, urged support of the current investigation by former Sen. Bernard Tompkins, special state prosecutor, concluding with the petition: "Lord God of Justice, help the investigatiors catch and bring to justice the Big Shots."

The response to this prayer was so tremendous that it was permitted to continue for a second day.

Calls for Assistance

The second prayer urged the people of the area who have knowledge which might assist the investigation to go to Sen. Tompkins. He said the "rottenness of the Big Shots" is 'common talk on the streets(and has been for a long time)," that the difficulty is to "get evidence that will stand up in court."

He called for "courage and sacrifice" in throwing off the "cover of cowardice."

Text of Prayer No. 1 follows:

"The common people, little folk of the community, admit doing wrong, get caught at it and pay the penalty.

"But the Big Shots go scott free, intimidating witnesses, buying justice, manipulating people for their own selfish ends.

"It is good to hear Sen. Tompkins say that he is going out after the Big Shots in this area.

"Oh, how the common man has been lorded over! Hundreds of thousands of dollars of his hard-earned money is involved.

"Why haven't the citizens risen up in wrath long ago? What a farce much of our religion has been! How spineless our ethical and moral standards.

Prays For Results

"Sen. Tompkins is aiming at long-lasting good results. Let us pray that he gets them.

"Lord God of Justice, help the investigators catch and bring to justice the Big Shots. Amen."

Text of Prayer No. 2:

"Oh, if the people of this area would only talk! Tell what they know about the crime, corruption, complicity in high places! My, what heads would roll down the alleys of justice!

"There is absolutely no doubt as to the rottenness of the Big Shots. Why, it's common talk on the streets (and has been for a long time). The difficulty is to get evidence that will stand up in court. So many are involved in crimes that few dare talk for fear they will be shown up. Each has something on the other.

"Then, too, the Big Boys are strong enough to 'get' your job.

"The only answer is courage and sacrifice. Let us throw off the cover of cowardice, break the conspiracy of silence.

"Stop in at 52 Main Street and tell Senator Tompkins and his fellow investigators what you know.

"God, give us guts, gumption, greatness, Amen."

Must Get to Bottom

The Rev. Mr. Oudemool's third prayer, taped Sunday, follows:

"I've sent along a letter to Governor Rockefeller urging him to continue the current investigation in our midst until the mess has been cleaned up.

"We've got to get to the bottom of it. People often ask of an evil, What can I do about it? Here's one thing: Petition the Governor for a thorough investigation. The pity of public opinion is that it is expressed privately and nothing comes of it.

"Let us make our voice felt. Ours is a government by the consent of the governed.

"Remember Lincoln's great sentence that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

"God, our Father, we make then this special prayer for conditions about us: Convict of sin, cleanse, forgive, cure."

Didn't Talk With Minister

"I have been asked whether I talked with Rev. Oudemool before he made his prayer of Jan. 28.

"The answer is I did not.

"The prayer, to the effect that there should be a thorough investigation and airing of charges of corruption in Ulster County came as a complete surprise to me.

"It seems to me that no conscientious citizen can find fault with that plea, and frankly, I was shocked at the personal attack on a clergyman of the standing of Rev. Oudemool which obviously was inspired and instigated by people interested in the welfare of the persons under investigation."

The Tompkins comment on the "personal attack" was promulgated by remarks made by a Kingston station radio newscaster at noon today.

'59 Groundhog Day Is for the Birds

A sunny February 2 today would indicate that the Groundhog saw his shadow and will return to hibernate in his burrow for six more weeks of cold weather.

But, nobody reported an appearance by nature's weather forecaster.

In fact, the birds took over. Mrs. George Otell of Hurley reported seeing two robins sunning themselves on her lawn. They didn't seem worried about shadows.

Will those who rely on the groundhog switch to place their faith in robins as harbingers of early spring?

In any event, it might be well to remember that last night's low was zero. At noon, thermometers said 15 above.

Governor Would

Department's functions would be "re-evaluated and utilized to provide the essential assistance for increased development of commerce, industry and travel."

He has yet to appoint a commerce commissioner, the last major vacant post in his cabinet.

Rockefeller has begun his own staff reorganization.

He has used the title "executive assistant," which used to be given to the press secretary, for a new top-level post. The job is held by George Hinman, a Binghamton lawyer.

Creates Positions

He also has created the positions of "appointments officer" and "assistant secretary for administration."

Rockefeller has not decided whether to retain two high posts Harriman created, consumer counsel to the governor and special assistant on problems of the aging.

Reelect Haver to Board Of N. Y. Bar Association

N. LeVan Haver, Kingston attorney was reelected to the New York State Bar Association executive board for the Third District Friday at the annual meeting of the group held in New York City.

C. Addison Keeler, Binghamton attorney was named president of the association, representing more than 10,000 lawyers.

Keeler suceeds S. Hazard Gillespie Jr., of New York City, who formally concluded the traditional one year tenure.

The 82nd annual session was concluded Saturday with an address by John Foster Dulles, seretary of state.

Sentence Suspended

Michael Carrano, 24, of Palenville Road, Catskill, was arrested Saturday for the reported shoplifting of packaged meat, valued at $3.90, at the Grand Union Market, Albany Avenue, Saturday night. He was given a suspended sentence of 90 days in city court today. The arrest was by Leo J. Foy of the Grand Union's security department.

$10,000 in Cash Found in Buffalo Lot by 3 Boys

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—What every boy dreams of—finding hidden treasure—has come true for three youngsters who found $10,000 in cash in a vacant lot.

Now all they have to do is wait and see whether anyone can prove it belongs to them. Under state law, police may hold the money 30 days.

However, police in suburban Cheektowaga, where the boys found the money, said they might keep it 90 days just to be on the safe side. Thirty or ninety, it seemed forever to the boys.

They were hunting for rabbits Saturday when 11-year-old Jimmy Weiglein stumbled on a large paper bag. He called over the other two, Otis Montgomery, 13, and Roy Anderson, 14. All live in Cheektowaga.

The cash was in bills from $1 to $100, plus $87.75 in coins. Police counted $9,514.75 and estimated that other torn bills might be worth another $500.

The bag also contained three wrist watches, three rings and two small keys.

Police speculated that the money had been stolen, but they said they have no clues to where it came from. It would be difficult for anyone else to prove ownership, they said.

Meanwhile, the boys split the $9,514 equally and Jimmy got the torn bills because he was the first to see the paper bag in the bushes.

Jimmy said he would like to buy a trampoline with part of his money. Then he added, "I want to give my baby brother $1,000 when he grows up. I'm very proud of my baby brother.

His brother, born eight days ago, arrived home Saturday just before Jimmy burst in with the news of the treasure.

250 More State Troopers Requested

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A 1½-million-dollar appropriation to boost State Police strength by 250 men was proposed by Gov. Rockefeller today.

In his budget message to the Legislature, Rockefeller said he recommended the outlay "in the interests of greater safety on our highways and to strengthen the fight against organized crime."

The State Police budget for 1958-59 was $10,600,000 and provided for slightly more than 1,500 troopers. Rockefeller proposed a total appropriation of $12,100,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Additional personnel would be assigned both to highway patrol and to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, Rockefeller said.

Believed Coming From Lifeboat

Radio Signals Spur Search For Missing Danish Ship

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — Faint radio signals spurred the search today for the Danish ship Hans Hedtoft, missing with 95 persons since it hit an iceberg Friday in heavy seas off Greenland.

The weak signals were believed to be from a lifeboat of the 2,785-ton Hedtoft. There had been no trace of the ship or survivors since she hit the ice.

The signals were heard by two Danish radio stations on the Greenland coast and the Danish motorship Umanak, which had swung off its Greenland-Denmark run Sunday to join the search.

The first signals were heard about 5 p.m. Sunday and then again between 10 and 11 p.m.

The Umanak's radioman said the signals were sent by an untrained operator and were very weak and irregularly spaced.

The Umanak at the time was 60 miles west of Greenland's Cape Farewell, and the signals apparently came from a position southwest of there. Greenland expegts in Copenhagen said it would have been possible for the Hedtoft's lifeboats to have drifted that far west.

Continuing bad weather reduced the air search to one Canadian air force plane.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell said today's search would be concentrated on the area where the object was sighted.

The Campbell, two Danish ships and the German vessel Poseidon searched until late Sunday through 40-foot waves and 60-mile-an-hour winds.

She carried three light metal lifeboats capable of holding her 55 passengers and crew of 40, plus four small rubber rafts.

Peter Johnson, 34, of 69 Liberty Street, who was booked last week as an alleged accessory in a reported downtown assault, waived examination today before City Judge Aaron E. Klein and was held for grand jury action.

Johnson was arrested along with Cleaster Hardin, 33, of 221 East Strand, who was held on a second degree assault charge for allegedly cutting Lester Coddington, 45, of RD 4, Box 135, Kingston, on the neck with a pocket knife at Dreamstreet Tavern, 38 Broadway.

Police said Johnson was booked for a reported attempt to conceal the knife.

Hardin waived examination last week for grand jury action.

A heavy blast heard in the city and areas of the county early Saturday afternoon was believed due to breaking of the sound barrier by a plane, but none from nearby military fields was reported in the area at the time. Stewart Field, Newburgh and Westover in Massachusetts, police said, reported no planes in the area. Checks with industrial plants revealed that no blasting had been done.

A driver charged with leaving the scene of an accident drew a suspended sentence plus revocation of license in city court today, and three others paid $25 in fines on traffic counts.

Others arrested over the weekend are due in court Tuesday night.

William Horton Atkins, 76, of 11 Clinton Avenue, drew the suspended sentence and loss of license. He was arrested Sunday by officers Charles McCullough and Albert Hutton. Police said a car he drove was involved in a mishap Saturday with that of Mildred Sgroi, of 91 Clifton Avenue, at Franklin and Furnace Streets.

Sarantos E. Matthews, of 11 Main Street, and Sterling Wolven, Woodstock, were fined $5 each on red-light charges.

Due in court Tuesday night on red-light charges are Michael Stupakevich, Westfield, N. J., Peter Decker, Kerhonkson, and Bruce Bishop, Richmond Park. They were given summonses over the weekend.

Many other arrests on traffic counts since last Tuesday indicates another crowded night-court docket tomorrow.

31 City Officials Subpoenaed in Paving Probe

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The investigation into Buffalo's paving scandal apparently is shifting into high gear. At least 31 city officials, former and present, have been subpoenaed.

The Erie County grand jury is scheduled to begin taking testimony from them Tuesday in its probe of alleged bribery in awarding of street paving contracts.

Among the witnesses are former Mayor Steven Pankow; Elmer F. Lux, a former president of the city's Common Council; and Thaddeus Dulski, once a councilman and now a U. S. representative.

Pankow, Lux and Dulski are Democrats, but the list of those subpoenaed includes many Republicans, including Anthony R. Lombardo, former GOP majority leader in the council.

It appeared that anyone who held important city posts during 1954-56, the period under investigation, can expect to be summoned by the grand jury. Five businesses have also been ordered to bring in their records.

The county grand jury's probe began last September, but it was only in the past two weeks that city officials have been subpoenaed.

Two weeks ago, Raymond F. Brayer, president of one of the four paving companies that have done all the city's work in recent years, testified at length before the grand jury.

The investigation was touched off by a federal tax liability case involving Brayer. An investigator quoted Brayer as saying he used nearly $50,000 to pay off unnamed city officials for contracts. The city has spent about $3,000,000 a year on street resurfacing.

A federal grand jury is looking into the income tax and anti-trust aspects of the case. Brayer has also testified at length before this jury.

Erie County Dist. Atty. Carman Ball, a Republican, has said that the subpoenaeing of witnesses should not be used by the public to reach hasty conclusions. Many witnesses will be called for information, he said.

Dulski, a Democrat, objected to what he called the "wholesale papering," however, and said this "brings about a presumption of involvement." He warned against bringing politics into the case.

$500,000 Fire Destroys Alleys In Poughkeepsie

A half-million dollar fire of undetermined origin destroyed a 40-lane bowling alley on Route 9G just north of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, early this morning.

The huge concrete-block Hoe Bowl Country Lanes was reduced to a smouldering rubble.

Safe Salvaged

Firemen were able to salvage a small safe reportedly containing $10,000 in cash, however. There was no information available immediately on the condition of the money.

Fighting the fire, which was reported by a passing motorist at 4:50 a. m., was the Fairview Fire Department, assisted by the Roosevelt Fire Department and one engine from the City of Poughkeepsie.

The nearest fire hydrant was from 1,500 to 1,800 feet away. The engine from Poughkeepsie pumped water from the hydrant to a second engine mid-way between the hydrant and the fire. The second engine, manned by Roosevelt men, pumped the water the rest of the distance.

Chief R. Earle DeVor of the Fairview department told The Freeman that when he reached the scene "half the alleys were in the air," meaning in flame. One complete end of the building (concrete blocks with frame roof) was already involved and the heat so intense that windows in the other end of the structure were too hot to touch, the chief said.

Dwellings Saved

Chief DeVor said firemen were "lucky to save" dwellings on each side of the burning alleys. Several fires broke out on the roofs of the dwellings but were extinguished.

Chief DeVor said the origin of the fire was undetermined, although he felt confident that it had not started in the boiler room.

The heat was so intense that the concrete block walls crumbled under the impact of water.

The chief said that a number of pin machines, which are expensive, were also lost.

Intense Heat

Even if firemen had been able to arrest the fire the contents would have been a total loss because of the intensity of the heat, he said.

The building had no sprinklers. The owner, Robert Hoe Jr., of Poughkeepsie, had considered sprinklers but was unable to install them because there is no available water supply in the immediate area, it was reported to The Freeman.

Prays for Probe Success

Pastor Asks Governor For Kickback Cleanup

A local minister has set the community agog with three fervent and fiery prayers on his regular daily telephone "Prayer-a-Day" program.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, minister of the Old Dutch Church, called on the citizens of Kingston and Ulster County in ringing terms reminiscent of the ancient Biblical prophets, to support wholeheartedly and courageously the current investigation of bribery and corruption in the county.

Appeals to Rockefeller

In his third prayer, taped Sunday, he announced that he had appealed to Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller urging him to continue the current investigation "in our midst until the mess has been cleaned up." He urged the community to petition the Governor for a "thorough investigation."

Since the first prayer was taped last Wednesday the telephone (advertised in The Freeman as FE 1-1303) has been ringing constantly. Calls have been pouring in—not only from the city but from various parts of the county as well.

Urges Support

In his first prayer Dominie Oudemool, who has been at the local church for more than 20 years, called attention to "hundreds of thousands of dollars" of the taxpayers' "hard-earned" money which has gone into the pockets of grafters, urged support of the current investigation by former Sen. Bernard Tompkins, special state prosecutor, concluding with the petition: "Lord God of Justice, help the investigatiors catch and bring to justice the Big Shots."

The response to this prayer was so tremendous that it was permitted to continue for a second day.

Calls for Assistance

The second prayer urged the people of the area who have knowledge which might assist the investigation to go to Sen. Tompkins. He said the "rottenness of the Big Shots" is 'common talk on the streets(and has been for a long time)," that the difficulty is to "get evidence that will stand up in court."

He called for "courage and sacrifice" in throwing off the "cover of cowardice."

Text of Prayer No. 1 follows:

"The common people, little folk of the community, admit doing wrong, get caught at it and pay the penalty.

"But the Big Shots go scott free, intimidating witnesses, buying justice, manipulating people for their own selfish ends.

"It is good to hear Sen. Tompkins say that he is going out after the Big Shots in this area.

"Oh, how the common man has been lorded over! Hundreds of thousands of dollars of his hard-earned money is involved.

"Why haven't the citizens risen up in wrath long ago? What a farce much of our religion has been! How spineless our ethical and moral standards.

Prays For Results

"Sen. Tompkins is aiming at long-lasting good results. Let us pray that he gets them.

Text of Prayer No. 2:

"Oh, if the people of this area would only talk! Tell what they know about the crime, corruption, complicity in high places! My, what heads would roll down the alleys of justice!

"There is absolutely no doubt as to the rottenness of the Big Shots. Why, it's common talk on the streets (and has been for a long time). The difficulty is to get evidence that will stand up in court. So many are involved in crimes that few dare talk for fear they will be shown up. Each has something on the other.

"Then, too, the Big Boys are strong enough to 'get' your job.

"The only answer is courage and sacrifice. Let us throw off the cover of cowardice, break the conspiracy of silence.

"Stop in at 52 Main Street and tell Senator Tompkins and his fellow investigators what you know.

Must Get to Bottom

The Rev. Mr. Oudemool's third prayer, taped Sunday, follows:

"I've sent along a letter to Governor Rockefeller urging him to continue the current investigation in our midst until the mess has been cleaned up.

"We've got to get to the bottom of it. People often ask of an evil, What can I do about it? Here's one thing: Petition the Governor for a thorough investigation. The pity of public opinion is that it is expressed privately and nothing comes of it.

"Let us make our voice felt. Ours is a government by the consent of the governed.

"Remember Lincoln's great sentence that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

"God, our Father, we make then this special prayer for conditions about us: Convict of sin, cleanse, forgive, cure."

Didn't Talk With Minister

"I have been asked whether I talked with Rev. Oudemool before he made his prayer of Jan. 28.

"The answer is I did not.

"The prayer, to the effect that there should be a thorough investigation and airing of charges of corruption in Ulster County came as a complete surprise to me.

"It seems to me that no conscientious citizen can find fault with that plea, and frankly, I was shocked at the personal attack on a clergyman of the standing of Rev. Oudemool which obviously was inspired and instigated by people interested in the welfare of the persons under investigation."

The Tompkins comment on the "personal attack" was promulgated by remarks made by a Kingston station radio newscaster at noon today.

'59 Groundhog Day Is for the Birds

A sunny February 2 today would indicate that the Groundhog saw his shadow and will return to hibernate in his burrow for six more weeks of cold weather.

But, nobody reported an appearance by nature's weather forecaster.

In fact, the birds took over. Mrs. George Otell of Hurley reported seeing two robins sunning themselves on her lawn. They didn't seem worried about shadows.

Will those who rely on the groundhog switch to place their faith in robins as harbingers of early spring?

In any event, it might be well to remember that last night's low was zero. At noon, thermometers said 15 above.

Governor Would

Department's functions would be "re-evaluated and utilized to provide the essential assistance for increased development of commerce, industry and travel."

He has yet to appoint a commerce commissioner, the last major vacant post in his cabinet.

Rockefeller has begun his own staff reorganization.

He has used the title "executive assistant," which used to be given to the press secretary, for a new top-level post. The job is held by George Hinman, a Binghamton lawyer.

Creates Positions

He also has created the positions of "appointments officer" and "assistant secretary for administration."

Rockefeller has not decided whether to retain two high posts Harriman created, consumer counsel to the governor and special assistant on problems of the aging.

Reelect Haver to Board Of N. Y. Bar Association

N. LeVan Haver, Kingston attorney was reelected to the New York State Bar Association executive board for the Third District Friday at the annual meeting of the group held in New York City.

C. Addison Keeler, Binghamton attorney was named president of the association, representing more than 10,000 lawyers.

Keeler suceeds S. Hazard Gillespie Jr., of New York City, who formally concluded the traditional one year tenure.

Sentence Suspended

Michael Carrano, 24, of Palenville Road, Catskill, was arrested Saturday for the reported shoplifting of packaged meat, valued at $3.90, at the Grand Union Market, Albany Avenue, Saturday night. He was given a suspended sentence of 90 days in city court today. The arrest was by Leo J. Foy of the Grand Union's security department.

An overheated motor, due to a broken hose line, set fire to anti-freeze, firemen said. Engine 1, Central Station, checked the blaze. It was also called out Saturday afternoon to check a fire on the former dump off Summer Street.

The gathering is a project of the newly formed Saugerties Area Citizens' Committee for the Hudson-Champlain Festival, to coordinate the various local activities with those planned in the town and county.

Ideas and suggestions will be noted by the committee and those with merit will be added to the overall program for the town.

Alex Osina, committee chairman, and member of the original Saugerties Area Chamber of Commerce committee said the celebration affords the township another opportunity to present the historical Town of Saugerties to the Hudson Valley and to any out-of-state visitors coming here for the occasion this summer.

Preliminary arrangements have already been announced for special activities to be presented with the Year of History theme.

Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsorship of the annual Loyalty Day observance May 2 has been geared to the Hudson-Champlain theme.

The Saugerties Junior Chamber of Commerce annual Fourth of July observance has been tentatively scheduled with events for two or three days, and still will have for its main theme the Year of History observance.

Saugerties Area Chamber of Commerce has tentatively scheduled its second annual assemblage day for the Labor Day weekend with pagentry steeped in the tradition of the early days in this community.

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church of West Camp has announced preliminary plans to celebrate the settling of that community by the Palatine refugees in 1709 and will hold an elaborate celebration the next year observing the 250th anniversary of its founding by the Palatines.

Other organizations including the Saugerties Powerboat Association have indicated they are planning tie-in activities.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Dress, make-up and forced vivacity help a woman disguise her age, then she unconsciously reveals her years by her gestures.

At least her gestures are a revelation to Leora Dana, a beautiful, youngish actress. Miss Dana is constantly studying the aging process in women because —for some mysterious reason — she is forever playing roles of middle age and beyond.

'Storybook' on ABC

Tonight she will be seen as the worn, harassed wife of Rip Van Winkle on "Shirley Temple's Storybook," the series being re-issued once a month by ABC-TV. Getting a break for a change, Miss Dana also plays Rip's daughter, a role in which she looks a good deal more like herself.

"As American women get older, they worry more," Miss Dana observed the other day. "They go to great pains to try to iron the worry wrinkles from their faces. But their gestures give their age away. Look at those women over there." She nodded toward another restaurant table where two women sat. "Watch their hands."

One Obviously Young

One woman obviously was young. The other was struggling mightily to appear young. The young woman's hands moved outward eagerly as she talked. The other woman pressed her fingers against her lips reflectively.

"A woman who fingers her face or rests her face in her hands is giving away her age," said Miss Dana. "It seems to be part of the process of growing tired — which is the process of growing old."

Defense Shows Bridge Mettle

Anyone, or at least any expert can work squeezes, end plays and coups when declarer but really good defense is the quintessence of bridge skill.

West opened his king of hearts against the three spade contract and shifted to his fourth best club. East won dummy's king with the ace and took stock of the situation.

If West held only five clubs the hand was going down on almost any line of defense. If he held six, as was quite likely, East decided his best play was to return the queen of clubs rather than to give his partner a heart ruff.

South trumped, cashed his ace and dummy's king of trumps and led the queen of diamonds. It held the trick as did the jack of diamonds which was played next.

The three of hearts was led from dummy and East came up with another good play. He played the nine. South played the jack and West came up with the crusher. He refused to ruff.

Now declarer had no way to avoid losing three more tricks and his contract.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some defense plants report today they are cracking the preproduction cost barrier.

They say their new system also is shaving in half the time it takes to get new developments from the drawing boards into actual weapons production.

Paper Costs Rising

These cost and time problems trouble many civilian goods plants as much as they do the military forces. And such paper costs have been rising steadily, both in civil and defense production shops.

A new electro-mechanized system has been tested for a month in Westinghouse Electric's Air Arm Division in Baltimore, after two years of development. It is being used on such equipment as Bomarc area defense missiles.

At the rate paper costs have been rising, Westinghouse claims that by 1962 it will have saved its military customers a half million dollars through its new Mechanized Manufacturing Information system.

It also says the system minimizes preproduction and production overtime, helping to hold down both labor and materiel costs.

Any Saving Welcomed

Any saving in military spending would be welcome news to taxpayers.

The system ties together semi-automatic and automatic business machines to cut the four to 10 weeks (depending on complexity) now needed to get new ideas into actual production to two to five weeks.

Here is the problem it tackles:

Manufacturing information furnished by design engineers goes to eight to 10 other departments. It covers instructions on how to make a product, when and where to get materials, what tools are needed, and how much such production work should cost.

The system now generally used in industry is for each department to add manually all of its own basic information and how and what to do, and when it can be done, and to pass this along to the next section.

Time Saving Vital

Under MMI the basic information is put on perforated paper tape as soon as engineering drawings and specifications are issued. From then on data needed by each department are issued simultaneously in either tape or punched cards.

Thus, for example, purchasing agents can begin to gather materials while the manufacturing division is getting ready to process them on arrival.

Electronic computers calculate automatically the quantities of raw materials needed. Tabulating machines process the information simultaneously. Electric repeater units automatically send the accumulated data, along with operating instructions, to all departments involved.

Time saved in gearing for production often cuts out the premium expense of overtime operations.

Ecumenical Council Seen Aimed at Eastern Churches

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Pope John XXIII's plan to summon an ecumenical council to explore the possibilities of Christian unity appears to have been directed primarily at the Eastern Orthodox Churches.

And, although the fastest show of interest came from Western Protestant leaders, it seems that any form of unity forthcoming from such a council would be between the Roman Catholic and Eastern churches.

Since the 16th century Reformation, the Roman church and most Protestant denominations have been moving apart rapidly through new interpretations of old doctrines.

Little Change

The Eastern churches, on the other hand, have undergone very little doctrinal changes since 1054, which is generally agreed upon as the year in which the East-West schism became irreconcilable.

The creed of the Eastern churches is based upon the decision of the first seven ecumenical councils. Later major statements of doctrine largely have defined relations with Protestants and Roman Catholics.

In the recent past, the Roman Church has shown extraordinary consideration to those groups that splintered from the Eastern churches and recognized the primacy of the Pope.

They retained their old Eastern rites — Byzantine, Alexandrian, Antiochian, Armenian and Chaldean—which differ from the Latin rites in liturgy. Some of their clergy may marry, but Latin priests may not.

Break Began in 330

The break between the Christian churches of the East and West began as early as the year 330 when the Roman Emperor Constantine moved his court from Rome to Byzantium, later Constantinople, now Istanbul.

Constantinople, steeped in the tradition of the Greek philosophers, soon rivaled Rome as the fountain of Christian leadership. Most of the early creeds condemned as heresies arose in the East.

The final break between Rome and Constantinople came over the creed word "filioque"—and from the Son. The West held that the Holy Spirit came directly from the Father and Son; the East, only from the Son.

No Supreme Pontiff

Unlike the Roman Catholic Church, the Eastern churches are not ruled by a single supreme pontiff. Their system of church government has been best described as "an oligarchy of patriarchs."

There are five major patriarchs, independent of each other, in Constantinople, Alexandria, Antioch, Jerusalem and Moscow. There also are lesser independent patriarchs for the Serbs, Romanians, and Georgians.

Publisher to Talk At Chest Parley On Membership

JAMES D. EWING

James D. Ewing, publisher of the Keene (N.H.) Evening Sentinel, will be the speaker for the annual membership meeting of the Kingston Area Community Chest, Inc., on Thursday evening, February 5, at the Governor Clinton Hotel, it was announced today by Warren F. Smith, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Mr. Ewing is a member of the board of directors of United Community Funds and Councils of America, Inc.; president of the Cheshire County Community Services Council; a director of the Keene Community Chest, member of the program planning committee of the New England Association of Community Chests and Councils; director of Keene Regional Industrial Foundation, Connecticut River Watershed Council and the Keene Rotary Club.

In addition to being publisher of the Keene Evening Sentinel, he is president of Valley News, Lebanon, N. H., and treasurer of Cheshire Engravers, Inc., of Keene. He is a director of the Edward Durant Investment Company of Boston and several other businesses in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Mr. Ewing formerly was publisher of the Bangor (Me.) Evening and Sunday Commercial and has served as president of the Maine Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and the Maine Associated Press. He is a son of Oscar Ewing, former Federal Security Agency Administrator, is a graduate of Princeton University, is married and has three children.

The Community Chest's annual meeting will begin at 6:30 p. m. with a dinner at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Reservations may be made by calling the Community Chest office or any of the member agencies.

Election of directors will take place at the meeting. Each contributor to the Chest's Red Feather campaign is a member of the corporation and is entitled to vote at the election. Those unable to attend the dinner may come at 7:45 p. m. to participate in the election and hear the speaker, according to Chairman Smith.

Midnight Tonight Set as Deadline To Attach '59 Tab

Car owners must display 1959 car registration tabs on or before midnight tonight.

Motorists who neglected to secure 1959 tabs have until 5 o'clock this afternoon to submit application and renewal forms at the Motor Vehicle Bureau office, Main and Fair Streets. Bureau offices are open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily.

Tabs must be displayed on the lower right hand corner of the 1958 back license plate. Both 1958 plates must be displayed this year.

State Budget

the direct quarterly-payment system to a payroll withholding basis. Gain: 150 million.

Tobacco taxes—Raising the cigarette tax from three to five cents a package and imposing a new 15 per cent tax on the wholesale price of cigars and other tobacco products, to be paid by distributors. Gain: 47 million.

Motor Fuel Taxes — Increasing the gasoline tax from four to six cents a gallon and the diesel fuel tax from six to nine. This has already been enacted. Gain: 65½ million.

Estate Taxes—Abolishing the 5 per cent discount for payment within six months and raising rates slightly. Gain: 10 million.

Pari - Mutuel Betting Taxes—Adding five days to the 1959 flat track racing season and permitting nine races a day, instead of eight. Gain: 4½ million.

These moves combined would yield 277 million more revenue for the state in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Rockefeller said that, in balancing the budget, he had to overcome a 424-million gap between income and outgo.

He decided to use 47 million from the construction reserve fund and 100 million in construction bonds and to try to raise the rest —277 million—from taxes.

Although Rockefeller did not deal directly with the subject, administration officials said hundreds of thousands of people who do not pay income taxes now would begin paying taxes under the plan he proposed.

Lists Exemptions

This would be brought about by changing to a single-unit exemption. Current exemptions are $1,000 for a single taxpayer, $2,500 for a married couple and $400 for each dependent.

Under the Rockefeller plan, each would be assigned a $600 exemption.

To soften the impact of such a sharp cut in exemptions, the governor also proposed to allow a flat $10 reduction in the computed tax. Thatis, after figuring his tax, a taxpayer would subtract $10 and the balance would be the amount he owed.

The new system would have the curious effect of eliminating about 120,000 people who now pay taxes, while requiring another 400,000 to 500,000 to start paying for the first time.

The net gain of taxpayers would be from 300,000 to 400,000.

Those eliminated would be in lower-pay brackets where subtraction of the $10 would wipe out their tax altogether.

Another unusual effect of the new system is that, while the great majority of taxpayers would have to pay more, a few unmarried taxpayers in the upper middle income bracket would pay a bit less.

Spreads Payment

Rockefeller said he tried to spread out the tax burden so that "no single tax or group of taxpayers" would have to bear the brunt of the increase.

He said the measures he proposed "face the facts"—that is, that the state must have more money now.

At the same time, he promised action to correct the situation that led to tax boosts. He said he had had "scant opportunity" to make major changes in the budget, since the planning was begun many months before he took office, aJn. 1.

But he pointed out that he had ordered two intensive studies of state operations with these objectives:

"Maximum efficiency and economy.

"Minimum use of bond financing—because borrowing can inflate by more than 50 per cent the cost to taxpayers of capital projects.

"An end to the depletion of our reserves.

"Re-establishment of sound fiscal policies, based upon the principle of pay-as-you-go."

Copper Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Phelps Dodge Corp., the nation's second largest producer of domestic copper, today increased the basic price of copper one cent a pound.

Three Are Killed In Texas Plane Crash on Sunday

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A commercial DC3 carrying 25 National Guardsmen from Idaho and a crew of 3 crashed and burned in the central Texas hill country late Sunday night. Three men were killed.

The 25 survivors, some seriously hurt, managed to escape the flaming wreckage after the ice-laden transport smashed into a hill 17 miles southeast of here in rugged country just before midnight.

Three bodies were taken to a Comfort, Tex., funeral home. Thirteen men were taken to a veterans hospital in Kerrville and 12 to the Peterson Hospital here.

"It was a miracle anyone got out alive. The plane was demolished and was burning fiercely," said Carroll Abbott, assistant publisher of the Kerrville Times, one of the first to reach the scene.

Rescuers found most of the survivors, muddy, soaked and battered, huddled in a freezing rain a short distance from the flaming wreckage.

The plane, chartered from General Airways of Portland, Ore., had left Boise, Idaho, earlier for Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio.

Over central Texas, the plane radioed it was icing heavily, was short on gasoline, and would attempt a landing at the Schreiner Airport here.

The plane made two passes at the airport.

The CAA control tower at International Airport in San Antonio said the plane reported its landing gear was locked. The tower lost radio contact with the plane about 20 minutes before the crash.

Would Be Very Costly

"The imposition of such a large sum on the taxpayers of Ulster County would create an intolerable burden. It amounts to approximately 14 per cent of the total taxes raised by the County of Ulster for the current year of 1959. To put it another way, unless the proposed law is passed and becomes law, the tax bills covering county charges of every taxpayer in Ulster County will be increased by 14 per cent soley by reason of the costs of the Special Investigation.

"Ulster County taxpayers should not be required to pay this heavy state-imposed burden. This is especially true because in addition to this sum, Ulster County taxpayers are paying the full costs of the grand jurors and trial jurors serving in the Special Investigation.

"The proposed bill does not cover the expenses of the Reuter investigation, estimated to be about $100,000.00, which preceded the present investigations, because that cost was a general state charge. Nor does it cover the salaries and expenses of the numerous State policemen assigned to the investigation because their salaries and expenses are general state charges which come out of the appropriation to the State Police Department.

May Run $500,000

"All residents of Ulster County, as state taxpayers, shared in those costs but such costs are not direct charges against the county and so are not covered by the proposed bill.

"Indeed, it would appear at this writing that the total costs of special investigations in Ulster County, including the cost of continuance of the present one, will substantially exceed one-half million dollars.

"We have received no assurances from legislative leaders, nor from the executive department, that the relief bill we propose will become law. However, we intend to fight vigorously for its enactment because, without its enactment, Ulster County taxpayers will be saddled with a huge and extraordinarily heavy tax burden."

305 Million Is Labeled for '59 State Road Jobs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York State will spend 305 million dollars on highway construction next year —enough to carry on major expressway work, Gov. Rockefeller said today.

The state outlay will be 125 million and the federal aid allotment 180 million, he told legislators in his annual budget message.

The state funds are 15 million higher than last year, Rockefeller declared, while the federal aid represented a sharp drop from the 246 million received in fiscal 1958-59, when work was spurred to fight the recession.

Last year, the state contracted for about 321 million dollars worth of highway work.

Rockefeller said the program would enable the state to go ahead with portions of the Albany-to-Canada Northway, the North-South Expressway linking the Southern Tier with the St. Lawrence Valley, and reconstruction of Route 17 into the Southern Tier expressway.

Appropriations for parkways totaled 15 million, including funds for further work on Long Island, realignment of sections of the Taconic parkway, and a start on rebuilding Hawthorne traffic circle.

Funds for grade-crossing eliminations total $18,300,000, and $23,500,000 is provided for engineering services.

Rocky Asks

ried couple and $400 for each dependent.

Deductions now are a flat 10 per cent to a top of $500. The ceiling would be raised to $1,000.

The taxpayer would determine his tax and subtract $10. This credit, proposed to equalize the effect of the changes, would be equal to another $500 deduction.

The present law allows a double exemption — $800 — for the aged, the blind, dependents attending college and for working mothers.

The new law would retain the double exemption at $1,200 for all but the college students. Their parents could claim only the basic $600 exemption.

The provision for college students was the only change in deductions. Present provisions on such items as medical expenses and life insurance premiums still stand.

In the case of a man and wife who both work, each would claim one exemption, just as in the federal system.

The present tax ceiling is 7 per cent on taxable income over $9,000.

The administration would add these brackets:

8 per cent on taxable income between $11,000 and $13,000.

9 per cent on taxable income between $13,000 and $15,000.

10 per cent on taxable income over $15,000.

Out-of-state residents who work in New York have paid 1958 taxes through a withholding plan set up only for them. They will get their money back for last year and begin paying again under the new plan.

Hopes for Gain

The governor said the state hoped to gain 10 million dollars in new taxes from delinquents who should have been paying but have not. The administration hopes this figure eventually climbs to 30 million.

The governor said in his budget message there was "substantial justification" for the withholding plan. He declared:

"It is unfair to the conscientious people of this state, who pay their taxes, that many others have, year in and year out, evaded payment. . .

"Withholding also facilitates payment of taxes by not requiring large annual or quarterly payments."

Persons who have incomes from sources other than salaries will continue to make quarterly payments on the basis of estimated income.

The 1958 forgiveness will apply to everyone, even those who have since retired or moved out of state and therefore will not be subject to the withholding from 1959 income.

The only exception is in the case of persons who have died since the start of 1958. Their estates must pay whatever tax would be due on 1958 income.

3 Trampled to Death

SINGAPORE (AP)—Two women and a man were trampled to death Sunday in a rush by aged poor for Chinese New Year gifts at a Singapore Buddhist lodge.

Four aged women injured in the stampede were taken to a hospital.

Guests Are Taken Behind the Scenes At Family Night

Some of the "mysteries" of behand-the-scenes telephone equipment were unveiled Friday evening to employes of the New York Telephone Company, their families and friends.

H. H. Heider, who last month assumed the managership of the Kingston office, estimated that more than 700 people participated in the evening's activities.

Opening the doors of the central office building, 449 Broadway, and the Bruyn Avenue garage, gave those attending the "family night" program, an opportunity to see what is going on in the telephone business.

On specially conducted tours, guides and lecturers explained the wealth of new equipment recently installed to furnish dial service to the Kingston area. Explanations of direct distance dialing and the functions of the various departments served to enlighten the guests further on the part members of their families play in providing good service to customers.

More than 30 exhibits were on display at the plant department garage, providing opportunity for guests to learn more about telephone equipment, new work techniques and equipment now being designed for the future.

The "open house" continued from 6 p. m. to 11 p. m. Refreshments were served at the plant garage.

and will be available Tuesday when the case is moved for trial.

Last week it was announced Former District Attorney N. LeVan Haver would assume the role of trial counsel in the Ashby case. Ashby is represented by Paul Rosen of Poughkeepsie.

Could Delay Trial

It was also announced last week that the bank records of Senator Wicks for the past 10 years had been subpoenaed by the defense. Supplying these records may be a lengthy job for bank officials and could well delay the trial.

Senator Bernard Tompkins, special prosecutor in charge of the "kickback" probe, who has been named a special attorney general to conduct the investigation, last week stated the prosecution would be ready to proceed with the case on Tuesday before Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg, who has been given complete jurisdiction to hear matters pertaining to the probe.

"School districts must pay salaries that are adequate," he said.

The funds allotted for state purposes include money for 27,000 scholarships for higher education —2,000 more than last year.

About $3,800,000 is earmarked for the growing State University, sprinkled around the state on dozens of campuses. In addition, the capital construction program allots 33 million for new buildings — including physical education buildings at teachers' colleges in Brockport, Buffalo, New Paltz, Oneonta and Plattsburgh. Also provided for is 7½ million for SUNY's new college at Stony Brook on Long Island.

One of the officers, Edward Skold, 29, was released from Englewood Hospital Saturday. The other, Gerald Wisniewski, 25, was improving today but was still in critical condition with a wound in the abdomen.

State Budget

the direct quarterly-payment system to a payroll withholding basis. Gain: 150 million.

Tobacco taxes—Raising the cigarette tax from three to five cents a package and imposing a new 15 per cent tax on the wholesale price of cigars and other tobacco products, to be paid by distributors. Gain: 47 million.

Motor Fuel Taxes — Increasing the gasoline tax from four to six cents a gallon and the diesel fuel tax from six to nine. This has already been enacted. Gain: 65½ million.

Estate Taxes—Abolishing the 5 per cent discount for payment within six months and raising rates slightly. Gain: 10 million.

Pari - Mutuel Betting Taxes—Adding five days to the 1959 flat track racing season and permitting nine races a day, instead of eight. Gain: 4½ million.

These moves combined would yield 277 million more revenue for the state in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Rockefeller said that, in balancing the budget, he had to overcome a 424-million gap between income and outgo.

He decided to use 47 million from the construction reserve fund and 100 million in construction bonds and to try to raise the rest —277 million—from taxes.

Although Rockefeller did not deal directly with the subject, administration officials said hundreds of thousands of people who do not pay income taxes now would begin paying taxes under the plan he proposed.

Lists Exemptions

This would be brought about by changing to a single-unit exemption. Current exemptions are $1,000 for a single taxpayer, $2,500 for a married couple and $400 for each dependent.

Under the Rockefeller plan, each would be assigned a $600 exemption.

To soften the impact of such a sharp cut in exemptions, the governor also proposed to allow a flat $10 reduction in the computed tax. Thatis, after figuring his tax, a taxpayer would subtract $10 and the balance would be the amount he owed.

The new system would have the curious effect of eliminating about 120,000 people who now pay taxes, while requiring another 400,000 to 500,000 to start paying for the first time.

The net gain of taxpayers would be from 300,000 to 400,000.

Those eliminated would be in lower-pay brackets where subtraction of the $10 would wipe out their tax altogether.

Another unusual effect of the new system is that, while the great majority of taxpayers would have to pay more, a few unmarried taxpayers in the upper middle income bracket would pay a bit less.

Spreads Payment

Rockefeller said he tried to spread out the tax burden so that "no single tax or group of taxpayers" would have to bear the brunt of the increase.

He said the measures he proposed "face the facts"—that is, that the state must have more money now.

At the same time, he promised action to correct the situation that led to tax boosts. He said he had had "scant opportunity" to make major changes in the budget, since the planning was begun many months before he took office, aJn. 1.

But he pointed out that he had ordered two intensive studies of state operations with these objectives:

"Maximum efficiency and economy.

"Minimum use of bond financing—because borrowing can inflate by more than 50 per cent the cost to taxpayers of capital projects.

"An end to the depletion of our reserves.

305 Million Is Labeled for '59 State Road Jobs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York State will spend 305 million dollars on highway construction next year —enough to carry on major expressway work, Gov. Rockefeller said today.

The state outlay will be 125 million and the federal aid allotment 180 million, he told legislators in his annual budget message.

The state funds are 15 million higher than last year, Rockefeller declared, while the federal aid represented a sharp drop from the 246 million received in fiscal 1958-59, when work was spurred to fight the recession.

Last year, the state contracted for about 321 million dollars worth of highway work.

Rockefeller said the program would enable the state to go ahead with portions of the Albany-to-Canada Northway, the North-South Expressway linking the Southern Tier with the St. Lawrence Valley, and reconstruction of Route 17 into the Southern Tier expressway.

Appropriations for parkways totaled 15 million, including funds for further work on Long Island, realignment of sections of the Taconic parkway, and a start on rebuilding Hawthorne traffic circle.

Funds for grade-crossing eliminations total $18,300,000, and $23,500,000 is provided for engineering services.

Rocky Asks

ried couple and $400 for each dependent.

Deductions now are a flat 10 per cent to a top of $500. The ceiling would be raised to $1,000.

The taxpayer would determine his tax and subtract $10. This credit, proposed to equalize the effect of the changes, would be equal to another $500 deduction.

The present law allows a double exemption — $800 — for the aged, the blind, dependents attending college and for working mothers.

The new law would retain the double exemption at $1,200 for all but the college students. Their parents could claim only the basic $600 exemption.

The provision for college students was the only change in deductions. Present provisions on such items as medical expenses and life insurance premiums still stand.

In the case of a man and wife who both work, each would claim one exemption, just as in the federal system.

The present tax ceiling is 7 per cent on taxable income over $9,000.

The administration would add these brackets:

8 per cent on taxable income between $11,000 and $13,000.

9 per cent on taxable income between $13,000 and $15,000.

10 per cent on taxable income over $15,000.

Out-of-state residents who work in New York have paid 1958 taxes through a withholding plan set up only for them. They will get their money back for last year and begin paying again under the new plan.

Hopes for Gain

The governor said the state hoped to gain 10 million dollars in new taxes from delinquents who should have been paying but have not. The administration hopes this figure eventually climbs to 30 million.

The governor said in his budget message there was "substantial justification" for the withholding plan. He declared:

"It is unfair to the conscientious people of this state, who pay their taxes, that many others have, year in and year out, evaded payment. . .

"Withholding also facilitates payment of taxes by not requiring large annual or quarterly payments."

Persons who have incomes from sources other than salaries will continue to make quarterly payments on the basis of estimated income.

The 1958 forgiveness will apply to everyone, even those who have since retired or moved out of state and therefore will not be subject to the withholding from 1959 income.

The only exception is in the case of persons who have died since the start of 1958. Their estates must pay whatever tax would be due on 1958 income.

3 Trampled to Death

SINGAPORE (AP)—Two women and a man were trampled to death Sunday in a rush by aged poor for Chinese New Year gifts at a Singapore Buddhist lodge.

Four aged women injured in the stampede were taken to a hospital.

Guests Are Taken Behind the Scenes At Family Night

Some of the "mysteries" of behand-the-scenes telephone equipment were unveiled Friday evening to employes of the New York Telephone Company, their families and friends.

H. H. Heider, who last month assumed the managership of the Kingston office, estimated that more than 700 people participated in the evening's activities.

Opening the doors of the central office building, 449 Broadway, and the Bruyn Avenue garage, gave those attending the "family night" program, an opportunity to see what is going on in the telephone business.

On specially conducted tours, guides and lecturers explained the wealth of new equipment recently installed to furnish dial service to the Kingston area. Explanations of direct distance dialing and the functions of the various departments served to enlighten the guests further on the part members of their families play in providing good service to customers.

More than 30 exhibits were on display at the plant department garage, providing opportunity for guests to learn more about telephone equipment, new work techniques and equipment now being designed for the future.

The "open house" continued from 6 p. m. to 11 p. m. Refreshments were served at the plant garage.

Last week it was announced Former District Attorney N. LeVan Haver would assume the role of trial counsel in the Ashby case. Ashby is represented by Paul Rosen of Poughkeepsie.

It was also announced last week that the bank records of Senator Wicks for the past 10 years had been subpoenaed by the defense. Supplying these records may be a lengthy job for bank officials and could well delay the trial.

Senator Bernard Tompkins, special prosecutor in charge of the "kickback" probe, who has been named a special attorney general to conduct the investigation, last week stated the prosecution would be ready to proceed with the case on Tuesday before Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg, who has been given complete jurisdiction to hear matters pertaining to the probe.

In addition, the capital construction program allots 33 million for new buildings — including physical education buildings at teachers' colleges in Brockport, Buffalo, New Paltz, Oneonta and Plattsburgh. 'The Boys of 65'

By FRANK TRIPP

Around the first of the year it seems that all of the old-timers are retiring. "The Boys of 65" are a growing legion of still pretty sturdy salties who carried most of the answers into retirement with them.

Tripp

When 65 became sort of a zero age of usefulness it made more sense than it does today. Far fewer men then lived to be 65. Those who did had worked 52 more days a year and at least one more hour a day than today's average.

That totals 723 hours or 90 eight-hour work days. A mere matter of three idle months every year that today's average worker is not "knocking himself out" on the job.

At age 65, the old-timer who predated today's feather bedded industry, had worked 45 years, and had been on the job 135 more months — a fabulous 11 years longer than his sons will have worked when they reach 65.

To match pop's experience and productivity the son must work past age 76 before retiring—"the boys of 76." (I'm one of 'em.)

* * *

MEN DO WEAR out, as do machines; some earlier than 65, some seemingly never. Many have reached the peak of their usefulness at 65. Others never become useful by comparison. They just hang on and check off the years until 65 puts them on a calendar par with fellows for whom pensions were meant as a reward for service, not senility.

Whether a pensioner carried the ball over the goal line or rode there on the backs of others, he still faces loneliness, a retired pal tells me; a loneliness that I never dared risk.

My father made me cautious. He ran a locomotive until 72, more than 50 years. Then until he died at 85, every day that he could get there, he went back to his old iron horse; to view it with tear-dimmed eyes and chin with old cronies. He left me a dark suspicion of retirement.

* * *

THE COMPANY pension is a boon to the sick, weary and deserving. It presupposes that the recipient has put things into the kitty that wages can't buy. More than money is due him. A pension is sort of a going away present, tagged "Have a good time."

The flaw in age-pegged pension plans, in general, is that they sting the pride of the still durable, and abet the greed of the slothful.

The age factor puts people on a par who are poles apart in usefulness and worthiness, and still farther apart in appreciation of pensions as recognition of deeds—not age.

* * *

IT COULDN'T happen, but I'd like to end up on a sheet staffed by the retired newspaper guys I know. And kept going by the annual list that, down in their hearts, will be itching to be back.

I could pick a crew that would startle the natives, drive the young bloods nuts, and likely end up in jail—which is exactly what retirement would be like to me.

This retirement by age business is cockeyed. Every time a 65-year-old salty goes to pasture, it means that some colt must graze the same meadow for 40 years to find the salt-lick box.

There is no substitute for experience.

Two Young Men Held in Slaying Of N. Y. Officer

NEW YORK (AP)—Two young men described by a detective as "confirmed cop-haters" were in jail today, accused of killing Patrolman Michael Talkowsky.

Frederick Schaefer, 16, and Emilio Cortez, 26, both of Manhattan, were held without bail Sunday for hearings Feb. 26.

Detective Vincent Hefferen, who signed the affidavit charging them with homicide, called both confirmed cop-haters.

Schaefer and Cortez were caught Saturday night in a police dragnet within hours after Talkowsky was shot to death in a gun battle in an Upper East Side tenement apartment.

Francisco Cruz, 25, was killed after Talkowsky and another patrolman entered the apartment, where an armed trio had held up seven car players.

Attorney General To Study Abuses Of Solicitation

Increasing complaints concerning abuses in the solicitation of funds by charitable organizations has prompted Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz to set up a Division of Charitable Frauds and Compliance in the Department of Law, it was announced this weekend.

"Regulations and control of the fly-by-night organizations which organize the guise of a charitable corporation soley for the purpose of soliciting funds from the public and then vanishing when the money has been obtained, is necessary for the protection of the public and legitimate charities," Attorney General Lefkowitz said.

The new division will have jurisdiction over all matters arising under Article 10-A of the Social Welfare Law and related frauds in the solicitation of funds for charitable or religious corporations.

Attorney General Lefkowitz said that Assistant Attorney General Jerome O. Gluckman will head the new division.

Complaints of charity rackets have been so numerous in recent months that in addition to the establishment of the new division in his office, Attorney General Lefkowitz also has recommended two bills to the Legislature to set up new safeguards for the public against frauds in the solicitation of funds for alleged charitable or benevolent purposes.

Escapes Injury

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — William Watson, 42, escaped injury Sunday night when his automobile and another collided at the corner of William and Watson Streets.

Merriam turkeys, wild birds hunted annually in New Mexico, were domesticated by the Indians long before the first Spanish explorers arrived.

Park and Shop Program Opens Today

TAKING TICKET—Mrs. Louis Siller, of 16 Charlotte Street, and son, David, stop at ticket machine in Senate Parking lot, with entrances on Clinton Avenue and Fair Street, to demonstrate new "park and shop" program launched today by 25 participating merchants in the uptown area.

LOCKING CAR FOR SHOPPING TRIP—Mrs. Siller locks her automobile after driving into available parking space before embarking on shopping trip. Spaciousness of the parking area facilitates parking conditions, and vehicle is "not moved around in lot" after it has been parked.

RECEIVING STAMP—Mrs. Siller, accompanied by her son, makes purchase in an uptown store and receives stamp entitling her to one full hour of free parking. Stamp is affixed to parking tickets by personnel in the 25 participating stores.

LEAVING PARKING AREA—David Siller presents parking ticket to attendant Frank Kordzikowski as his mother leaves parking area. Stamp, affixed to ticket, has permitted one-hour free parking and no fee was involved while Mrs. Siller's car was parked. Shoppers may secure more than one hour free parking by making additional purchases and securing parking stamps in any of the 25 participating stores. (Freeman photos).

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

To each century only one such man as Cecil B. deMille is born. He was a perfectionist in classic and religious themes and his pictures no doubt will be in historic archives for a century to come. Tom Walsh, of 37 Boulevard, Kingston, loaned me a fascinating illustrated book called, "Cars of the Stars and Movie Memories" an historical album by Floyd Clymer copyrighted in 1954. The foreward is written by Cecil B. deMille from which I quote:

"When Floyd Clymer asked me to write a foreword for his book he sent me half a dozen of his previous publications describing the automobiles, motorcycles, and steam engines of former years. Up to that time, I must confess that I was unaware of the fascinating library of information he had compiled and published under a number of titles. I spent more hours than I could well spare from a busy work schedule, thumbing through these volumes. I reacquainted myself with many of the horseless carriages and roaring motorcycles which I had admired in my youth and which I had completely forgotten; I learned of others of whose existence I never knew. How many Americans of my age know that over 2,000 different makes of automobiles have been produced in the United States and that now there are only about 20?"

Mr. deMille further writes: "Although some of Mr. Clymer's volumes have been called scrapbooks, I am inclined to resent that term a little. Everyone of them deserves to be called a treasury. Each is filled with nostalgia for those of us who are past 40; for those who are younger, each of these books opens an intimate view into one of the most fascinating aspects of the American past."

"It is our machine-mindedness, our love of gadgets, our genius for producing better and cheaper means of transportation which has made us the most mobile nation on earth. Our love of motion and speed are national characteristics. In 'Cars of the Stars and Movie Memories' there is a picture record of a great American industry which grew up in the first half of the 20th century. Its rise has paralleled the rise of the automobile and, in the same way, the motion and speed, the restless urge toward improvement and expansion, the kinetic energy of a young, vigorous nation."

Cecil B. deMille further explains what makes our nation the greatest in the world, "It is not surprising, then, that the people who make the movies have always been among the most enthusiastic customers for whatever Detroit had to offer. Hollywood personalities have long been noted for their automobiles, motorcycles, airplanes, yachts and other aids to mobility. This book has no deeper purpose than to call back pleasant memories of a lively group of people who worked hard and played hard in developing a great industry and whose love of motion often found expression in the possession of fine automotive equipment. (signed) Cecil B. deMille."

This extraordinary book starts off with photos of Thomas A. Edison in the library of his home at West Orange, N. J., examining a piece of film for his home kinetoscope put on the market in 1912 as the first of its kind. The book goes on in illustrations to cover the movie industry and transportation and has an excellent index in which you can name your car or star and find it immediately.

Approximately 275 billion gallons of water are used daily in the United States.

Good Idea for Oldsters: 'Service Pool' of Talents

BY MARIE DAERR

"I want to stay in the home where I have lived for 30 years," said newly-widowed Mrs. B. "I'd be lost without the yard, trees and flowers.

"But, my friends point out, who is going to do all the chores Howard used to do? How about the storm windows and the screens?

"What about cutting the grass and spading the garden? There are some jobs I just can't handle alone. And I'm not the only widow who is facing this problem.

"I've heard experts on aging say it's good for old people to stay in their own homes. But how about the jobs that must be done and which we can't manage?"

Mrs. B. is right. The experts do say it's better for an older person to stay in the home he or she loves, as long as possible. But how about those chores that are a very real and necessary part of home ownership?

I know an older woman who received a bird feeder for an April birthday gift. She thanked Bob and Helen, the young couple who gave it to her.

But afterwards she said to me: There's nothing I'd like better than a chance to watch the birds from my window. But who's going to put this up for me? I'd be embarrassed to ask Bob."

I suggested she ask a mutual friend, a widower who was recently retired from his job, and who is "handy" with tools. The older man was delighted to oblige. The feeder is up, and the problem was solved.

Why can't your small town or your big city neighborhood develop a "service pool" to help out people like Mrs. B. and, incidentally, give retired men with time on their hands a little pin money and a big feeling of being useful?

There are retired men who are still spry enough to put up a storm window or help with the major chores of raking autumn leaves or spading a garden in spring.

In some cases, this could be a labor exchange. There are elderly bachelors or widowers who could use a bit of service on such items as frayed cuffs or socks with holes in the heels. Older women, too, have talents to give, and like to feel useful.

Such a project could be operated with volunteer help and would pay big dividends to all concerned.

* * *

Q—I'm the wife of a railroad man. I can qualify for Social Security on the basis of my own earnings. Can I also get a railroad wife's annuity?—Mrs. B. W.

A—A railroad wife entitled to Social Security, through her own earnings gets only that part of a railroad wife's annuity which exceeds the Social Security payment. But if a worker himself qualifies for both Social Security and a railroad annuity, his wife is entitled to both payments.

* * *

Q—My husband and I live in a climate where it is warm enough to wear shorts most of the year. We'd like to wear them but we are afraid that at our age—60—we'd look pretty silly. What do you think?—Mrs. L. A. H.

A—I'd say try on some shorts and take an objective look in the mirror. Some figures of ANY age aren't meant for shorts. Let your appearance answer your question. Maybe, for you, shorts are apparel to be worn only in the privacy of your home.

* * *

Q—Is it true that, because I never worked outside the home, I can't draw any Social Security at age 62? My husband worked under Social Security since it went into effect.—M. A. R.

A—At age 65 you can collect 50 per cent of the amount your husband gets. At 62 you can begin drawing a reduced benefit. This would be 75 per cent of the amount you would get at 65, plus 25/36 of 1 per cent additional for each month you are older than 62 when applying.

Blames Pranksters

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The explosion of some sort of bomb, apparently by pranksters, startled residents in several blocks of the Kensington section Sunday night.

No one was hurt and there was no property damage.

Police found a seven-inch piece of pipe in one street. They said the homemade bomb apparently was dropped from an automobile.

Start Fixing Bridge Damaged by Ships

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Workmen went at the ticklish job today of cutting away the twisted steel of the Michigan Ave. bridge that blocks the Buffalo River.

The lift-bridge crashed into the river when two freighters, torn from their moorings by the floods 12 days ago, drifted downstream and struck the span. The damage was estimated at more than four million dollars.

Workmen and tug boats succeeded Saturday in freeing the grain-freighter Michael K. Tewksbury from the jam. The tugs and a Coast Guard ice-breaker broke through the ice to clear a channel.

Air Bubbles Aid In Taking Fish

Yankee ingenuity has discovered a novel method of herding sardines into their last roundup by closing in on them with a barrier curtain of air-bubbles, according to a Fish and Wildlife Service bulletin released today.

The U. S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, Fish and Wildlife Service whose research people are constantly exploring new fishery resources and improved methods of harvesting food from the sea, have developed the unique use of one inch plastic piping containing tiny holes a foot apart. These flexible lengths to tubing are laid along the bottom of the sea and compressed air is driven in from each end. The result is a curtain of bubbles escaping to the surface which serves as an effective barrier to a school of fish.

This air curtain method of driving schools of fish has successfully met tests for guiding schools of herring (sardines when you eat them out of a can or if you are fishing for them in Maine). The bubble barrier can be used as a leader, run out into deep water of a channel or the open ocean, or it can be swept across the bottom, driving the fish before it into water shallow enough for seine fishing or for weirs and traps.

This ingenious means of herding fish from inaccessible waters into the fishermen's net is welcomed by the nation's oldest industry.

Keating to Ask Newsmen's Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Kenneth Keating (R-NY) says he will introduce a bill to give newspaper reporters immunity in federal courts and before congressional committees from disclosing the source of their stories, except where national security is involved.

In a television program filmed for New York stations, Keating said Sunday 12 states now have laws which enable journalists to protect their sources.

"As a lawyer, I am naturally concerned about any move which makes the taking of evidence more difficult," he said, "but as one who believes wholeheartedly in freedom of the press, I am inclined to go along with the 12 states. . .which have already legislated in this field."

My father made me cautious. He ran a locomotive until 72, more than 50 years. Then until he died at 85, every day that he could get there, he went back to his old iron horse; to view it with tear-dimmed eyes and chin with old cronies. He left me a dark suspicion of retirement.

* * *

THE COMPANY pension is a boon to the sick, weary and deserving. It presupposes that the recipient has put things into the kitty that wages can't buy. More than money is due him. A pension is sort of a going away present, tagged "Have a good time."

The flaw in age-pegged pension plans, in general, is that they sting the pride of the still durable, and abet the greed of the slothful.

The age factor puts people on a par who are poles apart in usefulness and worthiness, and still farther apart in appreciation of pensions as recognition of deeds—not age.

IT COULDN'T happen, but I'd like to end up on a sheet staffed by the retired newspaper guys I know. And kept going by the annual list that, down in their hearts, will be itching to be back.

I could pick a crew that would startle the natives, drive the young bloods nuts, and likely end up in jail—which is exactly what retirement would be like to me.

This retirement by age business is cockeyed. Every time a 65-year-old salty goes to pasture, it means that some colt must graze the same meadow for 40 years to find the salt-lick box.

There is no substitute for experience.

Two Young Men Held in Slaying Of N. Y. Officer

NEW YORK (AP)—Two young men described by a detective as "confirmed cop-haters" were in jail today, accused of killing Patrolman Michael Talkowsky.

Frederick Schaefer, 16, and Emilio Cortez, 26, both of Manhattan, were held without bail Sunday for hearings Feb. 26.

Detective Vincent Hefferen, who signed the affidavit charging them with homicide, called both confirmed cop-haters.

Schaefer and Cortez were caught Saturday night in a police dragnet within hours after Talkowsky was shot to death in a gun battle in an Upper East Side tenement apartment.

Francisco Cruz, 25, was killed after Talkowsky and another patrolman entered the apartment, where an armed trio had held up seven car players.

Attorney General To Study Abuses Of Solicitation

Increasing complaints concerning abuses in the solicitation of funds by charitable organizations has prompted Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz to set up a Division of Charitable Frauds and Compliance in the Department of Law, it was announced this weekend.

"Regulations and control of the fly-by-night organizations which organize the guise of a charitable corporation soley for the purpose of soliciting funds from the public and then vanishing when the money has been obtained, is necessary for the protection of the public and legitimate charities," Attorney General Lefkowitz said.

The new division will have jurisdiction over all matters arising under Article 10-A of the Social Welfare Law and related frauds in the solicitation of funds for charitable or religious corporations.

Attorney General Lefkowitz said that Assistant Attorney General Jerome O. Gluckman will head the new division.

Complaints of charity rackets have been so numerous in recent months that in addition to the establishment of the new division in his office, Attorney General Lefkowitz also has recommended two bills to the Legislature to set up new safeguards for the public against frauds in the solicitation of funds for alleged charitable or benevolent purposes.

Park and Shop Program Opens Today

TAKING TICKET—Mrs. Louis Siller, of 16 Charlotte Street, and son, David, stop at ticket machine in Senate Parking lot, with entrances on Clinton Avenue and Fair Street, to demonstrate new "park and shop" program launched today by 25 participating merchants in the uptown area.

LOCKING CAR FOR SHOPPING TRIP—Mrs. Siller locks her automobile after driving into available parking space before embarking on shopping trip. Spaciousness of the parking area facilitates parking conditions, and vehicle is "not moved around in lot" after it has been parked.

RECEIVING STAMP—Mrs. Siller, accompanied by her son, makes purchase in an uptown store and receives stamp entitling her to one full hour of free parking. Stamp is affixed to parking tickets by personnel in the 25 participating stores.

LEAVING PARKING AREA—David Siller presents parking ticket to attendant Frank Kordzikowski as his mother leaves parking area. Stamp, affixed to ticket, has permitted one-hour free parking and no fee was involved while Mrs. Siller's car was parked. Shoppers may secure more than one hour free parking by making additional purchases and securing parking stamps in any of the 25 participating stores. (Freeman photos).

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

To each century only one such man as Cecil B. deMille is born. He was a perfectionist in classic and religious themes and his pictures no doubt will be in historic archives for a century to come. Tom Walsh, of 37 Boulevard, Kingston, loaned me a fascinating illustrated book called, "Cars of the Stars and Movie Memories" an historical album by Floyd Clymer copyrighted in 1954. The foreward is written by Cecil B. deMille from which I quote:

"When Floyd Clymer asked me to write a foreword for his book he sent me half a dozen of his previous publications describing the automobiles, motorcycles, and steam engines of former years. Up to that time, I must confess that I was unaware of the fascinating library of information he had compiled and published under a number of titles. I spent more hours than I could well spare from a busy work schedule, thumbing through these volumes. I reacquainted myself with many of the horseless carriages and roaring motorcycles which I had admired in my youth and which I had completely forgotten; I learned of others of whose existence I never knew. How many Americans of my age know that over 2,000 different makes of automobiles have been produced in the United States and that now there are only about 20?"

Mr. deMille further writes: "Although some of Mr. Clymer's volumes have been called scrapbooks, I am inclined to resent that term a little. Everyone of them deserves to be called a treasury. Each is filled with nostalgia for those of us who are past 40; for those who are younger, each of these books opens an intimate view into one of the most fascinating aspects of the American past."

"It is our machine-mindedness, our love of gadgets, our genius for producing better and cheaper means of transportation which has made us the most mobile nation on earth. Our love of motion and speed are national characteristics. In 'Cars of the Stars and Movie Memories' there is a picture record of a great American industry which grew up in the first half of the 20th century. Its rise has paralleled the rise of the automobile and, in the same way, the motion and speed, the restless urge toward improvement and expansion, the kinetic energy of a young, vigorous nation."

Cecil B. deMille further explains what makes our nation the greatest in the world, "It is not surprising, then, that the people who make the movies have always been among the most enthusiastic customers for whatever Detroit had to offer. Hollywood personalities have long been noted for their automobiles, motorcycles, airplanes, yachts and other aids to mobility. This book has no deeper purpose than to call back pleasant memories of a lively group of people who worked hard and played hard in developing a great industry and whose love of motion often found expression in the possession of fine automotive equipment. (signed) Cecil B. deMille."

This extraordinary book starts off with photos of Thomas A. Edison in the library of his home at West Orange, N. J., examining a piece of film for his home kinetoscope put on the market in 1912 as the first of its kind. The book goes on in illustrations to cover the movie industry and transportation and has an excellent index in which you can name your car or star and find it immediately.

Approximately 275 billion gallons of water are used daily in the United States.

Good Idea for Oldsters: 'Service Pool' of Talents

BY MARIE DAERR

"I want to stay in the home where I have lived for 30 years," said newly-widowed Mrs. B. "I'd be lost without the yard, trees and flowers.

"But, my friends point out, who is going to do all the chores Howard used to do? How about the storm windows and the screens?

"What about cutting the grass and spading the garden? There are some jobs I just can't handle alone. And I'm not the only widow who is facing this problem.

"I've heard experts on aging say it's good for old people to stay in their own homes. But how about the jobs that must be done and which we can't manage?"

Mrs. B. is right. The experts do say it's better for an older person to stay in the home he or she loves, as long as possible. But how about those chores that are a very real and necessary part of home ownership?

I know an older woman who received a bird feeder for an April birthday gift. She thanked Bob and Helen, the young couple who gave it to her.

But afterwards she said to me: There's nothing I'd like better than a chance to watch the birds from my window. But who's going to put this up for me? I'd be embarrassed to ask Bob."

I suggested she ask a mutual friend, a widower who was recently retired from his job, and who is "handy" with tools. The older man was delighted to oblige. The feeder is up, and the problem was solved.

Why can't your small town or your big city neighborhood develop a "service pool" to help out people like Mrs. B. and, incidentally, give retired men with time on their hands a little pin money and a big feeling of being useful?

There are retired men who are still spry enough to put up a storm window or help with the major chores of raking autumn leaves or spading a garden in spring.

In some cases, this could be a labor exchange. There are elderly bachelors or widowers who could use a bit of service on such items as frayed cuffs or socks with holes in the heels. Older women, too, have talents to give, and like to feel useful.

Such a project could be operated with volunteer help and would pay big dividends to all concerned.

Q—I'm the wife of a railroad man. I can qualify for Social Security on the basis of my own earnings. Can I also get a railroad wife's annuity?—Mrs. B. W.

A—A railroad wife entitled to Social Security, through her own earnings gets only that part of a railroad wife's annuity which exceeds the Social Security payment. But if a worker himself qualifies for both Social Security and a railroad annuity, his wife is entitled to both payments.

* * *

Q—My husband and I live in a climate where it is warm enough to wear shorts most of the year. We'd like to wear them but we are afraid that at our age—60—we'd look pretty silly. What do you think?—Mrs. L. A. H.

A—I'd say try on some shorts and take an objective look in the mirror. Some figures of ANY age aren't meant for shorts. Let your appearance answer your question. Maybe, for you, shorts are apparel to be worn only in the privacy of your home.

* * *

Q—Is it true that, because I never worked outside the home, I can't draw any Social Security at age 62? My husband worked under Social Security since it went into effect.—M. A. R.

A—At age 65 you can collect 50 per cent of the amount your husband gets. At 62 you can begin drawing a reduced benefit. This would be 75 per cent of the amount you would get at 65, plus 25/36 of 1 per cent additional for each month you are older than 62 when applying.

Blames Pranksters

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The explosion of some sort of bomb, apparently by pranksters, startled residents in several blocks of the Kensington section Sunday night.

No one was hurt and there was no property damage.

Police found a seven-inch piece of pipe in one street. They said the homemade bomb apparently was dropped from an automobile.

Start Fixing Bridge Damaged by Ships

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Workmen went at the ticklish job today of cutting away the twisted steel of the Michigan Ave. bridge that blocks the Buffalo River.

The lift-bridge crashed into the river when two freighters, torn from their moorings by the floods 12 days ago, drifted downstream and struck the span. The damage was estimated at more than four million dollars.

Workmen and tug boats succeeded Saturday in freeing the grain-freighter Michael K. Tewksbury from the jam. The tugs and a Coast Guard ice-breaker broke through the ice to clear a channel.

Air Bubbles Aid In Taking Fish

Yankee ingenuity has discovered a novel method of herding sardines into their last roundup by closing in on them with a barrier curtain of air-bubbles, according to a Fish and Wildlife Service bulletin released today.

The U. S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, Fish and Wildlife Service whose research people are constantly exploring new fishery resources and improved methods of harvesting food from the sea, have developed the unique use of one inch plastic piping containing tiny holes a foot apart. These flexible lengths to tubing are laid along the bottom of the sea and compressed air is driven in from each end. The result is a curtain of bubbles escaping to the surface which serves as an effective barrier to a school of fish.

This air curtain method of driving schools of fish has successfully met tests for guiding schools of herring (sardines when you eat them out of a can or if you are fishing for them in Maine). The bubble barrier can be used as a leader, run out into deep water of a channel or the open ocean, or it can be swept across the bottom, driving the fish before it into water shallow enough for seine fishing or for weirs and traps.

This ingenious means of herding fish from inaccessible waters into the fishermen's net is welcomed by the nation's oldest industry.

Keating to Ask Newsmen's Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Kenneth Keating (R-NY) says he will introduce a bill to give newspaper reporters immunity in federal courts and before congressional committees from disclosing the source of their stories, except where national security is involved.

In a television program filmed for New York stations, Keating said Sunday 12 states now have laws which enable journalists to protect their sources.

"As a lawyer, I am naturally concerned about any move which makes the taking of evidence more difficult," he said, "but as one who believes wholeheartedly in freedom of the press, I am inclined to go along with the 12 states. . .which have already legislated in this field."

TAKING YOUNG LADIES HOME

Dear Mrs. Post: I wish you would write somthing in your column about the hostesses who put their men guests "on the spot" by asking them to take unescorted young women home from a party. This has happened to me on quite a few occasions and I am getting fed up with it. It has always been my luck, too, to be asked to take a girl home who lives on the other side of town, and it takes me hours to get back. I am not alone in this complaint as several of my fraternity brothers have run into this same problem. Is there any way one can gracefully refuse to comply with this request?

Answer: Surely your hostess will understand and forgive you, if you explain that the young woman she has asked you to take home lives on the other side of town and that you have to be up very early in the morning. A hostess who very often saddles young men with taking young women home will find it more and more difficult to get attractive young men to come to her parties.

Clothes of the Groom's Father

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is going to be married at an afternoon wedding. All the men in the wedding party, including the bride's father, are going to wear striped trousers and cutaway coats. My husband planned on wearing a dark blue business suit but my son has told him that he has to dress the same as the bride's father. My husband is very upset over this and we would like to know if my son is right.

Answer: It is not at all necessary that the bridgroom's father be obliged to wear formal clothes since he takes no part in the ceremony.

Gifts for Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Post: My attendants are arriving at the last minute, no parties for them ahead of time are possible. When would be the best time to give them their gifts? Could they be given at the wedding reception?

Answer: When you are together before you leave for the church would be the usual time to give them under the circumstances you describe.

TAKING YOUNG LADIES HOME

Dear Mrs. Post: I wish you would write somthing in your column about the hostesses who put their men guests "on the spot" by asking them to take unescorted young women home from a party. This has happened to me on quite a few occasions and I am getting fed up with it. It has always been my luck, too, to be asked to take a girl home who lives on the other side of town, and it takes me hours to get back. I am not alone in this complaint as several of my fraternity brothers have run into this same problem. Is there any way one can gracefully refuse to comply with this request?

Answer: Surely your hostess will understand and forgive you, if you explain that the young woman she has asked you to take home lives on the other side of town and that you have to be up very early in the morning. A hostess who very often saddles young men with taking young women home will find it more and more difficult to get attractive young men to come to her parties.

Clothes of the Groom's Father

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is going to be married at an afternoon wedding. All the men in the wedding party, including the bride's father, are going to wear striped trousers and cutaway coats. My husband planned on wearing a dark blue business suit but my son has told him that he has to dress the same as the bride's father. My husband is very upset over this and we would like to know if my son is right.

Answer: It is not at all necessary that the bridgroom's father be obliged to wear formal clothes since he takes no part in the ceremony.

Gifts for Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Post: My attendants are arriving at the last minute, no parties for them ahead of time are possible. When would be the best time to give them their gifts? Could they be given at the wedding reception?

Answer: When you are together before you leave for the church would be the usual time to give them under the circumstances you describe.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her booklet No. 502, entitled "Etiquette of Letter Writing," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, care of The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19. N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot anwer personal mail.

ROBERTA PETERS

Coloratura to Sing Varied Program Here On Tuesday, Feb. 10 for Concert Series

Roberta Peters, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera arrives in Kingston for a concert appearance on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at Community Theatre.

Miss Peters, young soprano of the Metropolitan, is completing her eighth season with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York, and she will make additional appearances with the company on their annual Spring tour.

An extremely well-balanced program of English, French and German songs, Italian operatic arias, and an oratorio excerpt, highlight Miss Peters' appearance here. The program, a tribute to her versatility, is the "reversal of a common trend. Usually a career is started by a singer as a concert artist who may then go into the field of opera. In Miss Peters' case, she is the established opera star who then ventured (with equal success) into the concert field.

Miss Peters will be accompanied by George Trovillo at the piano and Wayne Crebo, flutist. She has chosen the songs of Handel, Debussy and Ravel and the German Lieder of Schumann and Strauss.

She has chosen this program because she feels that a coloratura should not confine herself only to Bravura and florid singing. Many persons lose track of the fact of the importance of the lyric and fluid line in music for a coloratura.

At the completion of Miss Peters' tour with the Metropolitan, she hopes to accept La Scala's invitation to sing there. The Cultural Ministry of the USSR has invited her to sing with the Bolshoi Opera in Moscow and other cities of the Soviet Union next summer.

ROBERTA PETERS

Coloratura to Sing Varied Program Here On Tuesday, Feb. 10 for Concert Series

Roberta Peters, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera arrives in Kingston for a concert appearance on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at Community Theatre.

Miss Peters, young soprano of the Metropolitan, is completing her eighth season with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York, and she will make additional appearances with the company on their annual Spring tour.

An extremely well-balanced program of English, French and German songs, Italian operatic arias, and an oratorio excerpt, highlight Miss Peters' appearance here. The program, a tribute to her versatility, is the "reversal of a common trend. Usually a career is started by a singer as a concert artist who may then go into the field of opera. In Miss Peters' case, she is the established opera star who then ventured (with equal success) into the concert field.

Miss Peters will be accompanied by George Trovillo at the piano and Wayne Crebo, flutist. She has chosen the songs of Handel, Debussy and Ravel and the German Lieder of Schumann and Strauss.

She has chosen this program because she feels that a coloratura should not confine herself only to Bravura and florid singing. Many persons lose track of the fact of the importance of the lyric and fluid line in music for a coloratura.

At the completion of Miss Peters' tour with the Metropolitan, she hopes to accept La Scala's invitation to sing there. The Cultural Ministry of the USSR has invited her to sing with the Bolshoi Opera in Moscow and other cities of the Soviet Union next summer.

Bareika Firm Awarded Two Contracts for Town Highway Equipment, Cost of $26,425

Harry Bareika, Inc., of Kingston submitted low bid of $19,855 for a new 4-point, postive drive, combination snow-fighter, tractor-truck, Town Superintendent of Highways Albert Cashdollar notified members of the Town Board at a special meeting Friday night.

The Bareika bid, Cashdollar said, was the lowest among three submitted. Others came from Rand-Mercury of Long Island and the Walter Motor Truck Company of Queens.

The Town Board then approved a resolution authorizing Cashdollar to purchase the snowfighter through the Bareika firm.

Cost of the new equipment, which replaces machinery Superintendent Cashdollar has used since 1934, will be financed through a statutory installment bond of $20,000 furnished by the Woodstock branch of the Bank of Orange County.

Was Lone Bidder

The Bareika firm, which was the only bidder, also was awarded a contract to furnish two new "Shunk-Torwel" reversible spreaders at a cost of $6,570.00.

Superintendent Cashdollar notified the Town Board that he had enough money in the machinery fund to pay for the new spreaders. However, a bond had to be floated for the new snowfighter and a resolution to that effect was unanimously approved by the board.

It was voted that a bond not exceeding $20,000 be floated for this particular equipment through the Orange County Bank. It will be for a five-year period but will be paid by January 30, 1963. Payments will be made annually at an interest rate of 3½ per cent. The annual payments will be $4,963.75.

Abram G. Molyneaux, legal adviser to the Town Board, informed the members that it was legal to float the $20,000 statutory installment bond and that a public hearing was not necessary in this type of transaction.

The $20,000 statutory bond is one of the highest ever floated by the Town Board. A year ago one for $10,000 was authorized to complete repairs to damage caused by the 1957 floods.

Felt It Was Needed

In authorizing Superintendent Cashdollar to purchase the three pieces of new equipment, the Board was unanimous in its feeling that it was badly needed. The snowfighter Cashdollar has been using is a 1934 model. It was also pointed out that the town superintendent had been using a demonstrator spreader for the past three weeks.

Bids for the new machinery were advertised by Superintendent Cashdollar on January 15, 1959, and were opened by him on Jan. 22. He had for making the final decision on the awarding of the bids. The Town Board legally has no jurisdiction in this matter.

When asked by Councilman Tobie Geertsema if these items were available under state contracts, Cashdollar said they were not. He said there was not state bid price on either item.

The snowplow was to be delivered by Jan. 31 with the spreaders to follow within the next few days.

The Board signed the annual agreement on highway monies with the town superintendent of highways and the county superintendent. A total of $63,817.12 will be made available for the repair and upkeep of the town highways. Superintendent Cashdollar said the total mileage of town highway roads is now 85.56 miles.

Change Meeting Dates

The sum of money for this purpose is accumulated through the balance of the highway fund at the end of the year; plus the tax levy and state aid.

The "fixed" meeting date for the Town Board will be abandoned during the months of February and March, it was announced. Because Supervisor Fitzsimmons is on vacation, this month's regular meeting is scheduled Thursday, Feb. 26. The March meeting was postponed to Tuesday, March 31, because Mrs. Marjorie Harder, board clerk, will be on vacation on the regular meeting date.

Supervisor Fitzsimmons presided as chairman of the special meeting. Other members of the board present were. Councilmen John Pike and Tobie Geertsema, Justices of the Peace Dixon McGrath and Charles Farley and Marjorie Harder, clerk.

Woodstock Post No. 1026 of the American Legion is mapping plans to increase participation in the annual Memorial Day parade and the indoor exercises at Town Hall, post Commander Chester Gaede has announced.

A five-man committee was named at the January meeting of the Legion to study all phases of the program with an eye toward making improvements.

Members of the committee are Commander Gaede, Wanye Underhill, Charles J. Tiano, Schuyler Schultz and William Polk, the post adjutant. They are expected to meet in the near future to draft preliminary plans.

The post voted memberships to Kenneth Van Wagner of Willow and Herman Hucner of Lake Hill. Both were proposed by Schuyler Schultz.

Blue Crutch Drive

William Pierpont, chairman of the Blue Crutch Drive, proposed a hard hitting program and asked for a house-to-house canvas in West Hurley, Zena, Wittenberg and Woodstock village. Assisting him will be Victor Allen and William Polk.

The committee for the annual St. Patrick's dinner—Harry Cable and George Rowland—reported that all indications point to a highly successful affair.

The post voted a $5.00 donation to the polio fund through the Blue Crutch program.

A resolution was adopted authtorizing the adjutant to write a letter to Joseph S. Forno, proprietor of the Colonial Pharmacy, thanking him for the ice cream cones he has distributed to youngsters for many years during the Memorial Day parade. Plan Coupon Drive hd z

A letter was read from the Ulster County Heart Chapter, inviting the post membership to the annual luncheon at the Governor Clinton hotel in February.

The adjutant was directed to write a letter to Joyce Schirck Post of Kingston to make arrangements for appearance of the VFW Drum Corps in the Memorial Day parade. In connection with the letter, Commander Gaede said the possibility of additional music in the parade would be discussed by his committee.

Members were instructed to ask their wives to save coupons from various standard brand household items. These can be redeemed by the Legion for valuable merchandise.

Mrs. Martin Cantine Honored at Baby Show

Mrs. Martin Cantine of Byrdcliffe Road was guest of honor at a stork shower held at the home of Mrs. Jack Feeley on the lower Ohayo Mountain Road. Mrs. Cantine, who is expecting her third baby, received many beautiful gifts.

Among those attending were the Mesdames Warren Jacober, Steve Elliott, Walter Plate, John McClellan, Ted Geertsema, Kenneth Downer, Joseph Holdridge, Jr., Fred Toms, Mrs. Helen Hastie and Misses Josephine Chapin, Ellen Feeley, Barbara Hastie and Gail Feeley.

Town Notes

Supervisor and Mrs. Joseph Fitzsimmons and Mrs. Fitzsimmons' parents — Mr. and Mrs. Orville Elwyn — left Sunday for a three week vacation at Lakeland, Florida.

One of Woodstock's most active senior citizens, Fennell (Pop) Franckling recently celebrated his 75th birthday. He was honored at a surprise party at home by members of the family. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Austin Matterer of White Plains, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Franckling, Dorothy Wright and Mr. and Mrs. James Radcliffe of Kingston.

IBM Traffic Man To Receive Award

Traffic analyst for the Poughkeepsie IBM plant, Hugh E. Clarke has been selected for an award of merit by the Associated Traffic Clubs of America for his essay, "Making Top Management Aware of the Traffic Department."

The award will be presented at the Feb. 11 "Industrial Night" meeting of the Mid-Hudson Traffic Club at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie.

Clarke has been engaged in traffic work for the past 20 years, the last eight of which have been spent as traffic analyst for IBM. He is a vice president of the Mid-Hudson Traffic Club and a former secretary of that organization.

Certified Member

A licensed Interstate Commerce Commission practictioner and a certified member of the American Society Traffic & Transportation, Clarke also is affiliated with the Metropolitan New York Chapter of the Association of Interstate Commerce Practitioners and the New York State Chapter of American Society Traffic and Transportation.

Clarke, currently teaching a general traffic course in Poughkeepsie, sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Traffic Club, has twice previously been awarded certificates of merit by the Associated Traffic Clubs.

The first award was in January, 1956 for a paper on "Why the Traffic Department Should Have Top Management Representation," and the second in May, 1956 for an essay on "Why Change the National Transportation Policy."

Legislators Ask Research Support For Drug Addicts

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—There is an urgent need for publicly supported research on drug addiction and an independent commission should be created to meet the problem head-on, a legislative committee maintains.

Noting that New York State has 43 per cent of the nation's drug addicts, the Joint Legislative Committee on Narcotic Study said Sunday a separate commission could coordinate the state's activities in coping with the problem.

It also recommended adjustments in various narcotic panel provisions.

"Since addiction in New York is primarily a heroin problem, and since there is no established cure for heroin addiction, any procedures based on current knowledge can but represent humane palliatives. We must look to research for any real breakthrough," the committee's report said.

The state is almost totally lacking in publicly supported hospital facilities for narcotics addicts, the report added.

It called for closer study of the content and effect of education on narcotics in the public schools and for additional support for vocational rehabilitation of former drug users and narcotic parolees.

In the penal field, the report recommended that minimum sentences for first narcotic felony offenders be removed and that an offender become liable to a 15-year-to-life sentence after a fourth, rather than a third, narcotic conviction.

Pilot Bounces Off Roof Leaving Jet

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP)—A pilot bailed out of his flaming jet fighter and landed on top of a house Saturday. The plane crashed into an open field.

The pilot, 2nd Lt. Thomas Richter of West Seneca, a Buffalo suburb, bounced off the roof and swung to the ground as his parachute caught in the limbs of a tree. He suffered minor bruises.

His F86 jet was approaching for a landing at the Niagara Falls Airport when it caught fire at about 3,000 feet altitude.

Richter, 22, is a pilot in the 107th Fighter Wing of the Air National Guard.

Carlino Says GOP Opposed to Bets Off Race Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Assemblyman Majority Leader Joseph F. Carlino, an opponent of off-track betting on horse races, says "those in positions of responsibility" among Republicans in the Legislature generally share his views on the issue.

Carlino discussed his views in a radio interview Sunday and later expanded his remarks in a news interview.

He said also the state might extend to other railroad commuter lines the 60 per cent real estate tax forgiveness that it granted the Long Island Rail Road to help it reorganize.

'Complex Problem'

Carlino said such tax forgiveness would present "a complex problem" that may have to be solved if passenger lines serving the metropolitan area were to be saved.

He suggested that the Legislature could establish a new equivalent of the railroad redevelopment law by using its power over state and local real estate taxes and the franchise tax law. The railroad development law was enacted in 1954 specifically to help the Long Island, which then was in bankruptcy. The tax forgiveness amounts to about $2,260,000 a year.

On the issue of off-track betting, Carlino said he not only opposed immediate legalization but also opposed the alternate proposal to submit the issue to a referendum.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner's administration is seeking legalization as a means of taxing the betting to help raise additional revenue needed by the city to balance its next budget.

Space Inquiry Shifts to House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inquiry into the U.S. space program swung from the Senate to the House today with some Democratic congressmen demanding a bigger effort than President Eisenhower's budget proposes.

Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La), chairman of the House Space Committee, called T. Keith Glennan, civilian space chief, for leadoff testimony in hearings to run at least a week.

Brooks brought up questions like those asked of many of the same witnesses last week by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex).

"Is the Soviet Union really ahead in science? In astronautics? In space exploration? In missiles?" Brooks asked in preparation for the hearings.

Brooks said he would seek to have a "10 per cent fund" set aside out of military development funds. It would be earmarked for pure scientific research, he said.

Pilot, Nephew Swim to Shore in River Landing

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A pilot crash-landed his single engine plane Sunday in the Columbia River. He and his teen-age nephew swam safely to shore.

Patrick Michael Barker, 45, of Portland, said he couldn't make an airfield near the river because he was too low when his motor quit. He and his nephew, Robert Vanderwall, 14, were exhausted by the 150-foot swim against strong currents and suffered shock.

Dies of Heart Attack Hustling for Doctor

CORNING, N. Y. (AP) — Samuel Moshier, 51, died of a heart attack while driving to get help for a neighbor who, police said, faked a gunshot wound during a quarrel with his wife.

State Police said Charles Smith, 35, fired a shotgun into the air outside his farm home Saturday, fell to the ground and pretended to be hurt.

His wife ran to Moshier's house and, since neither has a telephone, the two began driving to another neighbor's house.

On the way, Moshier told Mrs. Smith, "I feel sick," stopped the car and died.

Iron Lung Brings Life to Girl, 10, Injured in Crash

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) —The thump-thump of an iron lung today forced life into a 10-year-old girl who can't breathe on her own because of brain damage in an auto accident. Her parents and two others were killed in a head-on collision.

Priscilla Taylor, 10, of Chamblee, Ga., was in critical condition. She had not drawn a breath of her own since midnight Saturday.

An electric respirator broke down Sunday. Nurses and orderlies pumped a hand-operated one more than three hours before the iron lung was obtained from Charlotte, 35 miles to the east.

Killed in the wreck at nearby Grover were Marine T. Sgt. Mack Taylor, 36, stationed in Atlanta and his wife, Stella Taylor, also 36. George Arthur Gregg, 14, and Clarence Luther Horton, 20, Negroes, of Gaffney, S.C., also died.

Sgt. J. B. Kuykendall of the state highway patrol said a car driven by a third Gaffney Negro, Henry Galmoer, 32, went out of control at high speed and hit the Taylor car head-on. Galmoer was in good condition at a hospital here. Kuykendall said he was charged with murder.

Musicians Sign Networks Pact

NEW YORK (AP)—Members of the American Federation of Musicians went to work today at three major networks with a new five-year contract.

The union and the networks agreed on the terms of the pact Sunday.

The settlement ended a strike by the musicians, who were ordered to stop work at midnight Saturday when the old contract expired. No programs were affected.

The new contract gives staff musicians a later wage increase and a pension plan, plus payment for shows that are rerun. The networks may reduce their staffs in some cities under the terms.

The networks involved are the American Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System, and National Broadcasting Co.

Staff musicians will not get a pay increase until Feb. 1, 1961, when their salaries go up 10 per cent.

The minimum pay for network staff musicians working on commercial radio and television shows in New York is $220 a week. The amount varies in other cities.

Hooked Bumpers

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — Odd, thought W. S. Patton, how closely a pickup truck had been following his car.

Then he got out and learned why. His car was towing the driverless truck. Patton said he apparently hooked bumpers with the truck in pulling away from a parking place.

Bareika Firm Awarded Two Contracts for Town Highway Equipment, Cost of $26,425

Harry Bareika, Inc., of Kingston submitted low bid of $19,855 for a new 4-point, postive drive, combination snow-fighter, tractor-truck, Town Superintendent of Highways Albert Cashdollar notified members of the Town Board at a special meeting Friday night.

The Bareika bid, Cashdollar said, was the lowest among three submitted. Others came from Rand-Mercury of Long Island and the Walter Motor Truck Company of Queens.

The Town Board then approved a resolution authorizing Cashdollar to purchase the snowfighter through the Bareika firm.

Cost of the new equipment, which replaces machinery Superintendent Cashdollar has used since 1934, will be financed through a statutory installment bond of $20,000 furnished by the Woodstock branch of the Bank of Orange County.

Was Lone Bidder

The Bareika firm, which was the only bidder, also was awarded a contract to furnish two new "Shunk-Torwel" reversible spreaders at a cost of $6,570.00.

Superintendent Cashdollar notified the Town Board that he had enough money in the machinery fund to pay for the new spreaders. However, a bond had to be floated for the new snowfighter and a resolution to that effect was unanimously approved by the board.

It was voted that a bond not exceeding $20,000 be floated for this particular equipment through the Orange County Bank. It will be for a five-year period but will be paid by January 30, 1963. Payments will be made annually at an interest rate of 3½ per cent. The annual payments will be $4,963.75.

Abram G. Molyneaux, legal adviser to the Town Board, informed the members that it was legal to float the $20,000 statutory installment bond and that a public hearing was not necessary in this type of transaction.

The $20,000 statutory bond is one of the highest ever floated by the Town Board. A year ago one for $10,000 was authorized to complete repairs to damage caused by the 1957 floods.

Felt It Was Needed

In authorizing Superintendent Cashdollar to purchase the three pieces of new equipment, the Board was unanimous in its feeling that it was badly needed. The snowfighter Cashdollar has been using is a 1934 model. It was also pointed out that the town superintendent had been using a demonstrator spreader for the past three weeks.

Bids for the new machinery were advertised by Superintendent Cashdollar on January 15, 1959, and were opened by him on Jan. 22. He had for making the final decision on the awarding of the bids. The Town Board legally has no jurisdiction in this matter.

When asked by Councilman Tobie Geertsema if these items were available under state contracts, Cashdollar said they were not. He said there was not state bid price on either item.

The snowplow was to be delivered by Jan. 31 with the spreaders to follow within the next few days.

The Board signed the annual agreement on highway monies with the town superintendent of highways and the county superintendent. A total of $63,817.12 will be made available for the repair and upkeep of the town highways. Superintendent Cashdollar said the total mileage of town highway roads is now 85.56 miles.

Change Meeting Dates

The sum of money for this purpose is accumulated through the balance of the highway fund at the end of the year; plus the tax levy and state aid.

The "fixed" meeting date for the Town Board will be abandoned during the months of February and March, it was announced. Because Supervisor Fitzsimmons is on vacation, this month's regular meeting is scheduled Thursday, Feb. 26. The March meeting was postponed to Tuesday, March 31, because Mrs. Marjorie Harder, board clerk, will be on vacation on the regular meeting date.

Supervisor Fitzsimmons presided as chairman of the special meeting. Other members of the board present were. Councilmen John Pike and Tobie Geertsema, Justices of the Peace Dixon McGrath and Charles Farley and Marjorie Harder, clerk.

Woodstock Post No. 1026 of the American Legion is mapping plans to increase participation in the annual Memorial Day parade and the indoor exercises at Town Hall, post Commander Chester Gaede has announced.

A five-man committee was named at the January meeting of the Legion to study all phases of the program with an eye toward making improvements.

Members of the committee are Commander Gaede, Wanye Underhill, Charles J. Tiano, Schuyler Schultz and William Polk, the post adjutant. They are expected to meet in the near future to draft preliminary plans.

The post voted memberships to Kenneth Van Wagner of Willow and Herman Hucner of Lake Hill. Both were proposed by Schuyler Schultz.

Blue Crutch Drive

William Pierpont, chairman of the Blue Crutch Drive, proposed a hard hitting program and asked for a house-to-house canvas in West Hurley, Zena, Wittenberg and Woodstock village. Assisting him will be Victor Allen and William Polk.

The committee for the annual St. Patrick's dinner—Harry Cable and George Rowland—reported that all indications point to a highly successful affair.

The post voted a $5.00 donation to the polio fund through the Blue Crutch program.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the adjutant to write a letter to Joseph S. Forno, proprietor of the Colonial Pharmacy, thanking him for the ice cream cones he has distributed to youngsters for many years during the Memorial Day parade. Plan Coupon Drive hd z

A letter was read from the Ulster County Heart Chapter, inviting the post membership to the annual luncheon at the Governor Clinton hotel in February.

The adjutant was directed to write a letter to Joyce Schirck Post of Kingston to make arrangements for appearance of the VFW Drum Corps in the Memorial Day parade. In connection with the letter, Commander Gaede said the possibility of additional music in the parade would be discussed by his committee.

Members were instructed to ask their wives to save coupons from various standard brand household items. These can be redeemed by the Legion for valuable merchandise.

Hooked Bumpers

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — Odd, thought W. S. Patton, how closely a pickup truck had been following his car.

Then he got out and learned why. His car was towing the driverless truck. Patton said he apparently hooked bumpers with the truck in pulling away from a parking place.

About one dollar of every five that Americans spend for recreation goes to the motion pictures.

New Paltz Teachers Nip Waterbury, 85-83

Gamboli's Hook Clinches Tilt For Hawk Quintet

Tony Gamboli made a hook shot from the foul line with two seconds left to play at Waterbury Saturday night to give New Paltz State Teachers' College an 85-83 decision over the home side in a thriller from start to finish.

With 14 seconds to play, Waterbury missed a shot and the Hawks recovered the rebound. They worked down court and then Gamboli took his shot. It swished through the basket for the winning points. It climaxed a great night for the Spring Valley junior. He finished with 33 points. Freshman Harvey Henry made 24.

New Paltz has a 3-5 record. Two of the victories have been against the Waterbury Teachers.

Katsbaan Cagers Top "Y" Stars, 103 to 96

Despite a blistering third period rally, the YMCA All-Stars weren't able to take command and they dropped a 103-96 decision to Katsbaan Tavern Saturday night at Saugerties High School in a polio benefit clash. A good crowd watched the action and there was plenty of it.

The Stars had a fatal second period in which they scored only eight points. That put them behind 48-30 at halftime and they could never get closer than five points during the second half.

Ronnie Scheffel was the pacemaker for the winners. He canned 15 buckets and a pair of foul shots for 32 points in a shiny performance. Frank "Yip" Koenig added 24 markers and Buddy Smith contributed 16. Ron Marks and Tom Morrissey also scored in double figures.

Dick Telingen was a big noise for the Stars. He rimmed 12 field goals and six foul shots for 30 points. Andy Juhl chipped in with 24 and Joe Klonowski made 14.

Walther Video Victor With 751 For New Record

Piling up 751 with games of 248-257-246, Johnny Walther, Capital City Classic and All-star Individual league champion, had little trouble defeating Phil Palmer of Mechanicville in their bowling match televised from GEAA lanes in Schenectady.

Palmer, a junior at Siena college who amazed Capital District fans by winning the elimination at the Playdium two Saturdays ago, went well over his regular average by totaling 615 with games of 181-218-216. The triple was his all-time high. He has been bowling only 13 months.

Walther's triple is a new high on the TV show, sponsored by the Capital District BPA and Fitzgerald Bros.. The previous high was Buster Ferraro's 733. Jim Caputo will face Walther next week.

4-Goal Trick Getting Common

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The three-goal hat trick is a rarity in professional hockey but in the college ranks three or more goals by one player is becoming quite common.

Center Larry Langill of St. Lawrence and Bud Gilchrist of Clarkson, for instance, turned in night. Gilchrist's teammate, sophomore Ken Gardiner who played his first game for the Engineers, tallied three times.

Langill paced St. Lawrence to an 11-5 victory over Middlebury in a Tri-State League game at Canton. Meanwhile, Clarkson blanked American International 17-0 at Potsdam.

In Troy, Rensselaer Poly outskated Princeton 6-4 in a wild contest. Norwich, playing on its home ice at Northfield, Vt., edged Hamilton 4-3 in overtime.

Schirick Dinner Again Postponed

Justice Schirick has been advised by his doctor to take a six-weeks rest in Florida before resuming his normal schedule.

Forst Keglers Are Victims Of Big Scores

Maglie Denies Spitball Charge

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. A(P)—"I've never thrown a spitball," says Sal Maglie in a flat denial of a charge that he uses the illegal pitch.

Bill Rigney, manager of the San Francisco Giants, accused the St. Louis pitcher and three other National League hurlers of throwing the spitball.

"He's a liar," said Maglie Saturday. "He knows damned well I never threw the spitter."

Rigney said in a copyrighted article in a national magainze (Parade) that Maglie, Lew Burdette of Milwaukee, Elroy Face of Pittsburgh and Marv Grissom of St. Louis threw the spitball.

Maglie agreed with Rigney, however, that the spitball pitch should be made legal." The edge is with the batter, anyway," he said, "and I think the pitcher needs any advantage he can get."

Rocky Promises Hands Off On Changing Spa Season

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has pledged that his administration will make no move to change Saratoga's exclusive thoroughbred racing season.

The Republican governor, in his budget message today, outlined state plans for picking up another 4½ million dollars a year through taxes on betting at race tracks.

But he told reporters last week at a briefing session that the Spa's 24 racing days in August, while New York City tracks are closed, would be preserved.

There has been some agitation for keeping New York tracks open during August. Saratoga was assured exclusive dates under a 1957 law.

There had been reports that Rockefeller would try to repeal the law to produce more revenue from the New York tracks.

Rockefeller told the lawmakers that the additional 4½ million he plans will come from allowing a ninth race at the flat tracks, as well as five additional racing days between the limits of the season—March 25 through Nov. 30. Only 210 days are allowed now.

Legislation to carry out these changes has been introduced.

Rockefeller said the state levy on pari-mutuel betting at race tracks will bring in about 78 million dollars for fiscal 1958-59.

Without expanding racing, the tax would yield about 81½ million during the next fiscal year. But the longer programs on more days will net 86 million, he forecast.

The home side took the lead early in the first period and held it the rest of the way despite some trying moments. Million made 11 points and Meehan 10 to lead the Rondout five. Ed Witko, Tom Wheeler and Paul Malek had six markers each for Onteora.

The seniors trailed the teachers, 1-0, entering the last period but Carol Hindrickson and Shirley scored four and six points respectively to dump their rivals.

The Kingston Colonials

★★★A Baseball Legend (1921-27)★★★

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The 1926 Colonials scored a noteable 13-inning, 4 to 3 victory over Wild Bill Hallahan and a star-studded St. Louis Cardinal lineup that was destined to engage in sensational World Series with the New York Yankees.

The Cardinals unlimbered all their big guns, including the immortal Rogers Hornsby, Sunny Jim Bottomley, Lester Bell, Taylor Douthit, Jake Flowers, Ducky Holmes and Tommy Thevenow.

Art Smith, the No. 1 Colonial pitcher of the year, scattered 11 hits effectively to gain the historic decision on June 13, 1926, at the Fair Grounds. Smith walked only two and struck out eight. Hallahan gave 10 hits, 5 walks and fanned 12.

Pinch Triple

It took a ninth-inning pinch triple by Elmer Vick to square the game at 3-3 after Eddie Phelps Jr. had blasted a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth to put the Colonials ahead, 3-2.

Hallahan and Smith waged a grim struggle through the next four innings until Johnny Peters slashed a long single to center to score Vince O'Brien and give Smith a victory that narrowly eluded him in regulation time.

The Cardinals had two out in the ninth when Vick batted for catcher Short and slashed a long triple. Smith couldn't handle Bell, the crack third sacker, who singled sharply to left to tie the score. Hallahan turned back the Colonials in order in the bottom of the ninth.

Phelps, batting leadoff for the Colonials, was a constant source of anoyance for the extremely quick and wild Hallahan. He rapped two singles and the three-run homer to steal the show from the Cardinal stars.

Hallahan was breezing along with a 2-0 lead when Peters was safe on a fielder's choice and catcher Melvin singled. Smith moved the runners up a notch with a sacrifice and set the stage for Phelps' booming shot over the left field fence.

Three familiar Colonial stalwarts — Matty Deegan, Jack Robins and Bill Schwab — had transferred to the Middletown Grays before the Cardinals arrived. They were later to return to the Colonial roster and stay until the end of the great baseball dynasty.

Rogers Hornsby, the greatest right hand hitter of all time, collected a double in three trips and, as legend has it, took off for the Elks Club, serenly confident the Cards would win the game. He got the bad news a couple hours latter.

Katsbaan Cagers Top "Y" Stars, 103 to 96

Despite a blistering third period rally, the YMCA All-Stars weren't able to take command and they dropped a 103-96 decision to Katsbaan Tavern Saturday night at Saugerties High School in a polio benefit clash. A good crowd watched the action and there was plenty of it.

The Stars had a fatal second period in which they scored only eight points. That put them behind 48-30 at halftime and they could never get closer than five points during the second half.

Ronnie Scheffel was the pacemaker for the winners. He canned 15 buckets and a pair of foul shots for 32 points in a shiny performance. Frank "Yip" Koenig added 24 markers and Buddy Smith contributed 16. Ron Marks and Tom Morrissey also scored in double figures.

Dick Telingen was a big noise for the Stars. He rimmed 12 field goals and six foul shots for 30 points. Andy Juhl chipped in with 24 and Joe Klonowski made 14.

Walther Video Victor With 751 For New Record

Piling up 751 with games of 248-257-246, Johnny Walther, Capital City Classic and All-star Individual league champion, had little trouble defeating Phil Palmer of Mechanicville in their bowling match televised from GEAA lanes in Schenectady.

Palmer, a junior at Siena college who amazed Capital District fans by winning the elimination at the Playdium two Saturdays ago, went well over his regular average by totaling 615 with games of 181-218-216. The triple was his all-time high. He has been bowling only 13 months.

Walther's triple is a new high on the TV show, sponsored by the Capital District BPA and Fitzgerald Bros.. The previous high was Buster Ferraro's 733. Jim Caputo will face Walther next week.

4-Goal Trick Getting Common

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The three-goal hat trick is a rarity in professional hockey but in the college ranks three or more goals by one player is becoming quite common.

Center Larry Langill of St. Lawrence and Bud Gilchrist of Clarkson, for instance, turned in night. Gilchrist's teammate, sophomore Ken Gardiner who played his first game for the Engineers, tallied three times.

Langill paced St. Lawrence to an 11-5 victory over Middlebury in a Tri-State League game at Canton. Meanwhile, Clarkson blanked American International 17-0 at Potsdam.

In Troy, Rensselaer Poly outskated Princeton 6-4 in a wild contest. Norwich, playing on its home ice at Northfield, Vt., edged Hamilton 4-3 in overtime.

Maglie Denies Spitball Charge

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. A(P)—"I've never thrown a spitball," says Sal Maglie in a flat denial of a charge that he uses the illegal pitch.

Bill Rigney, manager of the San Francisco Giants, accused the St. Louis pitcher and three other National League hurlers of throwing the spitball.

"He's a liar," said Maglie Saturday. "He knows damned well I never threw the spitter."

Rigney said in a copyrighted article in a national magainze (Parade) that Maglie, Lew Burdette of Milwaukee, Elroy Face of Pittsburgh and Marv Grissom of St. Louis threw the spitball.

Maglie agreed with Rigney, however, that the spitball pitch should be made legal." The edge is with the batter, anyway," he said, "and I think the pitcher needs any advantage he can get."

Rocky Promises Hands Off On Changing Spa Season

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has pledged that his administration will make no move to change Saratoga's exclusive thoroughbred racing season.

The Republican governor, in his budget message today, outlined state plans for picking up another 4½ million dollars a year through taxes on betting at race tracks.

But he told reporters last week at a briefing session that the Spa's 24 racing days in August, while New York City tracks are closed, would be preserved.

There has been some agitation for keeping New York tracks open during August. Saratoga was assured exclusive dates under a 1957 law.

There had been reports that Rockefeller would try to repeal the law to produce more revenue from the New York tracks.

Rockefeller told the lawmakers that the additional 4½ million he plans will come from allowing a ninth race at the flat tracks, as well as five additional racing days between the limits of the season—March 25 through Nov. 30. Only 210 days are allowed now.

Legislation to carry out these changes has been introduced.

Rockefeller said the state levy on pari-mutuel betting at race tracks will bring in about 78 million dollars for fiscal 1958-59.

Without expanding racing, the tax would yield about 81½ million during the next fiscal year. But the longer programs on more days will net 86 million, he forecast.

The seniors trailed the teachers, 1-0, entering the last period but Carol Hindrickson and Shirley scored four and six points respectively to dump their rivals.

The Kingston Colonials

★★★A Baseball Legend (1921-27)★★★

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The 1926 Colonials scored a noteable 13-inning, 4 to 3 victory over Wild Bill Hallahan and a star-studded St. Louis Cardinal lineup that was destined to engage in sensational World Series with the New York Yankees.

The Cardinals unlimbered all their big guns, including the immortal Rogers Hornsby, Sunny Jim Bottomley, Lester Bell, Taylor Douthit. Jake Flowers, Ducky Holmes and Tommy Thevenow.

Art Smith, the No. 1 Colonial pitcher of the year, scattered 11 hits effectively to gain the historic decision on June 13, 1926, at the Fair Grounds. Smith walked only two and struck out eight. Hallahan gave 10 hits, 5 walks and fanned 12.

Pinch Triple

It took a ninth-inning pinch triple by Elmer Vick to square the game at 3-3 after Eddie Phelps Jr. had blasted a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth to put the Colonials ahead, 3-2.

Hallahan and Smith waged a grim struggle through the next four innings until Johnny Peters slashed a long single to center to score Vince O'Brien and give Smith a victory that narrowly eluded him in regulation time.

The Cardinals had two out in the ninth when Vick batted for catcher Short and slashed a long triple. Smith couldn't handle Bell, the crack third sacker, who singled sharply to left to tie the score. Hallahan turned back the Colonials in order in the bottom of the ninth.

Phelps, batting leadoff for the Colonials, was a constant source of anoyance for the extremely quick and wild Hallahan. He rapped two singles and the three-run homer to steal the show from the Cardinal stars.

Hallahan was breezing along with a 2-0 lead when Peters was safe on a fielder's choice and catcher Melvin singled. Smith moved the runners up a notch with a sacrifice and set the stage for Phelps' booming shot over the left field fence.

Three familiar Colonial stalwarts — Matty Deegan, Jack Robins and Bill Schwab — had transferred to the Middletown Grays before the Cardinals arrived. They were later to return to the Colonial roster and stay until the end of the great baseball dynasty.

Rogers Hornsby, the greatest right hand hitter of all time, collected a double in three trips and, as legend has it, took off for the Elks Club, serenly confident the Cards would win the game. He got the bad news a couple hours latter.

St. Francis Trims Siena Cagers, 67 to 50

St. Francis of Brooklyn upset Siena, 67-50, in the experimental Middle Eastern conference three-point contest Sunday at the Albany armory before more than 2,800 fans.

The Terriers, who snapped a 12-game losing streak, and the Indians could connect on only one three-pointer apiece. Siena tried nine from beyond the 23-foot arc, while the Terriers attempted six.

St. Francis employed a four-man zone and Fred Schneider, 6-foot junior, to put a defensive umbrella on Siena's Jackie Weaver, who entered the game with a 21.1 average. Weaver was limited to five points, all in the second half. Against the Brooklyn team in Flatbush, he had scored 38, a new Siena record.

The Terriers came to town with only seven players and lost starter John Meudt via a charley horse in the first minute. All but one operative reached double figures with 6-5 Pete Schweitzer the scoring leader with 17. Hank O'Lee tanked 16, converting nine of nine at the foul line and Schneider clicked for 16.

The Indians lost their eighth against three victories. The Terriers won their third of 16.

With the damper put on Weaver, Pat Martone grabbed scoring honors for the Indians. Pat scored Siena's first eight points and finished with 18, all from the field.

DeWitt's Five Romps, Spada's Wins, 43-41

DeWitt's Caddies stayed in first place in the C division of the YMCA Basketball league by thumping the Bombers, 75-37, Saturday in the first game of a doubleheader. In the nightcap, Spada's Sport Shop won a 43-41 decision over Elston's to remain in second place, a game behind the Caddies.

Joey Schrowang had 22 points for DeWitt's. The league leaders exploded for 29 points in the second quarter and then coasted. Bob Dunn had 14 points for the losers.

Terry Corkery scored a layup on a pass from Bill McDermott to tie the Spada-Elston contest and then McDermott sank what proved to be the winning point when he converted a free throw. Another charity toss by Dick Kalish iced the win.

DeWitt's record is now 6-2. Spada's had a 5-3 mark, Elston's is 4-4 and the Bombers are last with one win and seven losses.

St. Bonnie Soph Hits 61 Per Cent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A coach couldn't ask for much more from Tom Stith, St. Bonaventure's sophomore basketball sensation.

Stith took 10 shots from the floor Saturday night at Buffalo as the Bonnies outmaneuvered Villanova 82-76. He connected on seven of them and raised his field-goal average to 61.5 per cent in 12 games. The seven baskets gave him 104 field goals in 169 attempts.

Two other of western New York's major basketball teams also emerged victorious Saturday.

Canisius, playing on the same card with St. Bonaventure and Villanova, overcame Creighton 64-63 with two field goals in the last 10 seconds. Niagara trampled John Carroll 99-89 at Cleveland.

Results of other Saturday games involving Upstate New York teams:

St. Lawrence 79, Middlebury 67; Brockport 74, Plattsburgh 70; Oberlin 81, Buffalo State 42; Akron 102, Buffalo 98; Albany 103, Brooklyn Poly 66; Le Moyne 74, St. Francis (Brooklyn) 61; Oswego 87, Utica 54; Fredonia 84, Ontario Aggies 67.

In the only Sunday action, St. Francis of Brooklyn crushed Siena 67-50 as the teams experimented with a three-point basket.

Eleventh for Bonnies

The Bonnies rolled to their 11th victory against one loss when they overpowered Villanova. The Olean club at one point in the second half pulled away to a 22-point lead.

Canisius, trailing most of the way, tied the game at 60-60 with three minutes to go. Creighton added three more points on free throws and appeared certain to win. But baskets by Tom Rojek and Bill Bennett in the last 10 seconds gave the Golden Griffins their sixth victory in 15 starts.

At Albany, Siena and St. Francis had agreed to allow three points for any field goal made from beyond a 23-foot arc. Siena's players took nine shots, the Terriers six. Each team made only one shot good.

The idea of the premium basket was to counteract a tight zone defense.

Fifth Straight For the Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those who wondered if the Buffalo Bisons were just front-runners when they broke away in the American Hockey League and then came back to the field, know today they're tough in the stretch too.

The Bisons, who wasted their runaway after winning their first 10 games of the season and 13 of their first 14, were down to second place only nine days ago.

They regained first place by beating Hershey Sunday, Jan. 25 and they haven't been stopped since. Their fifth straight victory in their new streak, a 9-3 whipping of Cleveland Sunday night, ballooned their first place advantage to seven points over Hershey and nine points over Cleveland. Only nine days back, only three points separated the three contenders.

In other games Sunday night, Providence beat Hershey 4-2 and Rochester, with scoring leader Billy Hicke counting two goals, whipped Springfield 8-3.

Rochester, now with an undisputed grip on fourth place—the last playoff position, beat Cleveland 4-2 Saturday. Hershey helped out with a 5-2 decision over Providence. Buffalo shut out Springfield 2-0.

Harrell Bought By Cardinal Team

Billy Harrell, former Siena College cage star and a resident of Troy, has been traded by the Cleveland Indians to the St. Louis Cardinals, it was announced yesterday. The purchase price was not disclosed, but it was estimated that Harrell was sold for the waiver price of $20,000.

Harrell had been a member of the Tribe since 1956 and was used as a utility player. He won the most valuable player award with the Reading champions of the Eastern league in 1953. Last year the 30 year old infielder hit .218 and stole 12 bases.

Hunting License Fees Going Up

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller said today the cost of hunting and fishing licenses should be raised to finance a new program for improving relations between sportsmen and farmers.

The present rates are $1.75 for hunting, $2.25 for fishing and $3.75 for a combined license.

Rockefeller, in his budget message to the Legislature, proposed a dollar increase for hunting and fishing permits, and a two-dollar boost for the combined license.

The increase will bring in $1,700,000 in additional revenue, he said, and allow the Conservation Department to restore the wildlife program to "a proper level."

He told the lawmakers that fees from licenses were not adequate to support the wildlife management program that went into effect last April.

Rockefeller described the increases as "long overdue and generally acceptable."

Eastern League Votes to Drop Split Season

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern Baseball League definitely will abolish last year's two-division, split season setup.

League President Thomas H. Richardson reaffirmed Sunday the loop's decision to play on a full-season basis with the first four teams advancing to the Shaughnessy - system playoffs. Richardson said there had been some discussion of limiting the playoffs to two teams.

The league also voted to hold the annual all-star game July 20 in the city of the team in first place at the time. That team will play an all-star squad from the other seven clubs.

A few hitches still must be worked out before an official schedule can be adopted, Richardson said, but he listed these openers for April 21:

Binghamton at Williamsport, Reading at Allentown, Springfield at Albany and Lancaster at York.

Allentown will be the opponent opening Reading's home season on April 22, and York will be at Lancaster the same day. Binghamton opens its home season against Williamsport and Springfield its home season against Albany on April 23.

Willie Hoppe, 'Mr. Billiards,' Dies at 71

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Willie Hoppe—"Mr. Billiards" for a half-century of near-flawless play — died Sunday at 71.

"I don't think I'm going to need my cues any longer," the balkline and three-cushion master told hospital visitors just before his death.

His brother, Albert, said Hoppe asked that his leather-cased cues be given to a longtime chum, Sid Mayer of Skokie, Ill., one of his last callers.

Hoppe was hospitalized four months under treatment for cancer, his brother said. The onetime boy wizard of billiards had suffered illnesses before and bounced back to win titles. His last, and 51st, was the three-cushion crown he won in 1952 at the age of 65. He retired that year as the last of great champions of the "Golden twenties."

William Frederick Hoppe was in knee-pants when he made his first shots on a table he had to stand on a box to reach. He started at age 7 to play exhibitions with his later brother, Frank Jr., then 9, after teaching by their father who kept a hotel, barber shop and poolroom at Cornwall-on Hudson, N.Y.

Willie developed in smoky poolhalls the calm, deliberate style of play that carried him to world titles. In 1911 he won the distinction of being the only known player to give a White House exhibition.

At 18, in 1906, Hoppe was crowned 18.1 balkline champion. He was 18.2 titlist from 1910 to 1920, won the title again in 1923-24, ruled the 14.1 world from 1914 and triumphed in the difficult 71.2 in 1938.

He turned later to three-cushion competition, winning the world title in 1940 in 20 straight victories.

He began defeating the stars of billiards at age 12, and at 14 bested Maurice Vigneaux of France in an 18.1 match that drew worldwide attention.

Besides his brother Hoppe leaves three sisters, a son, Willie Jr. of Sonora, Calif., and a daughter, Alice.

Woodstock Varsity Edges Kingston All Stars, 71-67

Woodstock Varsity survived a 30-37 halftime deficit and a 26-point spree by Champ Holstein to defeat the Kingston All Stars, 71-67, at the Woodstock School gym.

The Varsity rebounded with a 26-point third quarter to go ahead 56-49 by the end of the period and hold off a late rush by the All Stars.

Woodstock flashed good team balance with all seven players crashing the scoring column and four hitting in double figures. Bill Waterous led with 16 points; Bob Kaiser and Richie Hilton meshed 12 apiece and Joe Hilton canned 10.

Holstein, one-time Kingston High School star, potted a dozen fields and two free throws for his 26 points. Fred Orr tallied 18 points on nine deuces and Big Jim Ferraro contributed 13 for the Stars.

Woodstock is scheduled to play Sickler's Delivery Friday night at the school gym.

Hunters Being Squeezed Out, Goodman Tells Katrine Group

Hunting Territory Shrinking Rapidly

New York State has the finest conservation setup in the country, but the state's rapidly mushrooming hunting population is steadily being squeezed out of available hunting territory.

That's what William Goodman, District Game Protector, told more than 150 persons at the annual Lake Katrine Rod & Gun Club banquet, Saturday night at the SRS Home in Cottekill.

The state is experiencing growing pains, population-wise, said Goodman, and the future doesn't look too good for the hunter. In time, he added, the private preserves owned by local clubs might be the only solution.

Goodman was principal speaker at the Katrine's annual dinner and hi-jinks.

Charles Arold was awarded the coveted Sportsman's Award for 1958 and William Brooks won a special citation for oratorical ability. Past president Roland Post, who retired in 1958 after serving five terms, was presented with a gift.

Saehloff Recites Poem

Robert Saehloff, in his perennial role of poet laureate for the club, read an amusing, original poem and officiated at the highly popular "class legacy" ceremony.

Among the guests introduced by toastmaster Charles J. Tiano were Carleton B. King, president of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County; Philip Gillen, game warden; Chet Joy, chairman of the Federation's Stream Improvement Committee; and Lee Van Wagenen, largest property owner in the club.

"Farm lands are being bought up and posted at an alarming rate," said Goodman. "The big squeeze is on against the hunter, but we're trying to keep pace and keep the standard for hunting and fishing at the present levels."

Fantastic Growth

The fantastic growth in popularity of hunting and fishing has made it big business, he said. A United States Department of Commerce survey revealed that nimrods now spend nine and one half billion dollars annually on their pleasures. This amounts to roughly 25 million dollars a day.

In 18 years, Goodman pointed out, the hunting population has zoomed from 8 million in 1930 to 37,500,000 in 1950 and by 1958 it had reached 50 million. "And that doesn't include landowners, service men and boys." said Goodman.

"Despite our growing pains and heavily mounting pressure, don't sell New York State short," said Goodman. "We're trying to keep the forest preserves forever wild as long as we can."

Elks and 50 Club Cagers Winners in Biddy League

Jerry Corrado's four field goals in the last quarter sparked the Elks Lodge to a 25-24 thriller over the Recreation Five in the Biddy Basketball League.

In the companion game, The 50 Club cagers staged a strong fourth period spurt to edge the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, 32-29.

While Corrado was on his spree, the Elks shut out the Recs in the final period. Corrado wound up with 15 points. George Barnes hit 10 for the Recs.

Ken Gilligan was high scorer for the 50 Club with 12 points. Tom Policano potted 11 for the KPA.

Hawks Near Title, Schayes Gets 50

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's magic number time for the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Assn.

With 23 games remaining on the schedule, the defending world champions need only a combination of six victories or Detroit defeats to clinch their third successive Western Division crown.

The Hawks romped to two weekend victories, lengthening their lead to 17 games over the second-place Pistons. Led by NBA scoring leader Bob Pettit, who notched 40 points, St. Louis knocked off Detroit 130-96 Sunday after thumping third-place Minneapolis 120-96 Saturday.

Two Shy

Meanwhile Dolph Schayes pumped in 50 points — two shy of Pettit's record this season — in a losing cause Sunday and Syracuse lost to Boston's Eastern Division leaders, 139-137 in overtime. Paul Arizin paced Philadelphia with 36 points as the Warriors dumped New York 113-105 in Sunday's other game.

St. Louis' third consecutive triumph marked the fifth time this season Pettit has scored 40 points in a game.

Bill Sharman, who wound up with 28 points, scored seven in overtime for the Celtics. Bob Cousy had 32, high for the Celts. Rookie Bob Hopkins ably abetted Schayes, scoring 34 for the Nats.

In other Saturday games, Boston whipped Philadelphia 137-102, New York nipped Syracuse 119-117 and Detroit outclassed Cincinnati 103-88.

American Team Takes Bobsled

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP) —Art Tyler of Weston, Mass., and Tom Butler of Vista, Calif., nosed out a West German duo Sunday to win the two-man bobsled derby.

Two other Americans, Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N. Y., and Charles Pandolph of Saranac Lake, N. Y., narrowly escaped injury when their sled raced out of control down the mile-long course.

A broken bolt crippled the sled's brake and also interferred with the steering. Benham and Pandolph rolled with the sled in order to negotiate the chute safely.

Tyler and Butler had a total time of 5:33.17 for the four runs, two Saturday and two Sunday. They finished ahead of Hans Roesch and Walter Haller, whose time was 5:34.17.

Benham and Pandolph had been second to Tyler and Butler after the first two heats. They finished sixth with an aggregate of 5:35.39.

Five U. S. teams are here for the two-man bobs. Only two teams will be chosen for the world championships. They will be determined by placing's in Sunday's Derby and the St. Mortiz championship today and Tuesday.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The 1959 gold rush of the golfing brigade in California was over today, with Marty Furgol the latest to hit pay dirt and Art Wall, jr., carrying the most loot.

Furgol, a 41-year-old veteran from Lemont, Ill., came from behind in the last nine holes to win the $20,000 San Diego Open Sunday, with rounds of 70-71-64-69-274—14 strokes under par. The win gave him $2,800 and his first tournament victory in five years.

The money championship goes to Wall, who in one month raked in $11,965.53. He won $6,000 in the Bing Crosby clambake.

Wall's 278 put him way down the list of finishers. But it netted

St. Francis Trims Siena Cagers, 67 to 50

St. Francis of Brooklyn upset Siena, 67-50, in the experimental Middle Eastern conference three-point contest Sunday at the Albany armory before more than 2,800 fans.

The Terriers, who snapped a 12-game losing streak, and the Indians could connect on only one three-pointer apiece. Siena tried nine from beyond the 23-foot arc, while the Terriers attempted six.

St. Francis employed a four-man zone and Fred Schneider, 6-foot junior, to put a defensive umbrella on Siena's Jackie Weaver, who entered the game with a 21.1 average. Weaver was limited to five points, all in the second half. Against the Brooklyn team in Flatbush, he had scored 38, a new Siena record.

The Terriers came to town with only seven players and lost starter John Meudt via a charley horse in the first minute. All but one operative reached double figures with 6-5 Pete Schweitzer the scoring leader with 17. Hank O'Lee tanked 16, converting nine of nine at the foul line and Schneider clicked for 16.

The Indians lost their eighth against three victories. The Terriers won their third of 16.

With the damper put on Weaver, Pat Martone grabbed scoring honors for the Indians. Pat scored Siena's first eight points and finished with 18, all from the field.

DeWitt's Five Romps, Spada's Wins, 43-41

DeWitt's Caddies stayed in first place in the C division of the YMCA Basketball league by thumping the Bombers, 75-37, Saturday in the first game of a doubleheader. In the nightcap, Spada's Sport Shop won a 43-41 decision over Elston's to remain in second place, a game behind the Caddies.

Joey Schrowang had 22 points for DeWitt's. The league leaders exploded for 29 points in the second quarter and then coasted. Bob Dunn had 14 points for the losers.

Terry Corkery scored a layup on a pass from Bill McDermott to tie the Spada-Elston contest and then McDermott sank what proved to be the winning point when he converted a free throw. Another charity toss by Dick Kalish iced the win.

DeWitt's record is now 6-2. Spada's had a 5-3 mark, Elston's is 4-4 and the Bombers are last with one win and seven losses.

St. Bonnie Soph Hits 61 Per Cent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A coach couldn't ask for much more from Tom Stith, St. Bonaventure's sophomore basketball sensation.

Stith took 10 shots from the floor Saturday night at Buffalo as the Bonnies outmaneuvered Villanova 82-76. He connected on seven of them and raised his field-goal average to 61.5 per cent in 12 games. The seven baskets gave him 104 field goals in 169 attempts.

Two other of western New York's major basketball teams also emerged victorious Saturday.

Canisius, playing on the same card with St. Bonaventure and Villanova, overcame Creighton 64-63 with two field goals in the last 10 seconds. Niagara trampled John Carroll 99-89 at Cleveland.

Results of other Saturday games involving Upstate New York teams:

St. Lawrence 79, Middlebury 67; Brockport 74, Plattsburgh 70; Oberlin 81, Buffalo State 42; Akron 102, Buffalo 98; Albany 103, Brooklyn Poly 66; Le Moyne 74, St. Francis (Brooklyn) 61; Oswego 87, Utica 54; Fredonia 84, Ontario Aggies 67.

In the only Sunday action, St. Francis of Brooklyn crushed Siena 67-50 as the teams experimented with a three-point basket.

Eleventh for Bonnies

The Bonnies rolled to their 11th victory against one loss when they overpowered Villanova. The Olean club at one point in the second half pulled away to a 22-point lead.

Canisius, trailing most of the way, tied the game at 60-60 with three minutes to go. Creighton added three more points on free throws and appeared certain to win. But baskets by Tom Rojek and Bill Bennett in the last 10 seconds gave the Golden Griffins their sixth victory in 15 starts.

At Albany, Siena and St. Francis had agreed to allow three points for any field goal made from beyond a 23-foot arc. Siena's players took nine shots, the Terriers six. Each team made only one shot good.

The idea of the premium basket was to counteract a tight zone defense.

Fifth Straight For the Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those who wondered if the Buffalo Bisons were just front-runners when they broke away in the American Hockey League and then came back to the field, know today they're tough in the stretch too.

The Bisons, who wasted their runaway after winning their first 10 games of the season and 13 of their first 14, were down to second place only nine days ago.

They regained first place by beating Hershey Sunday, Jan. 25 and they haven't been stopped since. Their fifth straight victory in their new streak, a 9-3 whipping of Cleveland Sunday night, ballooned their first place advantage to seven points over Hershey and nine points over Cleveland. Only nine days back, only three points separated the three contenders.

In other games Sunday night, Providence beat Hershey 4-2 and Rochester, with scoring leader Billy Hicke counting two goals, whipped Springfield 8-3.

Rochester, now with an undisputed grip on fourth place—the last playoff position, beat Cleveland 4-2 Saturday. Hershey helped out with a 5-2 decision over Providence. Buffalo shut out Springfield 2-0.

Harrell Bought By Cardinal Team

Billy Harrell, former Siena College cage star and a resident of Troy, has been traded by the Cleveland Indians to the St. Louis Cardinals, it was announced yesterday. The purchase price was not disclosed, but it was estimated that Harrell was sold for the waiver price of $20,000.

Harrell had been a member of the Tribe since 1956 and was used as a utility player. He won the most valuable player award with the Reading champions of the Eastern league in 1953. Last year the 30 year old infielder hit .218 and stole 12 bases.

Hunting License Fees Going Up

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller said today the cost of hunting and fishing licenses should be raised to finance a new program for improving relations between sportsmen and farmers.

The present rates are $1.75 for hunting, $2.25 for fishing and $3.75 for a combined license.

Rockefeller, in his budget message to the Legislature, proposed a dollar increase for hunting and fishing permits, and a two-dollar boost for the combined license.

The increase will bring in $1,700,000 in additional revenue, he said, and allow the Conservation Department to restore the wildlife program to "a proper level."

He told the lawmakers that fees from licenses were not adequate to support the wildlife management program that went into effect last April.

Rockefeller described the increases as "long overdue and generally acceptable."

Eastern League Votes to Drop Split Season

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern Baseball League definitely will abolish last year's two-division, split season setup.

League President Thomas H. Richardson reaffirmed Sunday the loop's decision to play on a full-season basis with the first four teams advancing to the Shaughnessy - system playoffs. Richardson said there had been some discussion of limiting the playoffs to two teams.

The league also voted to hold the annual all-star game July 20 in the city of the team in first place at the time. That team will play an all-star squad from the other seven clubs.

A few hitches still must be worked out before an official schedule can be adopted, Richardson said, but he listed these openers for April 21:

Binghamton at Williamsport, Reading at Allentown, Springfield at Albany and Lancaster at York.

Allentown will be the opponent opening Reading's home season on April 22, and York will be at Lancaster the same day. Binghamton opens its home season against Williamsport and Springfield its home season against Albany on April 23.

Willie Hoppe, 'Mr. Billiards,' Dies at 71

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Willie Hoppe—"Mr. Billiards" for a half-century of near-flawless play — died Sunday at 71.

"I don't think I'm going to need my cues any longer," the balkline and three-cushion master told hospital visitors just before his death.

His brother, Albert, said Hoppe asked that his leather-cased cues be given to a longtime chum, Sid Mayer of Skokie, Ill., one of his last callers.

Hoppe was hospitalized four months under treatment for cancer, his brother said. The onetime boy wizard of billiards had suffered illnesses before and bounced back to win titles. His last, and 51st, was the three-cushion crown he won in 1952 at the age of 65. He retired that year as the last of great champions of the "Golden twenties."

William Frederick Hoppe was in knee-pants when he made his first shots on a table he had to stand on a box to reach. He started at age 7 to play exhibitions with his later brother, Frank Jr., then 9, after teaching by their father who kept a hotel, barber shop and poolroom at Cornwall-on Hudson, N.Y.

Willie developed in smoky poolhalls the calm, deliberate style of play that carried him to world titles. In 1911 he won the distinction of being the only known player to give a White House exhibition.

At 18, in 1906, Hoppe was crowned 18.1 balkline champion. He was 18.2 titlist from 1910 to 1920, won the title again in 1923-24, ruled the 14.1 world from 1914 and triumphed in the difficult 71.2 in 1938.

He turned later to three-cushion competition, winning the world title in 1940 in 20 straight victories.

He began defeating the stars of billiards at age 12, and at 14 bested Maurice Vigneaux of France in an 18.1 match that drew worldwide attention.

Besides his brother Hoppe leaves three sisters, a son, Willie Jr. of Sonora, Calif., and a daughter, Alice.

Woodstock Varsity Edges Kingston All Stars, 71-67

Woodstock Varsity survived a 30-37 halftime deficit and a 26-point spree by Champ Holstein to defeat the Kingston All Stars, 71-67, at the Woodstock School gym.

The Varsity rebounded with a 26-point third quarter to go ahead 56-49 by the end of the period and hold off a late rush by the All Stars.

Woodstock flashed good team balance with all seven players crashing the scoring column and four hitting in double figures. Bill Waterous led with 16 points; Bob Kaiser and Richie Hilton meshed 12 apiece and Joe Hilton canned 10.

Holstein, one-time Kingston High School star, potted a dozen fields and two free throws for his 26 points. Fred Orr tallied 18 points on nine deuces and Big Jim Ferraro contributed 13 for the Stars.

Woodstock is scheduled to play Sickler's Delivery Friday night at the school gym.

Hunters Being Squeezed Out, Goodman Tells Katrine Group

Hunting Territory Shrinking Rapidly

New York State has the finest conservation setup in the country, but the state's rapidly mushrooming hunting population is steadily being squeezed out of available hunting territory.

That's what William Goodman, District Game Protector, told more than 150 persons at the annual Lake Katrine Rod & Gun Club banquet, Saturday night at the SRS Home in Cottekill.

The state is experiencing growing pains, population-wise, said Goodman, and the future doesn't look too good for the hunter. In time, he added, the private preserves owned by local clubs might be the only solution.

Goodman was principal speaker at the Katrine's annual dinner and hi-jinks.

Charles Arold was awarded the coveted Sportsman's Award for 1958 and William Brooks won a special citation for oratorical ability. Past president Roland Post, who retired in 1958 after serving five terms, was presented with a gift.

Saehloff Recites Poem

Robert Saehloff, in his perennial role of poet laureate for the club, read an amusing, original poem and officiated at the highly popular "class legacy" ceremony.

Among the guests introduced by toastmaster Charles J. Tiano were Carleton B. King, president of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County; Philip Gillen, game warden; Chet Joy, chairman of the Federation's Stream Improvement Committee; and Lee Van Wagenen, largest property owner in the club.

"Farm lands are being bought up and posted at an alarming rate," said Goodman. "The big squeeze is on against the hunter, but we're trying to keep pace and keep the standard for hunting and fishing at the present levels."

Fantastic Growth

The fantastic growth in popularity of hunting and fishing has made it big business, he said. A United States Department of Commerce survey revealed that nimrods now spend nine and one half billion dollars annually on their pleasures. This amounts to roughly 25 million dollars a day.

In 18 years, Goodman pointed out, the hunting population has zoomed from 8 million in 1930 to 37,500,000 in 1950 and by 1958 it had reached 50 million. "And that doesn't include landowners, service men and boys," said Goodman.

"Despite our growing pains and heavily mounting pressure, don't sell New York State short," said Goodman. "We're trying to keep the forest preserves forever wild as long as we can."

Cornelia, Ga., has a monument to the apple.

Elks and 50 Club Cagers Winners in Biddy League

Jerry Corrado's four field goals in the last quarter sparked the Elks Lodge to a 25-24 thriller over the Recreation Five in the Biddy Basketball League.

In the companion game, The 50 Club cagers staged a strong fourth period spurt to edge the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, 32-29.

While Corrado was on his spree, the Elks shut out the Recs in the final period. Corrado wound up with 15 points. George Barnes hit 10 for the Recs.

Ken Gilligan was high scorer for the 50 Club with 12 points. Tom Policano potted 11 for the KPA.

Hawks Near Title, Schayes Gets 50

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's magic number time for the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Assn.

With 23 games remaining on the schedule, the defending world champions need only a combination of six victories or Detroit defeats to clinch their third successive Western Division crown.

The Hawks romped to two weekend victories, lengthening their lead to 17 games over the second-place Pistons. Led by NBA scoring leader Bob Pettit, who notched 40 points, St. Louis knocked off Detroit 130-96 Sunday after thumping third-place Minneapolis 120-96 Saturday.

Two Shy

Meanwhile Dolph Schayes pumped in 50 points — two shy of Pettit's record this season — in a losing cause Sunday and Syracuse lost to Boston's Eastern Division leaders, 139-137 in overtime. Paul Arizin paced Philadelphia with 36 points as the Warriors dumped New York 113-105 in Sunday's other game.

St. Louis' third consecutive triumph marked the fifth time this season Pettit has scored 40 points in a game.

Bill Sharman, who wound up with 28 points, scored seven in overtime for the Celtics. Bob Cousy had 32, high for the Celts. Rookie Bob Hopkins ably abetted Schayes, scoring 34 for the Nats.

In other Saturday games, Boston whipped Philadelphia 137-102, New York nipped Syracuse 119-117 and Detroit outclassed Cincinnati 103-88.

American Team Takes Bobsled

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP) —Art Tyler of Weston, Mass., and Tom Butler of Vista, Calif., nosed out a West German duo Sunday to win the two-man bobsled derby.

Two other Americans, Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N. Y., and Charles Pandolph of Saranac Lake, N. Y., narrowly escaped injury when their sled raced out of control down the mile-long course.

A broken bolt crippled the sled's brake and also interferred with the steering. Benham and Pandolph rolled with the sled in order to negotiate the chute safely.

Tyler and Butler had a total time of 5:33.17 for the four runs, two Saturday and two Sunday. They finished ahead of Hans Roesch and Walter Haller, whose time was 5:34.17.

Benham and Pandolph had been second to Tyler and Butler after the first two heats. They finished sixth with an aggregate of 5:35.39.

Five U. S. teams are here for the two-man bobs. Only two teams will be chosen for the world championships. They will be determined by placing's in Sunday's Derby and the St. Mortiz championship today and Tuesday.

Furgol's 274 Low In Diego Tourney

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The 1959 gold rush of the golfing brigade in California was over today, with Marty Furgol the latest to hit pay dirt and Art Wall, jr., carrying the most loot.

Furgol, a 41-year-old veteran from Lemont, Ill., came from behind in the last nine holes to win the $20,000 San Diego Open Sunday, with rounds of 70-71-64-69-274 —14 strokes under par. The win gave him $2,800 and his first tournament victory in five years.

The money championship goes to Wall, who in one month raked in $11,965.53. He won $6,000 in the Bing Crosby clambake.

Wall's 278 put him way down the list of finishers. But it netted

Ernest Fabiano, 28, sustained bruises and abrasions of the left arm, hip and right hand when he was flung from his automobile to the pavement.

Involved in the collision were Fabiano, operating a 1949 pickup truck, and Martin Faherty, 21, of New York City.

Faherty was arrested by Trooper J. F. Franke who charged him with failure to yield the right of way. He will appear before Justice of the Peace Arthur Reilly at a later date.

Franke said Fabiano was proceeding south on Route 32, Faherty west on Route 199.

IBM Appoints New Senior Engineer

ROBERT W. BOTTOMLEY

The Military Products Division of International Business Machines Corporation today announced the appointment of Robert W. Bottomley, of Kingston, as senior engineer in advanced development at the division's plant in Kingston.

Bottomley joined IBM as a customer engineer at Akron, O., in 1950. Assigned to early SAGE air defense computer development at Poughkeepsie in March, 1952, he was transferred to IBM Kingston the following February.

Serving in a variety of increasingly responsible positions in prototype computer groups, Bottomley was promoted to project engineer in December, 1954. Named manager of memory development in March, 1956, he was promoted to development engineer. Six months later his responsibility was increased to include all advanced magnetic development.

A U. S. Navy veteran, Bottomley earned a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from the University of Akron.

Bottomley, his wife, Ruth, and children, Diane, 6, Lawrence, 3, and Robert, 2, reside at R.D. 4, Kingston.

Health for All

"Sleep Cheats"

Are you a "sleep cheat?" Do you put off going to bed as if you were afraid a small boy had put a frog between the sheets?

The sleep cheat is not to be confused with the unfortunate sufferer from insomnia. He can sleep, but he won't start soon enough to get the good night's sleep he needs for health. The results are just about the same as if he really had insomnia. Soooner or later he has to settle his bill with old man Morpheus or collapse from sheer exhaustion.

Cite Example

A frequent argument of the sleep cheat is to point to Thomas A. Edison and say he never slept more than four hours a night. That can be answered with the question: "And what have you contributed to man's welfare in the wee hours?" Probably the sleep cheat has been sitting up with the Late Late Show or a detective story rather than an invention. As a matter of fact, Edison was famous for catching catnaps at odd hours of the day in a corner of his laboratory.

Whether or not the sleep cheat makes a great contribution to society, his health will certainly suffer. The symptoms of chronic sleep shortage, in order of appearance are: Poor timing and muscular control; strained vision; impaired hearing and reduced sense of touch, temperature, and pressure; and, finally, increasing irritability, discouragement, and depression. Even the greatest genius could not produce well under those conditions.

The best way to find out how much sleep is right for you is to try to get up without an alarm clock for a while. If you can do it regularly and if you aren't dozing off during the day, you can be sure you are going to bed at the right time.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Icebreakers Are Opening Channel In Hudson River

The cold snap has tightened the ice in the Hudson river closing the channel with solid ice since the last vessel went up the river last Friday. However, two icebreakers are en route downstream today breaking a channel for a Swedish freighter en route from the Port of Albany to New York.

From the Coast Guard station at Esopus light today came word that ice in the river off Esopus light is at least a foot thick.

The freighter was reported to be in the vicinity of "4 mile point" near Coxsackie early this morning with the ice breakers "Mariposa" and "Sauk" assisting in opening the channel. It was expected the vessel would pass Kingston early this afternoon.

The channel in the Hudson river has been kept open for traffic throughout the winter. Icebreakers went into commission late in December. The "Mariposa" is a large icebreaker while the "Sauk" is a small vessel, equipped with ice-breaking prow.

Only one in four of the "career girls" in the United States remains single.

Icebreakers Are Opening Channel In Hudson River

The cold snap has tightened the ice in the Hudson river closing the channel with solid ice since the last vessel went up the river last Friday. However, two icebreakers are en route downstream today breaking a channel for a Swedish freighter en route from the Port of Albany to New York.

From the Coast Guard station at Esopus light today came word that ice in the river off Esopus light is at least a foot thick.

The freighter was reported to be in the vicinity of "4 mile point" near Coxsackie early this morning with the ice breakers "Mariposa" and "Sauk" assisting in opening the channel. It was expected the vessel would pass Kingston early this afternoon.

The channel in the Hudson river has been kept open for traffic throughout the winter. Icebreakers went into commission late in December. The "Mariposa" is a large icebreaker while the "Sauk" is a small vessel, equipped with ice-breaking prow.

Health for All

"Sleep Cheats"

Are you a "sleep cheat?" Do you put off going to bed as if you were afraid a small boy had put a frog between the sheets?

The sleep cheat is not to be confused with the unfortunate sufferer from insomnia. He can sleep, but he won't start soon enough to get the good-night's sleep he needs for health. The results are just about the same as if he really had insomnia. Sooner or later he has to settle his bill with old man Morpheus or collapse from sheer exhaustion.

Cite Example

A frequent argument of the sleep cheat is to point to Thomas A. Edison and say he never slept more than four hours a night. That can be answered with the question: "And what have you contributed to man's welfare in the wee hours?" Probably the sleep cheat has been sitting up with the Late Late Show or a detective story rather than an invention. As a matter of fact, Edison was famous for catching catnaps at odd hours of the day in a corner of his laboratory.

Whether or not the sleep cheat makes a great contribution to society, his health will certainly suffer. The symptoms of chronic sleep shortage, in order of appearance are: Poor timing and muscular control; strained vision; impaired hearing and reduced sense of touch, temperature, and pressure; and, finally, increasing irritability, discouragement, and depression. Even the greatest genius could not produce well under those conditions.

The best way to find out how much sleep is right for you is to try to get up without an alarm clock for a while. If you can do it regularly and if you aren't dozing off during the day, you can be sure you are going to bed at the right time.

Cold Wave Keeps Grip on Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A mid-winter cold wave kept an icy hold across broad areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic today and little general relief appeared in sight.

The arctic air, which dropped temperatures to 40 degrees below zero in Minnesota over the weekend, spread eastward and headed slowly into the Southland. The most severe cold numbed the northern tier of states from Montana eastward through northern New England.

It was below zero as far south as northern Missouri. Freezing rain, snow and drizzle accompanied the colder air throughout western Oklahoma and wide areas of Texas.

A glistening coat of ice slicked highways and streets in western and northern Texas and snow fell in the Panhandle. Driving conditions were hazardous. At least 11 deaths were attributed to the foul weather. Many schools were ordered closed.

An ice-laden commercial DC3 carrying 25 National Guardsmen and three crew members crashed and burned in the central Texas hill country Sunday night, killing three men. Several of the survivors were seriously injured. The plane was en route from Boise, Idaho, to San Antonio.

A belt of freezing drizzle stretched from Wichita Falls, Tex. through Abilene and San Angelo.

Virginia Opens Seven All-White Schools to Negroes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia reluctantly opened seven all-white public schools to 21 Negroes today for the first time in the state's history. Norfolk and Arlington County were the two areas immediately involved. The transition produced no immediate incidents.

Norfolk, a coastal seaport and the state's largest city with 244,000 residents, admitted 17 Negroes to six secondary schools. The schools had been closed since September under a now-defunct state law to prevent integration ordered by federal courts.

Ten thousand white pupils were displaced.

Urban Arlington County, just south of the nation's capital, admitted four Negro pupils to Stratford Junior High which has a white student body of 1,076. The county with an area of only 24 square miles has a population above 140,000.

In central Virginia, Charlottesville's Lane High School and Venable Elementary School, closed since September, reopens Wednesday on an all-white basis. A federal court granted a stay of an integration order when the school board promised to produce a plan for integration next September. Lane has a student body of 1,000; Venable 700. Two Negroes were ordered admitted to Lane, 10 to Venable. Charlottesville has a population of about 30,000.

Warren County High School at Front Royal in northern Virginia—the other school closed by the state—remained closed for the present. Twenty-two Negroes were assigned to the 1,000-pupil school by a federal court. Since closure, virtually all of the displaced pupils have been given private class work in churches and other community buildings. Warren's population is 15,000.

January Average Month on Weather

January was an average month weatherwise in the 25 years of records at the city engineer's office, it was noted today.

A coincident in the records showed last month's average temperature of 27.08 degrees above zero, the same as the 25-year record.

Lowest temperature for the month was four degrees above zero at 8 a. m., Jan. 26. February, with an even zero at 7 a. m. today, was off to a cooler start.

High temperature for January was 58 degrees at 4:30 a. m., Jan. 22. The month's average high was 35.3 and its average low was 18.8 degrees.

The month's 11½ inches of snow was average by local records and its rainfall of 2.33 inches was slightly below average.

Other records set, besides the high of 58 degrees Jan. 22, was a high of 52 on Jan. 30 which also had the highest low temperature for the date of 34 degrees; and another high for the date of 53 degrees on Jan. 21.

Checks Bigger

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today starts mailing out fatter social security checks to more than 12½ million persons.

The checks reflect the 7 per cent average increase voted by Congress last year.

Ground Hog Freezes, 6 Weeks Left

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP)—The groundhog darn near froze to death this morning. And there will be six more weeks of winter.

Thus reports the groundhog's chief keeper.

Promptly at 8:23 a.m., Sam Light led a procession of a few hearty members of the famed Punxsutawney Groundhog Club to Gobbler's Knob, a little hill on the outskirts of this western Pennsylvania town.

It was 10 below zero, declared Light — the president of the club. But, despite all this, the groundhog poked his nose out and, as promptly, scurried back into his hole. This means there will be six more weeks of winter.

SLATED FOR INTEGRATION—This is the main entrance to Arlington, Va., junior high school where four Negro pupils are slated for enrollment today. U. S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren refused Jan. 31 to delay admission of the Negroes to the previously all-white Stratford school. (AP Wirephoto).

Watch Weather, To Launch Balloon In Record Try

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (AP) — A group of scientists who want to see what goes on 27 miles up kept a wary eye on the weather as they prepared to launch an unmanned balloon as big as a small hotel today.

High winds Sunday forced them to postponed the first scheduled launching of the instrument-carrying balloon. Dr. Frank McDonald, University of Iowa physicist, said they planned to make the next try today but said the weather didn't look good.

The flights from near this west central Texas city may set an altitude record, McDonald said.

Four balloons are to be released over a two-week period by 14 scientists from the University of Iowa, Washington University of St. Louis and Atlantic Research Corp.

The Office of Naval Research is sponsoring the releases with equipment furnished by Raven Industries of Sioux Falls, S.D. Each balloon will carry about 250 pounds of instruments aloft. They are expected to reach a height of about 27 miles, or 142,560 feet.

McDonald said the present altitude record for unmanned balloons is about 142,000 feet, held by the University of Minnesota.

4 Atlanta Officers Are Held for Burglary

ATLANTA (AP) — Four Atlanta policemen were arrested on burglary charges last weekend.

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins said Sunday night he believed the action had smashed a police burglary ring.

Jenkins said all four men had admitted a series of burglaries in northwest Atlanta and had resigned from the force.

The four, who worked from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., are scheduled to appear in municipal court late today for a hearing. All are free under $5,000 bonds.

Patrolman B. E. Barnes, 28, former police radio operator, was arrested Sunday. The other patrolmen, arrested Saturday, were identified as T. E. Oakes, 26; W. T. Hollingsworth, 36; and C. A. Suttles, 25.

Verse Is Effective In Stopping Horns

ATLANTA (AP) — A suburban drive-in has noticed quite a decline in horn-blowers since its carhops began handing out cards with this verse:

When you want to call your waiter
And you're sitting all forlorn—
You will get him to you quicker
With your lights than with your horn.

For there ain't a man among us
Who has eyesight that has growed
To the point where he can look around
And see whose horn has blowed.

Ike Says Space Record 'Solid'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today the United States has accumulated a "record of solid achievement" in its space programs.

He told that to Congress in a letter forwarding an administration report on aeronautics and space projects since this country succeeded in getting its first satellite into orbit a year ago. The report is required by law.

The 12,000-word report, prepared under the over-all idrection of the new National Aeronautics and Space Administration, was confined to what the United States has done or plan sto do in space. It made no mention of Soviet progress in missiles, satellites and space probe vehicles.

The report itself said that during 1958 the United States carried out a series of space experiments that yielded invaluable data and established a firm foundation for further efforts.

"There were a number of failures during the year and we promptly announced them," the report said.

Much of the report represented a summary of projects already announced in detail, together with comment on projects to come.

In discussing the plan for sending man into space aboard a big satellite — Project Mercury — the report emphasized precautions to be taken.

5,000 Bakers Are Out in Gotham

NEW YORK (AP)—Fresh rolls, pastry and specialty breads were hard to find today in the metropolitan area as 5,000 bakers in 700 independent plants struck after contract negotiations broke down.

The major bakery chains were not affected however.

Russell E. Duvernoy, president of the Gotham Bakers Assn., estimated 25,000 restaurants, 15,000 grocery stores and delicatessens, and hospitals and welfare institutions were without supplies.

Negotiations broke off late Saturday night between three unions and five employer groups. Union demands include a wage increase of $1 a day for skilled workers now earning $21 a day, proportionate increases for lower paid workers, uniformity in wages and working conditions for employes of various skills, and a shorter work week.

Cold Wave Keeps Grip on Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A mid-winter cold wave kept an icy hold across broad areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic today and little general relief appeared in sight.

The arctic air, which dropped temperatures to 40 degrees below zero in Minnesota over the weekend, spread eastward and headed slowly into the Southland. The most severe cold numbed the northern tier of states from Montana eastward through northern New England.

It was below zero as far south as northern Missouri. Freezing rain, snow and drizzle accompanied the colder air throughout western Oklahoma and wide areas of Texas.

A glistening coat of ice slicked highways and streets in western and northern Texas and snow fell in the Panhandle. Driving conditions were hazardous. At least 11 deaths were attributed to the foul weather. Many schools were ordered closed.

An ice-laden commercial DC3 carrying 25 National Guardsmen and three crew members crashed and burned in the central Texas hill country Sunday night, killing three men. Several of the survivors were seriously injured. The plane was en route from Boise, Idaho, to San Antonio.

A belt of freezing drizzle stretched from Wichita Falls, Tex. through Abilene and San Angelo.

Virginia Opens Seven All-White Schools to Negroes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia reluctantly opened seven all-white public schools to 21 Negroes today for the first time in the state's history. Norfolk and Arlington County were the two areas immediately involved. The transition produced no immediate incidents.

Norfolk, a coastal seaport and the state's largest city with 244,000 residents, admitted 17 Negroes to six secondary schools. The schools had been closed since September under a now-defunct state law to prevent integration ordered by federal courts.

Ten thousand white pupils were displaced.

Urban Arlington County, just south of the nation's capital, admitted four Negro pupils to Stratford Junior High which has a white student body of 1,076. The county with an area of only 24 square miles has a population above 140,000.

In central Virginia, Charlottesville's Lane High School and Venable Elementary School, closed since September, reopens Wednesday on an all-white basis. A federal court granted a stay of an integration order when the school board promised to produce a plan for integration next September. Lane has a student body of 1,000; Venable 700. Two Negroes were ordered admitted to Lane, 10 to Venable. Charlottesville has a population of about 30,000.

Warren County High School at Front Royal in northern Virginia —the other school closed by the state—remained closed for the present. Twenty-two Negroes were assigned to the 1,000-pupil school by a federal court. Since closure, virtually all of the displaced pupils have been given private class work in churches and other community buildings. Warren's population is 15,000.

January Average Month on Weather

January was an average month weatherwise in the 25 years of records at the city engineer's office, it was noted today.

A coincident in the records showed last month's average temperature of 27.08 degrees above zero, the same as the 25-year record.

Lowest temperature for the month was four degrees above zero at 8 a. m., Jan. 26. February, with an even zero at 7 a. m. today, was off to a cooler start.

High temperature for January was 58 degrees at 4:30 a. m., Jan. 22. The month's average high was 35.3 and its average low was 18.8 degrees.

The month's 11½ inches of snow was average by local records and its rainfall of 2.33 inches was slightly below average.

Other records set, besides the high of 58 degrees Jan. 22, was a high of 52 on Jan. 30 which also had the highest low temperature for the date of 34 degrees; and another high for the date of 53 degrees on Jan. 21.

Ground Hog Freezes, 6 Weeks Left

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP)—The groundhog darn near froze to death this morning. And there will be six more weeks of winter.

Thus reports the groundhog's chief keeper.

Promptly at 8:23 a.m., Sam Light led a procession of a few hearty members of the famed Punxsutawney Groundhog Club to Gobbler's Knob, a little hill on the outskirts of this western Pennsylvania town.

It was 10 below zero, declared Light — the president of the club. But, despite all this, the groundhog poked his nose out and, as promptly, scurried back into his hole. This means there will be six more weeks of winter.

High winds Sunday forced them to postponed the first scheduled launching of the instrument-carrying balloon. Dr. Frank McDonald, University of Iowa physicist, said they planned to make the next try today but said the weather didn't look good.

Four balloons are to be released over a two-week period by 14 scientists from the University of Iowa, Washington University of St. Louis and Atlantic Research Corp.

The Office of Naval Research is sponsoring the releases with equipment furnished by Raven Industries of Sioux Falls, S.D. Each balloon will carry about 250 pounds of instruments aloft. They are expected to reach a height of about 27 miles, or 142,560 feet.

McDonald said the present altitude record for unmanned balloons is about 142,000 feet, held by the University of Minnesota.
